France Uncertain
Flying Progress
If We Had Mussolini
The Conqueror's Mother

— By Arthur Brisbane

FRANCE could not make up her mind yesterday whether or not she would approve the International moratorium suggested by President Hoover.

Belgium was sure she did not want the moratorium. If she gave up the money that Germany must pay this year, it would cost her $22,000,000. That is "real money" in Belgium. Because of this and other things, Wall Street was not quite so cheerful yesterday, although only too anxious to "respond" to anything.

Aviation in the United States progresses slowly because the government, which should lead, lags behind, waiting on private initiative, which must work with an eye to profits only. However, there were recently no fewer than 13 Americans planning to fly across the Atlantic, including one girl, Ruth Nichols, determined to fly the Atlantic alone. This will be a flying country one of these days.

Gen. William Mitchell says: "This country of ours is, above all, an air country. We can beat the world at it, if properly organized, and properly handled." The proper handling and organizing will come.

With 13 aviators planning to fly the Atlantic, it is interesting to remember that just 25 years ago, Northcliffe offered $50,000 to anybody that would fly the narrow English Channel, and paid the money to a Frenchman, Bleriot. Thousands of children could fly it now.

Dr. Kipfer, who went ten miles up into the stratosphere with Professor Piccard, says fighting in the future will be done 20 miles up in the air, far beyond the sight of those on earth, making anti-aircraft weapons useless. He also suggests that a flight to the moon will soon be possible. Millions will laugh at this, as they would have laughed 25 years ago at the suggestion that men would some day fly the Atlantic and Pacific.

Powerful man is Mussolini. He decided in 1926 to wipe out the "Mafia," an organization of blackmailers, dreaded and obeyed in Sicily until Mussolini came. Proceedings in that case lasted three days ago, when 124 members of the Mafia, packed in an iron cage in the court, were condemned, 15 imprisoned for life, 109 others to 1,500 years' imprisonment. They were desperate men, cursed the jury and the judge, and one pulled off his boot and threw things through the bars of the cage at the jurymen. But Mussolini is able to deal with them.

More than 300 others of the Mafia had previously been sent to prison, many of them for life, and the "Mafia" is dead.

A Mussolini, if we had one, could soon settle our gangster problem.

At Falaise, in Normandy, where William the Conqueror was born, a bronze tablet is unveiled, showing scenes in the Norman conquest of England.

There should be something on that tablet about William's mother, Arletta, a Norman peasant girl, daughter of a tanner, of whom William was an illegitimate son by the Duke of Normandy called "Robert the Devil."

The world knows all about William, too little about Arletta, whom Robert the Devil subsequently married. She must have been an able young woman. Another of her sons, broad-shouldered, blond giant and a bishop, rods beside his half-brother, William the Conqueror, at the battle of Hastings and was killed there.

The world knows too little about mothers of great men. It is as though we admired pictures, never asking the names of the artists.

Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, brilliant young president of Chicago University, says "more education" must supply the way out of our troubles. "Our own follies and incompetence" have produced present conditions, and "if education is opposed to brain intelligence, we must concede that education has signally failed, so far."

That reminds you of Beecher, who replied to one who said Christianity had failed: "It hasn't been tried."

Perhaps REAL education has not been tried. We put children in schools and colleges, far away from real life, teach them that Columbus discovered America in 1492, when the Turks took Constantinople, and a few other things not important in later life.

We submit them to examination more brutalizing than constructive, for which they prepare with the joyful thought that they will forget the answer to every question as soon as possible.

Dr. Hutchins is trying to find

WALL ST. HAS A BOOM DAY

LEADERS ARE UP 2 TO 12 POINTS

5,000,000 Shares Are Sold in Boiling Market; Dealers Are Optimistic

New York, June 24 (AP)—Shares prices came back with a rush on the New York Stock Exchange today, climbing $2 to $12 in a broad and active buying movement that pushed quotations generally above the high levels of Monday.

The close was strong. Sales were close to 5,000,000 shares.

Although Wall St. heard reports that the French cabinet's reply to President Hoover's moratorium proposal contained various conditions of acceptance, the strength of foreign markets indicated that the spirit of optimism had not been dulled. Bullishly inclined traders here went to work enthusiastically.

News of an increase in cigarette prices to jobbers, in which the leading manufacturers participated, strong market for copper and lead, declaration of the regular dividend by Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company and reports that the oil situation in the southwest, especially East Texas, was likely to work out favorably, contributed constructively to sentiment. A further decrease in steel ingot production to a level virtually equal to last December's was ignored.

Although the tobacco and oil stocks displayed marked buoyance —the American Tobacco issues jumped $12 and Standard Oil of New Jersey more than $3—floor traders had a chance to cheer when the old stalwart, United States Steel common touched $100 a share. At that price it was up $3.75.

Prominent stocks up $4 to $7 included Baltimore & Ohio, Lackawanna, Eastman Kodak, Liggett & Myers "B" and "A," United Stores, National Lead, Reynolds and Lorillard tobaccos, Case, Sears Roebuck and Western Union. Westinghouse rallied nearly $5, for a reduction in its dividend rate had been freely predicted in financial circles. American Can, Bethlehem Steel, American Telephone, Corn Products, Houston Oil and American Smelting rose about $3. Atchison hopped up nearly $7 and Schulte pfd. soared $15.

FRENCH URGE OWN PLAN ON DEBT

BULLETIN

Washington, June 24 (AP)—Secretary Stimson in a formal statement today said the broad outlines of President Hoover's debt moratorium proposal would not be departed from.

Paris, June 24 (AP)—The United States government has informed France that the conditions which she is expected to attach to her acceptance of the Hoover moratorium proposal probably would not be regarded with favor in Washington, it was learned today.

PREMIER SILENT

"The cabinet has definitely drawn up the text of the reply which France is making concerning the proposition of President Hoover and Premier Laval will deliver this text this afternoon to the American ambassador in Paris."

Ambassador Edge discussed the document for half an hour with the premier.

HAROLD GATTY WILEY POST

These audacious fliers, in a globe-girdling tour, hopped from Harbor Grace across the Atlantic to Chester, Eng., in 17 hours, 17 minutes. They stayed in England 20 minutes, then hopped away for Berlin, stopping en route for a time at Hanover, Germany. After Berlin, Moscow is their next goal.

'VERNA'S DEATH AN ACCIDENT'

By WIN BROOKS
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Newport, R. I., June 24—Verna E. Russell died of "accidental strangulation."

That was the opinion expressed today by Dr. James Hamilton of Providence, pathologist engaged by the defense, at the trial of Elliott R. Hathaway for murder of the Fall River student nurse.

Dr. Hamilton testified that in his opinion there was no murder—that asphyxia by accidental strangulation killed the pretty blonde nurse during the gin and petting party with Hathaway in Winward lane at Tiverton three months ago.

The defense, waging a desperate battle to save the 25-year-old Fall River playboy from life imprisonment, produced another medical expert today.

He is Dr. T. A. Gonzales, assistant medical examiner of New York, a witness at many murder trials including the notorious Snyder-Grey case. He and Dr. Francis McCarthy, of Boston, former assistant medical examiner there, will follow Dr. Hamilton on the stand.

Kenney Named to Fish and Game Post

Governor Ely today appointed Raymond J. Kenney of Lowell as director of the division of fisheries and game in the state department of conservation. Kenney is now chief game warden in the division. He has been attached to the department for a number of years, and was highly recommended for the post by Commissioner of Conservation William A. L. Bazeley. Kenney also had the support of a number of game and sporting clubs. The salary is $4500.

HILLIG PLANE IN DENMARK HOP

Their monoplane, the Liberty, roared down the flying field runway at 4:24 a. m. Eastern daylight time, swept gracefully into the air on the heaving shoulders of a brisk west wind, and headed into the rising sun.

Both seemed confident and Hillig had apparently suffered no ill effects from a cold he contracted yesterday while aiding the crew of the Winnie Mae, which preceded the Liberty across the ocean.

"Don't let that wind di- down," was Hillig's parting shot.

Hoiriis was at the controls.

They had 3150 miles to travel before reaching Copenhagen and they expected to make the hop in 28 hours. Their monoplane carried 605 gallons of gasoline and 20 gallons of oil, sufficient fuel for 36 to 40 flying hours.

A gallon of water, a dozen oranges, coffee and bread—"plenty to last us 'till we ge: there"—comprised their provisions.

The weather was suspicious. The last report they saw gave them clear skies on both sides of the Atlantic and reported a diminishing storm in mid-ocean.

Ed an Named Fall iver Police Head

Gov. Ely today appointed Owen L. Eagan of Fall River to be chairman of the board of police of that city, to take the place of Frederick W. Lawson. Lawson was first appointed to the position by Gov. Draper in 1909.

POST, GATTY IN GERMANY IN RECORD SEA HOP

BULLETIN!

Templehof Airfield, Berlin, June 24—Wiley Post and Harold F. Gatty, American round-the-world fliers, set their blue and white monoplane "Winnie Mae" down on the Templehof airfield here at 3:30 p. m., eastern daylight saving time, today, completing the second leg of their projected record-breaking flight around the world.

Rocketing through space at the fastest city established by any transatlantic plane to date, the fliers hopped here from Sealand Aerodrome, England, where they broke their transatlantic hop for fuel and refreshments. They paused briefly on theway by landing at Hanover.

Chester, Eng., June 24—The American airmen, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, safely crossed the Atlantic on the first leg of their round-the-world flight and landed at Sealand Royal Air Force Airdrome this morning, leaving 20 minutes later for Berlin.

There was a possibility they would not stop at the German capital, but would fly directly on to Moscow, 1625 miles from here.

The fliers took off from Harbor Grace yesterday afternoon and landed at the airdrome which is six miles from Chester at 8:45 a. m., Eastern daylight time, and took off for Berlin, which they had planned to make in a non-stop flight from Harbor Grace at 9:05, Eastern daylight time.

They made the 2000-mile crossing from Harbor Grace to Chester in 17 hours and 17 minutes, averaging about 117 miles an hour for the crossing.

The actual crossing from shore to shore of the Atlantic was 16 hours, 17 minutes, a record, although the landing in England took an additional hour.

The arrival of the American airmen on their round-the-world project was a startling surprise to the personnel of the airdrome, as no word had been received of their

IL DUCE'S NOTE FIRM AGAINST CLUBS, OFFERS NO APOLOGY

ITALY AGREES, HOWEVER, TO CONFERENCE

Mussolini Says He Still Waits for Vatican to Explain Slavish Acts

Rome, June 24 (AP)—In a reply to the recent note from the Holy See, Premier Mussolini today took a firm stand against the Catholic Action Clubs.

On excellent authority it was learned Il Duce's answer, delivered to the Vatican today, insisted the dissolved clubs were anti-Fascist and illegal, and that the premier saw "no reason to renew discussions on measures taken against the juvenile association."

The church, it was explained, had only itself to blame for violence incited by alleged Catholic political activity.

The demand for a formal apology which the Pope made and later modified somewhat, was met with the statement that a severe inquiry is proceeding regarding the insults to the Pope and damage to church property and "in the assurances of prosecution of the guilty," there is implied the idea that these occurrences are "deplored."

ACCEPTS PARLEY PLAN

The note declared Italy still waited to hear the Vatican "deplore" serious demonstrations in Jugoslavia allegedly authorized by church authorities, for which Italy asked the Vatican sometime ago.

"After these observations the note, it was learned, accepted the Holy See's proposal for "conversations to solve the controversy in a friendly manner."

Italy agreed with the Vatican that it was desirable to define more clearly Article 43 of the concordat authorizing Catholic Action which, it was pointed out, was the only article of the Lateran agreement in dispute.

PROTESTS POPE'S PLEA

The note, it was understood, emphasized that the activities of the clubs in nowise prejudiced interpretation of this article because the organizations dissolved were charged with activities against the state and therefore had placed themselves outside the protection of Article 43, which permitted Catholic action and its subsidiaries, but prohibited any interference in politics.

After receiving the note, Pope Pius told a group of pilgrims from Padua the circumstances were "do not point towards a return to normalcy."

The Pontiff urged the visitors to pray for betterment of "a painful situation" in which, he said, the Pope and the Holy See were not treated as they should be.

"Affairs are not in order," the Pope declared. "They are not normal and we even feel compelled to say that they do not point towards a return of normalcy.

"We have little faith in men, if, indeed, we can have any faith in man, but we have complete, profound and joyous faith in the aid of God and in prayer."

9 PLANES HAVE HOPPED ACROSS

New York, June 24 (AP)—Nine planes have crossed the North Atlantic non-stop from west to east blazing the trail for Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, who reached Europe today.

The first non-stop crossing of the North Atlantic by airplane was accomplished in 1919 by Capt. John Alcock and Lieut. Arthur W. Brown. Other successful west-east non-stop airplane crossings follow:

May, 1927—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

June, 1927—Admiral Richard E. Byrd, Bernt Balchen, Bert Acosta and George Noville.

Made About Same Time as First Ocean Fliers

New York, June 24 (AP)—On their jump across the Atlantic, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty made just about the same time as John Alcock and Arthur W. Brown, who in 1919 made the first non-stop flight across the ocean.

Alcock and Brown flew from St. Johns, N. F., to Clifden, Ireland, in 16 hours and 12 minutes. Post and Gatty flew a slightly longer distance, from Harbor Grace, N. F., to Chester, England, in 17 hours and 17 minutes.

Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd, Williams, Boyd, the French trio in the Yellow Bird, all traveled at about 100 miles an hour or less and took considerably longer to get from shore to shore than either the first or the latest Atlantic non-stoppers.

Atmee McPherson to Fight Tax Suit

Washington, June 24 (AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson was permitted today under an agreement between her attorneys and th government to continue her contest against paying an additional $17,486 of income taxes for 1927 and 1928.

The next step in the controversy will be conferences between Mrs. McPherson's attorneys and government representatives in an effort to reach a settlement without a trial.

a better way of educating, and a more satisfactory plan for examinations. If he succeeds, he will render great service.

Japan intimates that it will let Lindbergh fly over Japanese territory, with permission to land. Eventually, for the air-ocean, there will be a five or ten-mile limit above the earth. Over that limit, the air will be free to everybody.

That an individual or nation can own the air 540 miles up to the top of the air-ocean is as preposterous as the other notion that a man can own the earth down to the center.

Home of Mrs. Fuller's Parents Ransacked

Burglars last night ransacked the home of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Davenport, parents of Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, in Washington st., Medford, strewing the contents of drawers and linen chest through the house.

Mr. and Mrs. Davenport are out of the city. Mrs. Fuller, notified of the break, was expected to arrive from Rye, N. H., tomorrow to make a check of valuables to determine what is missing.

Scribner-Smith Wedding Tonight

At the Sacred Hearts church in Malden tonight Rev. Fr. S. J. Millard will unite in marriage Miss Marion Fletcher Scribner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner H. Scribner, and Gordon Forrest Smith, 87 Auburn st., Malden, son of William R. Smith of Braintree.

Mother, Trapped in Ravine, Sees Child Die in Her Arms

Newhall, Cal., June 24 (AP)—A mother, trapped in an isolated ravine 48 hours with her dying daughter, 12, as a result of a motor car accident, was in a hospital here today.

The mother, Mrs. Theodora Tourneur, 29, of Birmingham, Ala., watched her child die in her arms as of injuries and exposure a short time before a passing motorist heard her cries.

Tourneur, who reported she and her husband were driving separate machines, said her's was crowded over the embankment by another car. She suffered a fracture of one leg and other injuries.

Tourneur, in Frisco, Cal., said his belief that motor trouble had delayed his wife and daughter had caused delay in reporting their disappearance.

REGISTRAR JOB IS REJECTED

Col. George S. Penney of Brighton, chief of staff of the 26th Division and military instructor in Boston schools, today refused appointment as registrar of motor vehicles and found himself the cause of a long recess for the Governor's Council.

He declined after a lengthy talk with Gov. Ely and left with all the indications that he had been asked to reconsider.

Gov. Ely immediately went into conference wi hthe council and then announced a postponement of registrar until later in the day.

Col. Penny was one of the two who declined the $6200 post, the other being Frederick J. Dillon of the Governor's secretarial staff and former clerk in Suffolk Superior Court.

It was while backers of other candidates were discussing their chances that Col. Penny loomed as the "dark horse."

Prior to his appearance, reports continued that Capt. Charles T. Beaupre of the State police was to be offered the appointment.

Col. Penney would not comment on his conferences with Governor Ely, other than his statement that he had declined the appointment.

Cigarette Price Up 45 Cents a Thousand

New York, June 24 (AP)—Advances of 45 cents a thousand and in the wholesale prices of their popular brands of cigarettes were made today by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. and the American Tobacco Co. The increases brought the price to jobbers to $6.35 a thousand.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. also increased the wholesale price of its popular brands of cigarettes to $6.35 a thousand.

HOLE IS BURNED IN DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES

Small Section of Fabric Covering Is Destroyed on Big Blimp in Her Hangar

Lakehurst, N. J., June 24 (AP)—Fire today destroyed a small section of the fabric covering of the naval dirigible Los Angeles while she was in her hangar. The dirigible is inflated with helium, a non-inflammable gas.

The fire was started by a short circuit from electrical apparatus being installed on the dirigible.

When the fire was discovered a general alarm was sounded bringing out the station's entire fire force. The fire was extinguished in a few minutes.

It burned about 275 square feet of the aluminium painted silk covering on the port side, just aft of the rear motor gondola.

Commander A. H. Dresel said the damage was "slight."

WASHINGTON IS GLOOMY

Washington, June 24 (INS)—The American government marked time today, awaiting word from Paris as to whether the French government will or will not accept President Hoover's proposal for a year's suspension of all government war debts.

The initial optimism h ven way to a certain degree o ial pessimism. Instead of the favorable response which President Hoover and his advisers had expected to be given his proposal, there has come from Paris only objections and suggestions for modification.

These objections are expected to be incorporated in France's reply to the Hoover proposal, which may come today or tomorrow. Sufficient advices have already been received from Paris to convince Washington that the complete acquiesence of the French is still far off—and only to be secured by a material modification of the original Hoover plan, which the administration in truth is contemplating.

Everything thus far received from Paris indicates that the French reply will contend that she cannot entirely forego German reparations and that she will insist that Germany deposit in the Bank for International Settlements more than $100,000,000 during the time that President Hoover has suggested there be no collections at all.

No Relief for Year, Bruening Tells Nation

Berlin, June 24—In an impressive speech over the entire network of radio stations in Germany, Chancellor Bruening solemnly warned Germany against any idea that President Hoover's proposal would bring any relief in the next year and a half.

The chancellor at the same time made an earnest appeal to France, declaring that the German government would do everything possible to bring about an understanding between the two countries so essential to the peace and quiet of Europe.

MISS COLLETT WEDS TODAY

Greenwich, Ct., June 24—(AP)—The service of the Protestant Episcopal Church read by Rev. Frederick G. Budlong, late this afternoon, will unite in marriage Miss Glenna Collett, internationally known golfer and five-time national woman champion, and Edwin H. Vare, Jr., of Philadelphia.

It will be a simple wedding in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wallen in Fox Run Lane, with about 75 relatives and guests present. There will be no reception. Mrs. Wallen, herself a golfer, is one of the bride's closest friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Vare will leave on a short wedding trip and then go to their future home at Overbrook, Pa. Miss Collett will be attended by Miss Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., and George Vare, a brother, will be best man.

The bridegroom is a son of the late State Senator Vare of Philadelphia, and was graduated from University of Pennsylvania.

WOMAN CHAMPION WEDS

Glenna Collett, five times national woman champion golfer, and Edwin H. Vare, Jr., of Philadelphia, son of the late Senator Vare, are to be married today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wallen in Greenwich, Ct. This picture shows them at a recent golf tournament.

Fanny Aleicia, 15, of Decatur st., East Boston, killed today when struck by a train of the Narrow Gauge as she walked on the tracks with a companion near Wood Island.

GIRL KILLED ON NARROW GAUGE

A 15-year-old East Boston girl was killed today by an inbound Narrow Gauge train between Maverick st., East Boston, and Wood Island Park.

The victim, Miss Fanny Aleicia of Decatur st., was walking on the trestle with a companion, Catherine Buttiglieri, 15, of London st., East Boston. The Buttiglieri girl, walking in the lead, saw the approaching train and shouted to the Aleicia girl, who apparently failed to understand.

The train struck her, throwing her into the rocky bed of a dry stream. Her companion gained the safety of the embankment beyond the trestle.

Passengers carried the girl aboard the train, on which she was rushed to the East Boston Relief Station. She was pronounced dead on arrival.

RUBIO SLAYER IS TRIED ALONE

Ardmore, Okla., June 24 (AP)—Obtaining a severance, William E. (Bill) Guess, former deputy sheriff, accused of killing Emilio Cortes Rubio, cousin of the Mexican President, and his college chum, Manuel Gomez, went to trial alone for murder here today.

Prospective jurors were not questioned by the prosecution concerning their attitude toward the death penalty, indicating the death sentence would not be asked. Defense questions centered around whether the veniremen believed in "the law of self-defence."

Guess, who has taken full responsibility for the actual slaying on June 7, sat beside Cecil Crosby, another erstwhile deputy sheriff charged with the murders.

Guess testified at the preliminary hearing he killed Cortes Rubio and Gomez "because they pulled a gun on me."

CAPITAL WAITS FRENCH REPLY ON WAR DEBT

ton, who is expected to turn it over to the State Department late today. The contents will be given out Friday.

Usually well-informed quarters this afternoon stated that the French reply agrees with President Hoover that something must be done to aid Germany and thus Europe, but disagrees with the President's plan of carrying out the proposal.

The reply, it is understood, makes an effort to maintain the integrity of the Young plan and the unconditional reparations payments which France considers inviolable.

DOUBT ACCEPTANCE

The method suggested in order to arrive at this end is that Germany pay her unconditional payments to the Bank for International Settlements at Basel, which would turn back part of them in the form of short term loans to Germany and for the other creditors of Germany guaranteed under the Young plan.

The French government considers its reply fulfills the hopes of President Hoover. The question is raised here whether, in view of the French suggestions as to the method of carrying out the Hoover proposal, the reply will be so considered in Washington.

The Hoover proposal continued to receive acrid comment in extreme Right organs.

MINISTRY IS HOSTILE.

Official opposition to the American project was clearly demonstrated in a statement issued by the ministry of finance. Postponement for one year of payments on German reparations along with interallied war debts would mean a definite financial loss for France, the statement said, if no provision was made for the resumption of the Young plan at the end of that time.

The newspaper Le Temps, often officially inspired, said tonight: France could not flatly turn down the Hoover suggestion but it was inconceivable that the nation would give up the principle of unconditional reparations payments laid down in the Young plan.

Mussolini Accepts Hoover's Proposal

Rome, June 24 (AP)—Premier Mussolini today directed the Italian ambassador at Washington to inform the American government that he personally accepted in principle President Hoover's proposal for a one-year moratorium in inter-governmental debts but reserved the liberty of sending the United States "observations" on its application.

Italy's attitude remained strongly opposed to any objectionable international political activities as a result of a moratorium, but in view of Mr. Hoover's wish to have a simple, straightforward agreement the Italian answer will be simply expressed. Mussolini directed the Italian ambassador in Washington to deliver his acceptance to the American government.

"I beg of your excellency to communicate with the government of the United States of America that I have examined the proposal of President Hoover for total suspension of payment of debts among governments for one year," the premier said in his telegram.

"This proposal means an appreciable sacrifice for Italy, but after mature reflection I have decided to give it my cordial acceptance on principle, and later I will take the liberty of sending the American Government some of my observations intended for an application both equitable and practicable.

"I hope that the initiative of President Hoover, the high significance of which is perfectly understood by the Italian people, will open a period of more efficacious collaboration among the nations, too much more necessary at this moment of general difficulty and on the eve of the disarmament conference."

Snowden Opposes Conference Proposal

London, June 24 (AP)—Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons today that he thought this was a most unsuitable time for Great Britain to take the initiative in calling an international conference to discuss the whole question of international indebtedness.

The government was anxious to co-operate in giving President Hoover's proposal for a war debts and reparations suspension practical effect, he said.

"We must, first of all, settle the matter of President Hoover's proposal. If others should eventually develop so as to make an international conference desirable, no doubt that will be done."

The British government intends to offer its dominions the same concessions regarding suspension of war debt payments as is proposed in the case of foreign countries under the Hoover proposal.

Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, informed the House of Commons to this effect this afternoon, saying that it might involve the loss of £11,000,000 ($55,000,000) to Great Britain.

Dr. Stearns Not to Resign at Andover

Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, principal of Phillips Andover Academy, in a statement to the Boston Evening American today, denied a report that he was to resign the headmastership of the famous old school.

"I am absolutely not going to resign," he said. "There is no friction of any kind whatsoever, and the only basis for such a rumor that I can see is that I have been moving some of my things to Phillips Inn, where I am to reside. Probably somebody thought that I meant I was getting through, but it means nothing of the kind."

Finding of Body Ends Sister's Vigil

Sharon, June 24—Since last Friday afternoon Harriett Barber, 15, of Pawtucket, R. I., has been watching the waters of Lake Massapoag for the body of her brother James, who was drowned.

Today, the sixth, since the youth lost his life his body floated to the surface almost at the feet of his sister. Her screams were answered by George Harwell who was swimming in the lake. Harwell procured a boat and brought the body ashore.

STARR'S NOTES ARE FORGED, EXPERT SAYS

Finds They Are Not Written in Same Hand as Entries in Her Diary

By JOHN H. NOONAN
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

New York, June 24—The "suicide" letters of beautiful, exotic Starr Faithfull were branded forgeries today by J. V. Haring, a handwriting expert, who compared them with samples of the penmanship of the Greenwich Village playgirl.

Haring stated as his positive opinion that the letters, supposedly written to Dr. G. Jameson-Carr by the beauty, shortly before her mysterious death at Long Beach, L. I., were not written by the same hand which made the entries in the girl's memory book.

Of the last letter, postmarked June 4, the day before Starr vanished, the expert said:

"The note also shows a uniformity and a nicety which is inconsistent with the state of mind of a person contemplating such a violent act as suicide."

Did a plot against Starr's life receive its finishing touches on that day and come to fruition on the next?

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

Other important developments today were:

1—More excerpts from the party girl's amazing love diary revealed to the Boston Evening American.

2—Dist.-Atty. Elvin Edwards of Nassau county submits the letters to other experts. Whatever their final decision, the probe will continue, because other facts must be explained, he says.

3—Announcement that the next session of the grand jury, Friday, will be followed by a statement from Edwards who is expected to reveal all details of Starr's last party and the names of her companions.

4—Veiled hint that the investigation of this party, said to have been attended by at least two men and one girl besides Starr, may lead to an arrest.

"The letters in themselves are not enough to close this investigation," said Dist. Atty. Edwards.

MUCH TO EXPLAIN

"We have other hard, cold facts which must be thoroughly sifted. Things remain to be explained. The details of the closing hours of this girl's life must be pieced together into a logical story.

"I think that in time we will have enough concrete material to make a complete statement to the public."

Inspector Harold R. King likewise said today he was still unconvinced the girl's death at Long Beach was suicidal, while Stanley E. Faithfull, her stepfather, asserted:

"I positively state the letters are forgeries."

WEALTHY UNCLE WOULD HAVE AIDED HIM

Assistant Treasurer Is Held in $50,000 Bonds for the Alleged Theft of $75,000

Once slated to be president of the bank, George H. Gray, assistant treasurer of the Sumner Savings Bank, East Boston, was held in $50,000 bail when arraigned today in East Boston Court, charged with embezzling $75,000 from the institution.

"He had every chance in the world," said an official of the bank today, when the alleged embezzler's grief-stricken uncle, George W. Hargrave, could not bring himself to talk of his nephew.

"It was a terrible blow to think that young George would do such a thing. We brought him up here, taught him the business and had him slated to be president some day—then this terrible thing happened.

UNCLE IS HEART-BROKEN

"If he had brought in bills for any amount, his uncle would have advanced him the money, and young George could have straightened things out at his leisure. Mr. Hargrave is heart-broken."

The assistant treasurer, an employe of the bank for 15 years, waived examination and was taken back to Charles st. jail after Judge Joseph H. Barnes had fixed the amount of bail, which was not forthcoming.

Gray, who was trapped, officials said, when a new bookkeeping system was installed, made a full confession of his defalcations at the bank commissioner's offices yesterday and then surrendered to Dist. Atty. Foley.

THEFTS TOTAL $75,000.

Bank Commissioner Guy revealed that Gray had admitted taking money from the deposits over a period of 15 years and in all had taken $75,000. Bank examiners and officials were deceived by a double set of depositors' cards with the fake ones being substituted when an audit was to be made, it was revealed.

High living was blamed for his downfall by Gray, it was learned. Officials say he admitted taking sums ranging from $20 to $100 every week over the 15-year period.

Bank Commissioner Guy said his examiners are still checking the books of the bank. He stated that Gray was bonded for $25,000 and that the bank has a surplus of at least $300,000 and would not be affected by the embezzlement.

Gray, who made his home at 116 Washington st., Brighton, was lodged in city prison last night in lieu of $50,000 bail.

'MISTREATED? I'M THE ONE'

SECOND FIRE IN SALEM PLANT

The second fire in two days in the abandoned plant of the Tidewater Leather Company, near the yards of the Boston & Maine Railroad in Salem, today reduced to a shell the last of the plant's group of six buildings.

An automatic sprinkler system in the building prevented the blaze from destroying the building completely before the arrival of fire apparatus.

Yesterday's blaze, which endangered large gasoline storage tanks nearby, destroyed the plant's other five structures. According to Alfred Auger, who discovered the blaze yesterday, the outbreak of flames was preceded by a muffled explosion.

Police and fire authorities were investigating the possibility both fires may have resulted from fireworks exploded in the buildings by children.

The plant, according to official estimates, would cost nearly $250,000 to rebuild. None of the property was insured.

WEBSTER SAYS HE DIDN'T HIDE

Lowell, June 24—Ray F. Webster, defendant in a "spendthrift" suit brought in Probate court here by his wife, Mrs. Lillian Webster, hid from process servers who sought him last December to serve papers in the suit, his wife said in court today.

Webster, owner of a chain of drugstores in Lowell, denied a made any attempt to evade the officers.

"I was in town when the officers were said to be looking for me, and could have been located any time at one or another of my stores," he declared.

Mrs. Webster's petition asks the appointment of a conservator for her husband, charging him with squandering large sums of money on other women.

Worker Saves Girl Caught in Machine

Quick action of a fellow-worker saved the life of Carrie Leone, 19, today in the plant of the Century Shoe Co., Oxford st., Lynn, after Miss Leone's dress was torn off by a machine. Miss Leone, who lives at 8 Clark st., Swampscott, leaned over the machine and her sleeve caught in the gears.

Seeing her plight, Morris Cohen leaped for the emergency shutoff and brought the machine to a stop.

9 MONTHS FOR FARM THEFT

Brockton, June 24—A nine months' sentence in the Plymouth House of Correction was imposed upon Fred E. Standish by Judge Frederick G. MacLeod for his part in the theft of $1206.25 worth of hay and potatoes from the Bridgewater State Farm.

Standish, former officer at the farm, pleaded guilty to charges of larceny in Plymouth County Superior Court last Monday, after he had been on trial for three days.

Before imposing sentence Judge MacLeod said:

"I am convinced that this defendant was only a tool for Charles O. Rearse, who has been previously sentenced for his part."

$80,000 IN LOST WALLET FOUND

Dr. Victor A. Fitzgerald, a dentist, at present living in the Hotel Manger, can thank the honesty of Thomas Fay, a watchman, employed at 104 Gardner rd., Brookline, for the return of a billfold which contained cash, checks and securities valued at over $80,000.

Fitzgerald reported to Back Bay police early today that he had lost the billfold while visiting friends in Brookline. He said it contained two checks having a value of $9,070; two stock certificates, valued at $50,000; a note for $12,500; a certificate of deposit for $10,000 and $100 in cash.

Fay found the billfold in Gardner rd. and turned it over to Sergt. Joseph Mahoney of the Brookline police.

WHERE 8 WERE INJURED AT ROXBURY FIRE

WIRE PERILS 2 WOMEN, CHILD

Two women, one a convalescent, and a 5-year-old child narrowly escaped injury today when a large truck struck and a broke a trolley wire at Eustis and Washington sts.

As the wire snapped several explosions followed. The wire struck a sedan operated by Mrs. Anna B. Dutton of Pevear pl., Roxbury. With her was Mrs. Ida Dutton and Estelle Dutton, the former just out of the hospital.

The sputtering wire burned a large hole in the top of the car, but the three occupants were able to get out without injury.

The explosions attracted a large crowd. Police on duty at the spot were reinforced by reserves from Divisions 9 and 10.

Traffic on the Massachusetts station, Dudley st. and City Point-Dudley st. lines was tied up for some time. The Elevated transferred passengers to buses to and from these points.

Traffic was completely tied up between Dudley and Northampton sts. for 15 minutes.

28 'WHOOPEE' IN GRAVEYARD

A graveyard "whoopee" party brought the arrest of four men and four women in Saugus early today.

The eight were singing and dancing in the street side of Riverside cemetery, police said, when they arrived in answer to calls of sleepy residents.

Sighting Capt. John Stuart and Patrolman Timothy Beanon, the party started away in an automobile, but were halted soon after.

Gasper W. Perch, 27, of Shepard st., Lynn, was charged with operating under the influence of liquor and faced Lynn court today.

The others were Ernest H. Smith, 32, and Francis L. Barton, both of Collins ave., Saugus; John A. Maxwell, 33, of Camden st., Roxbury; Miss Gladys Smith, 21, of Cunard st.; Mrs. Bernice Smith, 30, of Tremont st.; Miss Dora Simmons, 19, and Mrs. Thelma Nabors, 20, of Northampton st., all South End. They will appear in Saugus court Saturday on charges of drunkenness.

PLOT TO KILL IN COURT FOILED

New York, June 24 (AP)—Defense counsel attempted unsuccessfully today to have the jury trying Harry Stein and Samuel Greenberg for the murder of Vivian Gordon, Broadway moth, discharged on the grounds his clients' interests were endangered by remarks of the district-attorney and the court.

A report was circulated in the courtroom that Dave Betterman, a witness, would be murdered when he took the stand for the State. Soon after the rumor spread two spectators were escorted out of the building and the police guard was increased.

2 Fish Warriors Freed From Jail

Newport R. I., June 24 (AP)—Ernest and Lester Coggeshall, principals in a fish trap war in progress here for two years, were released from jail today. They served sentences for contempt of court.

Through counsel, the brothers said they would not again violate court orders. They were arrested after they refused to appear in court.

Medford Boy Hit by Auto; in Hospital

Anthony Scalia, 9, of 156 Middlesex ave., Medford, today was struck by the automobile of Arthur A. Smith, Crescent ave., Malden, as the boy ran from the curbing in Middlesex ave.

At Lawrence Memorial Hospital three stitches were taken to close a cut in the boy's head.

FOUR CHILDREN WRECK AUTO

Four small children wrecked an automobile in Lynn today and narrowly escaped death themselves as the result of a prank.

They were playing in the parked automobile of Joseph Gondolfo of Johnson st., that was parked on Euclid ave., Lynn.

One of the quartet, ranging in ages from 8 to 12 years, released the emergency brake and the auto plunged over a 30-foot cliff.

The children managed to jump

THE END OF A GAY CAREER

POLICE LIEUT. DALEY GEORGE H. GRAY

A $30-a-week bank official reached the end of the primrose path today when George H. Gray, 39, was led by Lieut. James Daley to Charles street jail today in default of $50,000 bail. He is charged with theft of $75,000 from the Sumner Savings Bank, East Boston, of which he was assistant treasurer. He said his love for wine, women and song caused him to steal the money over a period of 15 years. (Staff photo.)

VANDERBILTS IN FINISH FIGHT

Reno, June 24 (AP)—The Cornelius Vanderbilts, Jr., were squared away today for what may develop into a battle to the finish in the Reno divorce courts.

After their separation and the filing of a divorce complaint by Mr. Vanderbilt last week, his wife filed her answer yesterday, denying his allegations of cruelty and asking that she, and not her husband, be granted a decree on those grounds. Mr. Vanderbilt has 10 days in which to reply.

ASKS ALIMONY

Samuel Platt, his attorney, has not announced whether the young writer will consent to presentation of the decree to his wife or make a contest of it.

When Vanderbilt brought suit against his first wife in 1927 the question of who was to get the divorce was decided out of court and Rachel Littleton Vanderbilt won the decree without a fight.

Mrs. Vanderbilt estimated her husband's monthly income at more than $2000 in the answer and cross-bill and asked for the arrangement of temporary and permanent alimony.

VANDERBILT SILENT.

The complaint's allegations of cruelty were not specific. Vanderbilt refused to comment.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was not in the city when the action was filed, having left for Lake Tahoe for an overnight stay shortly after a conference with her attorney, William Woodburn.

Neither of the Vanderbilts mentioned in their suits the man over whom they were supposed to have quarreled—Peter Arno, popular caricaturist whom Mr. Vanderbilt accused of having paid undue attention to his wife.

NOTES BARED LOVE FOR CARR

"If you want anything, go get it yourself. Get it, damn it, get it!"

"Now depressed, how distracted I am today, how desperately in love I am with H. M. If he were single, I would be the happiest girl alive. I love him, love him, love him."

The initials, according to officials, apparently refer to Howard Miller, second officer on the liner California, on which Starr cruised in 1927.

MUCH DEPRESSED

The next entry is dated August 28, 1927:

"Am I depressed today! Beastly fatigue. Going to begin dieting to keep thin"

Then the next day:

"Began a diet today. How I wish my dreams would come true. How I love him, love him, love him."

An entry made, it is believed, soon after her Mediterranean cruise, reads:

Next the girl wrote:

"—— is a fool. He is crazy. They are all crazy. How I hate them."

After New Year's there is another reference to receipt of money by her mother:

WRITES OF ARTIST

An entry believed to refer to a legacy received by Mrs. Faithfull, who is related to Boston society families, read as follows:

"Mother got $60,000 from J. D. Z. J. That will make her happy."

The entries continue:

"Tucker (her sister) has a new freck. Very lovely. Oh, ——."

"Mother has been to see —— —— (an artist)."

"How I thrilled when he (the same man) held my hand, and his actions during the evening were wonderful. I really liked it. I honestly enjoyed it."

"When I told mother about —— (the same artist), she said: 'You are a brave, brave girl.'

"I am depressed today. —— it."

Referring once more to the artist, she writes:

"Saw —— again. Oh, how I love him."

Depressed again, she writes:

"Another day of depression. Blue Monday."

"Saw —— again. I love him. I love him, poignantly, desperately love him."

Decision to submit the final letters of the girl to experts was made by the Nassau County district attorney after another long period of questioning of Faithfull. Edwards said:

"Because of the peculiar light now put upon the case by Stanley Faithfull stating that the letters were forgeries, I deem it my duty to call in handwriting experts to definitely determine whether or not the writing in the letters is that of Starr."

The three letters, addressed to Dr. G. Jamason Carr, Cunard line surgeon, and, which the stepfather stoutly maintains did not come from Starr, were turned over to the Nassau grand jury by the imperturbable Scotch doctor late yesterday afternoon. The two letters, not previously published, were made public by Dist. Atty. Edwards last night.

The first of these messages was written on Lord & Taylor stationery and dated June 4. In it the girl revealed her decision that life held nothing for her and disclosed that her only fear was that she might be outwitted in her determination to kill herself.

TIRED OF LIFE

The message read as follows:

"Hello Bill, old thing:

"It is all up with me now. This is something that I am going to put through. The only thing that bothers me about it, the only thing I dread, is being outwitted and prevented from doing this—which is the only possible thing for me to do. When one wants to get away with murder, one has to jolly well keep one's wits about one. It is the same way with suicide. If I don't watch out I will wake up in a psypopathic ward, but I intend to watch out and accomplish my end this time. No ether, veronal or window jumping. I don't want to be maimed.

"I want oblivion. If there is an after life it would be a dirty trick, but I am sure a million priests are wrong. That is one of those things that one knows. Nothing makes any difference now.

"I love to eat and can have one delicious meal with no worry over gaining. I adore music and I am going to hear some good music. I believe I love music more than anything. I am going to drink so slowly keeping aware of every second. Also I am going to enjoy my last cigarette. I won't worry because men flirt with me in the street.

"I shall encourage them. I don't care who they are.

POSED AS CLEVER

"It's a great life when one has 24 hours to live. I can be rude to people. I can tell them that they are too fat, or that I don't like their clothes, and I don't have to dread being a lonely old woman or poverty, obscurity or boredom.

"I don't have to dread living on without seeing you or hearing rumors such as 'the women all fall for him,' and 'He entertained charmingly.' Why in the hell shouldn't you? But it's more than I can cope with.

"I have tried to pose as clever and intellectual, thereby to attract you but it was not successful and I could not go on writing those long studied letters. I don't have to worry because there are no words in which to describe this feeling I have for you. The words love, adore, worship, have become meaningless—there is nothing I can do but what I am going to do. I shall never see you again. That is extraordinary, although I cannot comprehend is any more than I can comprehend the words—'Always' or 'time.' They produce a very merciful numbness.

(signed) "Starr"

The second message revealed by Dist. Atty. Edwards last night was written on Hotel Plaza stationery and was undated. It bore a June 2 postmark and read as follows:

"I am going (definitely now)—have been thinking of it for a long time to end my worth-less, disordered, here of an existence—before I ruin any one else's life as well. I certainly have made a sordid, fruitless mess of it all, no one's fault but my own. I am dead, dead sick of it. It is hate everything so. Life is so horrible.

FOUGHT TO FORGET

"Being a sane person you may not understand. I take dope to forget and drink to try and like people, but it is of no use. I am mad, insane over you. I hold my breath to try to understand it, take veronal in the hope of waking happier, but that homesick feeling never leaves me. I have, strangely enough, more of a feeling of peace, or whatever you call it. Now that I know it will soon be over. The half hour before I die will, I imagine, be quite blissful.

"You promised to come and see me. I realize absolutely that it will be the one and only time. There is no earthly reason why you should come. If you do, it will be what I call an act of marvelous generosity and kindness. What I did yesterday was very horrible. Although I don't see how you could lose your job, as it must have been clearly seen what a nuisance you thought me.

"If I don't see you again, goodbye. Sorry to so lose all sense of humor, but I am suffering so that all I want is to have it over with. It's become a hell such as I couldn't have imagined. If you come to see me you will be a sport. You are assured by this letter of no more bother from me, my dear.

(signed) "Starr"

It was disclosed that Mrs. Helen McGregor Faithfull, in a letter, had sought the doctor's medical intervention in her daughter's life, much as she had once endeavored to have an artist become the confidante of Starr and thus direct her headlong course along normal channels.

2 DEAD, 4 HURT IN HOTEL FIRE

North River, N. Y., June 24 (AP)—Two guests were burned to death and four others injured in a fire which destroyed Thirteenth Lake Hotel at Thirteenth Lake in the Adirondacks today.

The dead are E. O. Weiss, 59, a New York city druggist; Paul Owen, 12, of Rotterdam.

The injured were taken to a hospital in Glen Falls. They were hurt leaping from windows. Three others escaped without injury from the wooden structure.

Antelopes to Have $47,000 Home at Franklin Park

Mayor Curley approved a contract of the park department for the construction of an antelope house at Franklin Park by R. A. Rossi Co. of Dorchester, at a cost of $47,000. This is $1400 more than the amount of the lowest bid, but park department officials recommended that the best interests of the city would be served by awarding the contract to the Rossi Company as it has done much work previously in a satisfactory manner for the city. The work will be done immediately.

PRADO URGED IN STRANDWAY

The construction of a "prado" along the Strandway, South Boston, similar to that in Havana, is advocated by Mayor Curley in a letter today to Frederic H. Fay, chairman of the City Planning Board.

Such a "prado" with terrazo flooring and proper fencing would cost $250,000 in the opinion of the mayor, who said its installation would enhance the beauty of the Strandway.

The mayor said it is almost impossible to grow trees and grass along the Strandway and he believes the construction of an attractive "prado" containing many seats would be a wonderful thing for the people of the city.

The "prado" in Havana was built a dump, the mayor said.

In 30 days to have a proper place for Calvin Coolidge when President to walk when he visited the city. The site of the "prado" there was near approach except an unconfirmed report that their plane had been seen over Bangor, Wales, turning eastward after circling the town twice.

The crew of the Winnie Mae looked none the worse for their long flight across the Atlantic. They took turn around the airdrome to stretch their legs, had a bite to eat, obtained weather reports and climbed into their monoplane and started off, probably for Berlin.

The Americans said they were about 80 miles off their direct course to Berlin and landed to get their bearings. They still had some gasoline in their tanks, but refilled before leaving.

They had about 700 miles to make between Chester and Berlin.

GET ROYAL GREETING

"Hello, England, we've done it," said Gatty when their machine came to a standstill at the Sealand Airdrome, after a flight of a little more than 17 hours.

As soon as the identification numbers of the machine had been checked, Royal Air Force pilots and the ground staff rushed from the hangar to greet the fliers, who had nonchalantly left New York City yesterday, barely turned around at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, and then hopped over the Atlantic.

As they stepped from their machine to be greeted cordially by the British Airmen, Post said:

"We had a right good flight. It has been a splendid trip throughout. In truth it has been a real joy trip. The only difficulty we experienced was over a period of three or four hours during the early stages of the flight when we ran into bad weather.

"The rest of the journey was enjoyable and the sea was calm. We are now well ahead of our time and are off for Moscow via Berlin.

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE.

"When the machine came to a standstill, we were surprised to learn we were at a royal air force station in England. Conditions, as soon as we reached Ireland, were not as good as when we were over the Atlantic. There was fog and rain, but I suppose we shall encounter plenty of that before we reach our goal.

"We set out to fly the Atlantic in 18 hours and we have done it in less, so naturally we are delighted. The machine had given no trouble and we are confident we shall succeed in our effort."

Declaring that they were out to break all records for a flight around the world, Post said that they were anxious to reach Moscow by tomorrow and that no time could be wasted.

If their fuel held out, he added, they might not even halt at Berlin which is 700 miles from Chester. The flight from Berlin to Moscow is 923 miles.

Their machine was refueled to capacity while they were here.

THEY'RE OFF AGAIN!

The Americans were taken to the Royal Air Force mess where they lunched while their plane was being refueled. They seemed anxious to resume their flight without any delay and after carefully inspecting the machine, the Winnie Mae jumped into it, rose into the air and sped southwards.

With them went rounds of cheers from the staff of the airdrome and townspeople who had flocked there as soon as word of their landing was known.

The itinerary mapped out by Post and Gatty did not call for a descent in England.

They had planned to continue straight on to Berlin, reaching the German capital in 20 hours after the takeoff.

It was the great speed of their powerful plane that enabled Post and Gatty to put this great expanse of water behind them in the space of a single night. The flight was made at an approximate speed of 150 miles an hour.

Banking on this high cruising speed, Post and Gatty hope to encircle the globe in 10 days, sweeping across Europe, Siberia, Alaska and Canada, a total distance of approximately 15,000 miles.

The time of the landing, however, divulged an almost time-table accuracy. Had they continued without landing, they probably would have succeeded in reaching Berlin in close to the 20 hours they had mapped out for the flight.

Wife of World Flier Happy Husband Safe

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 24 (AP)—The first question of Mrs. Wiley Post, wife of the round-the-world flier, when informed of the landing of her husband at Chester, England, was:

"Are they safe?"

"I think it's grand," she said. "I knew they would do it."

Gordon Post, brother of Wiley Post, expressed surprise when informed of the fliers' landing at Chester, England.

"I hope they are all right, but I am sorry they didn't reach Berlin."

"Isn't that wonderful?" said Leslie Fain, for whose wife the plane was named Winnie Mae. "I have been flying that plane all night. It's sure a relief to know they're safe.

Mrs. Fain, daughter of F. C. Hall, backer of the flight, said:

"I never doubted that they would make it safely."

"Plane O. K. All Up to Us!" Said Fliers at the Hopoff

Harbor Grace, N. F., June 24 (US)—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, seeking to halve the Graf Zeppelin's 21-day record for encircling the world, hopped off here yesterday on the second leg of their flight.

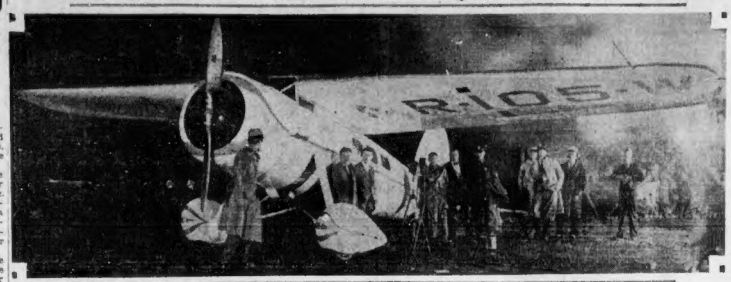
Arriving like a bolt from the blue in their speedy plane, Post and Gatty were in and out of Harbor Grace like the gale that was their escort.

Fog and rain ahead, the fliers said, made no difference. Post, who didn't mind questioning as much as his companion, said:

"We're too busy to talk. All we can say is that we've got the machine and the will to carry out our plans. We ought to be across the Atlantic in fast time. We made 166 miles an hour on the way from Roosevelt Field. The hoat is right up to the line, and if we can't take care of ourselves, nobody can."

Gatty, who taught Mrs. Anne Lindbergh to fly, is an Australian. He is recognized as an authority on air navigation. Post is one of the country's crack pilots. He is blind in one eye.

U. S. Fliers Blaze a New Sky 'Post Road' Across Atlantic in World Hop



BLAZED TRAIL ACROSS SEA

Here's the globe-girdling "Winnie Mae," in which Post and Gatty made their hop across the Atlantic, landing in England today. It is shown at Roosevelt Field, New York, at 3 o'clock in the morning yesterday, just before the hop to Harbor Grace. The fliers even then were waving a goodbye to the United States. (International Newsreel photos.)

NEW "POST ROAD" ACROSS OCEAN

Here's the route that Post and Gatty blazed from America to Europe. They flew the 2400 odd miles in 17 hours and 17 minutes and then hopped off again in a flight around the world.

"WELL, WE MADE THE FIRST TWO HOPS"

Wiley Post in his round-the-world monoplane, waving a "Goodbye, everybody!" just before the takeoff from Roosevelt Field. He and Gatty hopped to Harbor Grace, then to England, and kept on to Berlin after only 20 minutes' pause.

'SO GLAD!' SAYS MRS. GATTY

Los Angeles, June 24 (AP)—"Oh, I'm so glad!" said Mrs. Harold Gatty today when told dispatches reported her husband and Wiley Post had landed near Chester, England.

"There was no crack-up, was there?" was her first question. Then, "Oh, I'm so glad! At least they have reached the other side of the Atlantic and after all Berlin is not so far away.

Germans Eagerly Await Arrival of Ocean Fliers

Berlin, June 24 (AP)—The arrival of the American monoplane Winnie Mae, bearing Wiley Post and Harold Gatty across the Atlantic on their way around the world was eagerly awaited in Germany today.

Directors of the Lufthansa Airplane Company, Tempelhof Airdrome and the ministry of transportation co-operated to give the Oklahoma fliers a warm reception. They were not aware until this morning that Post and Gatty had taken off from Harbor Grace, N. F., and were kept busy answering calls.

Post Only One-Eyed Airman to Wing Over Atlantic

New York, June 24 (AP)—Three one-eyed pilots have attempted to fly across the Atlantic but Wiley Post is the only one to succeed.

In 1927 Francis Coll, who had but one eye, started from France to fly to America with Charles Nungesser. They were never seen again.

The next year Walter Hinchcliffe, another one-eyed flier, left England for America with the Hon. Elsie Mackay as a passenger. They also were lost at sea.

Flying men here knew nothing of the way in which Post lost the sight of one eye, but they said that as far as they knew he was the only one-eyed man now flying.

Ruth Nichols to Be Out in Few Days

St. John, N. B., June 24 (AP)—Ruth Nichols of New York, who was injured when she smashed her plane in landing here Monday, will probably be permitted to leave the hospital in a few days, physicians said today.

NAVY WILL HAVE 1000 PLANES BY JULY 1

Washington, June 24 (AP)—Busy days at the Anacostia Naval Air Station presage the end on Tuesday of the five-year aircraft program.

Six pilots of the flight test section and a corps of enlisted men are rushing to completion trials on experimental planes which must be accepted within the remaining week if existing funds are to be utilized.

The end of the five-year program means the navy will have 1000 useful airplanes on hand or on order after crash and obsolete wastages have been deducted.

The program was authorized in 1926 to give the navy, so far as aviation is concerned, nearly its proper development as compared with other powers in accordance with the 5-5-3 ratio of the conference on limitation of naval armament.

Latest to arrive for trials at the Anacostia station, which is naval aviation's flight test headquarters, is a tri-motored Marlin patrol boat on which initial work was begun today.

It is an advanced type of the long range plane being given great attention by the navy and is said to incorporate new features which will be held secret until tests have been completed.

Revere to Have Largest Bonfire

The largest bonfire in the State, according to Councillor T. U. Keiley and Revere Post, American Legion, will burn in Revere on the night before the Fourth, when 2500 railroad ties, 1000 barrels and boxes, all soaked with 500 gallons of oil, will be ignited.

A torchlight parade at 8.30 p. m. will precede the bonfire, and on the Fourth itself an elaborate program has been laid out in Revere and Beachmont.

STRIKERS BAR BERKMAN AND MURDOCK

Edith Berkman and William Murdock, organizers of the National Textile Workers and leaders in the Lawrence textile strike, were barred today at a meeting of the strikers of the Talbot Mills in Billerica.

On orders of the strikers themselves, Police Chief Henry D. Lavington and Billerica officers stopped at the door of Union Hall. Miss Berkman, "Red Flame" of the Lawrence disturbances, and Murdock, with the statement that only actual strikers were to be allowed in.

Miss Berkman and Murdock made no protest but departed quietly.

The strikers attending the meeting numbered approximately 150 and voted to have their executive committee confer with President Thomas Talbot Clark of the mills as early as possible.

Their grievance, as expressed at the orderly meeting, is the point system recently inaugurated by efficiency experts, a system which, it is claimed, reduces wages 4 cents an hour and requires more work by fewer employes.

The executive committee was instructed that the strikers wish to abolish the point system and be rid of the efficiency experts.

Big Debts Are Safety Valves

—By Arthur "Bugs" Baer—

Our national deficit is cooling off a little.

But we still are in the error column for $900,000,000. That's good.

We are glad to see our Government owe that much. It indicates that people trust us.

It's natural and normal to be in debt. And also invigorating. Because the more you owe the more your creditors pray for your continued good health.

What's $900,000,000. A mere bag of ciphers. And the further you are away from the decimal point the safer you are.

A government has it over the individual. A nation can owe that much money and still answer the telephone.

When an individual gets over three dollars in hock he has to pull up stakes or grow a beard.

When the doorbell rings he becomes a splendid case of suspended animation until he hears the footsteps receding.

So don't worry about America. That German financial holiday proves that when a debt gets big enough it automatically cancels itself.

POMP BANNED AT FAIRBANKS WEDDING

Chicago, June 24 (INS)—All the pomp and circumstance popularly supposed to attend an international marriage, particularly one by which the bride acquires a title, was to be missing from the wedding today of Edith Fairbanks and the Count Ruggero Visconti de Modrone.

The ecclesiastical law to which the Count subscribes decrees that the ceremony may not be performed in church, since the bride and bridegroom are of different faiths, so the nuptial service was to be read this afternoon in the drawing-room of the apartment of the bride's parents.

The bridal gown was to be elegantly plain, of ivory satin, with its tulle veil caught with orange blossoms. She is to carry a sheaf of calla lillies. Her young sister Cornelia, was to be her only attendant.

The Italian Consul General, Giuseppe Castruccio, was to be Count Visconti's best man. The Count and the new Countess were to embark Saturday for their home in Milan, close to the ancestral home of the Visconti family.

'It's a Bad Habit,' Says Woman Smoker at Age of 104

Norra Fjiele, Sweden, June 24 (INS)—An ardent pipe smoker at 104 years of age is Mrs. Karolina Andersson, perhaps Sweden's oldest inhabitant.

"It's a bad habit," she said on her recent birthday, "but I must have some amusement in my old age."

An enthusiastic reader of modern Swedish fiction, Mrs. Andersson ordinarily finishes a novel in one sitting. She celebrated her first century by making a long automobile trip through the Provinces of Vermland, and at the age of 95 she even took a spin in the sidecar of a motorcycle.

$4,000,000 SUIT ORDERED BACK TO BRITAIN

Banks of three nations were entangled today as $4,000,000 suit in Superior Court, where Judge Wilford D. Gray declined jurisdiction in favor of English courts.

John W. Davis, former ambassador to England and former Democratic candidate for President, appeared for the Midland Bank, Ltd. of London, Eng., in a suit against it by the Universay Adjustment Corporation of Boston to recover deposits in the Midland Bank, and by the Moscow Merchants Bank at the beginning of the Russian Revolution in 1917.

The case came into Massachusetts court because of trustee process against the First National Bank of Boston, the National Shawmut Bank and the Atlantic National Bank of Boston.

In declining jurisdiction, Judge Gray said that because of this process, the Massachusetts courts were entitled to exercise jurisdiction, but that, as a matter of comity, or international courtesy, he would decline jurisdiction in favor of courts where the $4,000,000 is located.

The Soviet government claims the deposit.

ANDREW BACKS HOOVER PLAN

Congressman A. Piatt Andrew of Gloucester today expressed his approval of President Hoover's proposal for a year's moratorium on the payment of war debts by European powers, with recommendation that it is understood that it is an emergency measure and implies no change in the Young plan.

Congressman Andrew has just returned from Europe, where he went to study economic and general conditions. His position in regard to the Presidents proposal was given in a telegram sent to Mr. Hoover in response to one the President sent to him on the subject. The telegram to President Hoover follows:

Having had an opportunity to observe present conditions in Europe from where I returned only yesterday, I am convinced that your proposal is constructive, and will help our own as well as the world's situation. I believe, however, that it should be made definitely clear to all countries concerned that the moratorium is an emergency measure for one year only, and that it implies no change in the terms of the Young plan, which will resume operation after the year's moratorium expires.

We owe much sacrifice, particularly to the people of France and Belgium, from whom the proposed moratorium requires large and unexpected sacrifices and increased taxes or loans second only to our own."

FULL PARDON IS GIVEN COADY

Former Police Lieut. Thomas F. Coady of Cambridge, paroled in February, 1930, from Rutland prison camp, by Governor Allen, was granted a full pardon today by Governor Ely and the executive council.

The former Cambridge police official was sentenced on December 22, 1927, to three to four years on a charge of threatening to accuse a person of crime, with intent to extort money.

With him, Motorcycle Officer Henry E. Pelletier of the Cambridge police was sentenced to three and a half to four years on the same charge.

The sentences grew out of a charge by Patsy D'Alessio of Cambridge, that Coady and Pelletier had solicited him for money after finding D'Alessio and a girl in a parked car on the shore of Fresh pond, Cambridge.

DANVERS DEATH TO BE PROBED

Danvers, June 24—Although Medical Examiner S. Tucker Chase of Peabody has declared John Gargalinos was the victim of a drowning accident and was not shot to death, Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg today ordered a further police investigation into the man's death.

The renewed investigation was but a few hours old when the body of Samuel Spinali, with whom Gargalinos had been fishing on Sunday, was washed ashore in Beverly.

Dist. Atty. Cregg inserted himself into the investigation of Gargalinos' death and immediately ordered the funeral scheduled for this afternoon halted.

Relatives of Gargalinos, despite today's autopsy, insist they saw two bullet wounds in the dead man's neck when his body was brought home. Medical Examiner Tucker said the holes in the man's neck were not caused by bullets.

Calls Wife to Witness Suicide

Brockton, June 24 (AP)—David H. Thompson, 46, of East Bridgewater, died at a hospital here today of a bullet wound, self-inflicted last night, after he had summoned his wife into his presence to witness the act. He had been unemployed.

MRS. HATHAWAY COLLAPSES AT DEATH TRIAL

The chances that the defense would rest its case today faded early during the morning session when an hour and a half was required to frame one hypothetical question for Dr. Hamilton to answer.

At the close of the morning session, with cross-examination of Dr. Hamilton about to start, Judge Charles A. Walsh notified the jury that beginning tomorrow court would start at 9:30 in the morning and run until 5 o'clock at night. Since two weeks ago Monday court has been sitting from 10 until 4. The judge indicated court also may sit Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Hathaway, mother of the defendant, was seized with dizzy spell when she arrived at the courthouse this morning and was assisted by State troopers to a rest room. She recovered quickly and took her usual place in the courtroom. She has missed only one day since the trial of her son began.

NEAR COLLAPSE

She arrived in an auto, accompanied by her husband, Rep. Louis E. Hathaway, Massachusetts legislator, and her son, Alden, Elliott's twin. As she stepped from the car she nearly collapsed.

Corporal Walter Walberg and Patrolman Leo Calis assisted her to the rest room.

She was pale when she entered court, but she smiled at the playboy and Hathaway returned the smile.

His ordeal on the witness stand ended, the defendant again assumed his serene attitude. He paid close attention to the testimony of Dr. Hamilton.

The Providence pathologist, under direct examination by George Hurley, director of the defense, first testified that it is necessary in cases of manual strangulation to grasp the larynx in such a manner that the cartilages would be brought together and held together for from one to three minutes.

FORCE REQUIRED

Much force, he said, is required and the force would result in injury to tissue and muscles and blood vessels, he testified in this case.

Hurley then began the framing of a ponderous hypothetical question, including the testimony given by all medical experts since the trial began, with the idea of gaining Dr. Hamilton's opinion as to whether death resulted from throttling or, as the defense claims, from Verna strangling on a dislodged two-tooth bridge.

When he concluded, Atty. Gen. Wyzanski and Asst. Atty.-Gen. Edward Day voiced objections, claiming that much medical testimony was hearsay.

Atty.-Gen. Wyzanski argued that there should be included in the question the jury testimony regarding Hathaway's flight and other evidence.

Atty. Hurley dryly remarked: "I hope the medical examiner did not take such evidence into consideration when he reported the cause of death."

FINALLY FRAMED

Judge Walsh ruled however, that certain important testimony had been omitted and himself mentioned Dr. George Burgess Magrath's testified opinion that if Verna had strangled on a foreign object that object would have been found in her windpipe or larynx.

Atty. Hurley amended his question and there were more objections. An hour and a half passed before the question was framed to the satisfaction of both defense and prosecution and Hurley then asked whether, from these things, Dr. Hamilton could give an opinion as to whether death was caused by manual strangulation.

The Attorney-General argued and was sustained that the defense must first inquire whether the doctor had an opinion as to what did cause death.

DEATH ACCIDENTAL

The jury was excused and Hurley argued his case. The jury returned and Hurley asked Dr. Hamilton what in his opinion had been the cause of death.

"Asphyxia," he said. "And as to what caused asphyxia." "Accidental strangulation," was the doctor's reply.

He enumerated at length his reasons for that opinion. Among them were claimed lack of evidence of a struggle and of a blow being struck, the finding of a string of pearl beads intact about the victim's throat.

SWEET FAVORS HOOVER'S NEW DEBT PLAN

"The year's suspension of war debts and reparation payments means everything imaginable to Europe, and in proposing such a movement President Hoover has not only placed the United States in a more favorable position than ever, but furthermore, in my opinion, has averted serious complications in the lands across the seas."

So said President George M. Sweet of the Studebaker Sales Company of Boston to the 150 Studebaker dealers, who at the Copley-Plaza yesterday at a complimentary luncheon signaling his return from an extended motor tour of Europe.

Mr. Sweet, while abroad, made an extensive survey of conditions in Europe, and put forth some interesting talk.

"Europe," said he, "is in a very serious condition, financially and otherwise, and the only thing that could avert serious complications was the suspension of these payments suggested by President Hoover.

"Everyone was waiting, watching and hoping something like this would occur. They felt that some thing of the kind was absolutely necessary to prevent civil wars in both Germany and Austria, while both Great Britain and France as well as other nations were deeply in need of encouragement and assistance such as this provides.

"We in this country cannot realize the unemployment situation that exists abroad. We think we are experiencing unfortunate conditions, whereas, our lot, hard though it may be, is a paradise compared with what I found abroad."

HONOR SWEET'S RETURN TO BOSTON

'EXTRAS' NOW PART OF CAR

One of the important advances in automobiles has been the addition, as integral parts of the engine, of what a few years ago were termed "extras." Today the purchaser of a new automobile rarely thinks of buying any device to improve the performance of a car, says R. C. Gilmer, district manager of Oldsmobile.

In his 1931 Oldsmobile there are a carburetor silencer, air cleaner, oil filter and gasoline strainer, any and all of which might have been listed as "extras" a few years ago. These units are integral parts of the engine, as scientifically designed and carefully manufactured as the most important working parts in the car.

These devices play an important part in car performance and length of life, Gilmer points out. The combination carburetor silencer and air cleaner effectively removes the objectionable power roar caused by air being sucked into the carburetor, and also prevents dirt, sand and other foreign matter from entering the engine through the carburetor intake.

FULLER DRIVES NEW PACKARD

Alvan T. Fuller, former governor, drove the new ninth series Packard runabout, which is now on display, back from Detroit. He and his son were in the group of New England dealers and salesmen who journeyed to Detroit to see the new ninth series Packard car. The chassis of the car was shown for the first time and a complete line of bodies was on display at the naval armory on Jefferson ave, Detroit.

The dealers and salesmen, with about 40 cars, went from Detroit to Buffalo on the boat, intending to drive the cars from Buffalo to Albany the first day and from Albany to Boston on the second. Mr. Fuller and his son enjoyed the trip so much that they came right through from Buffalo to Boston, only stopping a few minutes for lunch and dinner.

The former Governor described it as the finest automobile he ever rode in and was particularly enthused about its increased power, quick pickup and easy-riding qualities and above all things, the features that impressed the former Governor most, was the "ride control" system.

AUTO RADIO AID ON LONG TRIP

"What a comfort on a cross-country trip!"

This comment was voiced by Ray Priest, official A. A. A. observer aboard the Dodge Eight Mileage Marathon Car in referring to the Philco Transitone Auto Radio with which the car is equipped.

Priest's statement was made just after he, A. L. Peters and Harry Lane, drivers of the record-breaking car, had completed a jaunt of 10,000 miles throughout the West and Southwest as part of their attempt to build up an unheard of total of miles in a short time. The famous car started its first transcontinental trip last July 1 and in a year will have traveled nearly 100,000 miles.

"Driving through cities we have plenty to occupy our time," Priest continued. "But it is when we get between towns, especially out in the West where distances are very great, that the Transitone keeps us entertained and sometimes awake."

8 RUBBER TREES FOR ONE AUTO

"Tires are such common things these days that few people stop to think what a tremendous industry is behind them," recently remarked Guy D. Niles, district manager, Lee Rubber & Rubber Co., 75 Kneeland st. "But," he continued, "possibly I can make you think when I tell you that every car on the road is riding on the entire year's output of at least eight mature rubber trees! The average rubber tree produces only four to five pounds of rubber a year and passenger car tires contain on an average of eight to ten pounds of rubber, or the output of two trees!

"For instance, take the Lee of Conshohocken Tires. They are made from the highest quality crude rubber that is obtainable. Other crude materials of equally high quality and the most skilled workmen contribute their share in making every Lee Tire the best of its particular class."

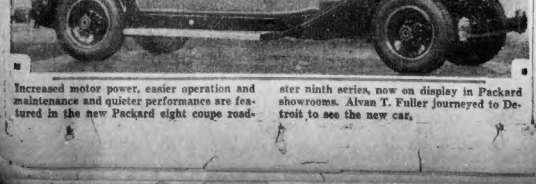
WILLYS HAS NEW RIDING FEATURE

While many things are necessary to provide to the riding comfort in a car, under all driving conditions, none is more important than its shock eliminator equipment, says J. C. Harvey, Willys-Knight distributor.

In the development of the current line of Willys Sixes, Willys Eights and Willys-Knight models the matter of shock eliminators was given unusual attention and after exhaustive tests and experiments the Monroe double acting hydraulic shock eliminators were adopted for all models.

The wisdom in selecting this equipment is evident in the reputation the 1931 Willys line has established for comfortable riding qualities with thousands of drivers. G. M.

NINTH SERIES PACKARD ON DISPLAY



Increased motor power, easier operation and maintenance and quieter performance are featured in the new Packard eight coupe roadster ninth series, now on display in Packard showrooms. Alvan T. Fuller journeyed to Detroit to see the new car.

Nash Motors Soon to Announce New Series of Cars

Widespread interest in the new series of motor cars, to be officially announced by the Nash Motor Company late this month, indicates that the public presentation of the attractive new cars will be one of the most successful events in Nash history.

It is understood that the new models will embody many important engineering advancements and refinements and will constitute one of the most important contributions yet made by the company toward increased luxury and pleasure in American motoring.

CHASSIS GIVEN TO SCHOOLS

Five cutaway chassis, used for demonstration and display purposes at the National Automobile Shows, were presented to the engineering departments of as many well-known technical schools last week by Plymouth Motor Corporation, according to an announcement made today.

The schools receiving these chassis include: Alabama Polytechnic Institute, Colorado Agricultural College, University of Missouri, Clemson Agricultural College and Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas.

Cutaway chassis are among the most expensive engineering displays developed by various automobile companies. The regular chassis of the model is cross-sectioned and cut at various angles in order to show the complete working arrangements of every part of the automobile from engine to axle.

MRS. HEARST IS HONORED

New York, June 24 (US)—A 50-pound birthday cake, baked by mothers of the East Side, will be presented to Mrs. William Randolph Hearst Thursday at an open air banquet celebrating the 10th anniversary of the founding of the Milk Fund.

Five hundred children will participate in a pageant at the affair in Hamilton Fish Park. Six of them will be chosen to carry the huge cake at the presentation ceremony.

Tables will be placed about the park fountains and hundreds of ferns will add to the natural beauty of the surroundings. Airplanes will shower flowers over the gathering which will include representatives of 500 organizations.

Mayor Walker announced that he will attend, and former Police Commissioner Grover Whalen will be toastmaster.

On the Air

Talks ride the crest of the air waves tonight. Various subjects, with sports predominating, will be discussed. Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champion, will tell what he intends to do to Young Stribling when they meet July 3, on a WJZ network at 9:30. WOMEN WIN FAVOR

Radio Popularity of Fair Sex Shows Increase

Male Voices No Longer Command Situation on Air Waves

An inquiry in the morning's mail asks "What makes men more popular than women on the air waves?" Getting right down to the task, however, perhaps it won't be so difficult to grapple with if tackled from the right angle. First of all, is it true that the fair sex are less popular than their opposites?

Perhaps it is not a matter of popularity at all. In other words, men were the pioneers of radio, as they have been in most every line of human endeavor. Yet the ladies never have been willing to sit back and witness masculine monopoly. Although radio is generally conceded to be one more field where men wear the medals, the real truth is that broadcasting, quite like anything else, would be thoroughly incomplete and ever so flat without the grace of feminine personality.

This bit is not written for the sole purpose of bowing low in any gesture of idolatry, but rather to remove a misconception, if there is such a thing. Awarding all of the high honors to men is not only unfair, but also unwarranted. A sweet feminine voice is every bit as appealing and welcome as the drone of its counterpart rising from the vocal depths of a male celebrity.

Getting back to that leading question, let the answer be that nothing makes men more popular than women in the realm of radio. There is no reason on earth why they should be—the brutes.

To the Ladies!

Assuming that there are ear cuppers out there ready to take issue with the foregoing, the following array of fair names are put up on a pedestal, where ladies and their names belong. Compare them with Rudy Vallee, Morton Downey, or who you will. Here they are: Ruth Etting, Kate Smith, Lily Pons, Belle Baker, Mary McCoy, Rosa Ponselle, Lorna Fantin, Dorothy Knapp, Lucille Wall (Love Story Girl), Evangeline Adams, Mary (of Mary and Bob), Lee Morse, Annette Hanshaw and ever so many more—but why go on?

Just three more to clinch the discussion. How about Marion Talley, Geraldine Farrar and Ann (at the organ) Leaf? Not a crooner among them, either. You're entirely welcome, girls!

Presto, Changeo, Something New!

Radio dramatics are quite different from stage plays, despite persistent comparisons by writers and producers. For instance, a stage play or a vaudeville act is permitted the priceless privilege of repetition, and even movies are acceptable six and seven nights a week—the same thing over again. Not so in the case of broadcasting. There must be change from day to day, no matter how prominent or talented the artist. Hence the word "continuity" has found real meaning with the growth of radio.

More than a few listeners keep asking about Mickey Alpert and his orchestra, among the most popular local broadcasting units not so long ago. Mickey has not been lost in the shuffle, no indeed. He may be heard nightly (WHDH) from 7 to 7:30 p. m.

On Again, Off Again . . . .

There was much excitement late yesterday. Telegraphing, long-distance and local telephoning all took place in connection with the special broadcast by NBC and CBS of a speech by Secretary of State Stimson. His address was to have been aired over both networks at 11 p. m. (WAAB and WEEI). A last-minute cancellation was decided on. Senator Pat Harrison, ranking Democrat of Mississippi, will discuss President Hoover's debt suspension plan over the CBS chain of stations on Friday night, it was announced.

English Town Wants No Railroad Station

Downe, England, June 24 (A)—Within 15 miles of London's Charing Cross, Downe has a lot of picturesque rural charm but no electricity, no gas, no buses, no movies and no sewers. A railroad runs through it and up to now the trains never hesitated. But a station is to be built and the inhabitants are disturbed.

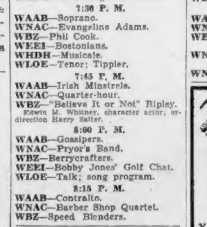
Had Awful Bearing Down Pains



"Better after First Bottle"

"After my little girl was born, I was in an awful condition. I had bearing down pains and had to lie down a great deal. I read what other women had to say about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"After taking the first bottle of your wonderful medicine I felt better right away. My pain is gone and the color is coming back.

"Every day I am getting stronger. I will answer all letters asking about this medicine"—Mrs. Gerald A. Ritchey, 1200 Johnson Ave., Pomeroy, Pennsylvania.

COLT AT SUSPECTED SCENE OF MURDERS

Chinese Sumach Tree From Which Leaf Clue Might Have Come Is Discovered—Also Signs of the Launching of a Boat

"THE MURDER OF THE CHOIR SINGER"
BY ANTHONY ABBOT

What Has Happened So Far

A rowboat containing the bodies of a minister and a good looking young woman is found drifting in the East River. Both have been shot and the woman's throat cut. Thatcher Colt, police commissioner, reaches the scene and orders the boat with its gruesome burden carried into the morgue. In the boat a cat with blood on its paws is caught. A ring and a wrist watch have been removed from the clergyman's hand, and in his pocket is found part of a love letter. Colt picks up a leaf from the bottom of the boat. District-Attorney Dougherty plans to question a man named Twistle, and his girl friend, who found the bodies. Impressions are made of the cat's paws. Colt learns from Ledrer, the City Forester, that a tree containing leaves of the type found in the boat is located at Sangster Terrace and starts for the spot at once.

Now Go On With the Story

NEIL HEADED back to First ave. and we rolled southward at a pace permitted only to a police commissioner when he is in a great hurry.

Very quickly we were in the contradictory region when an abattoir lifts its own peculiar incense in the face of the Pan-Hellenic skyscraper; a region where squalid red and brown brick tenements exist cheek by jowl with costly, new co-operative apartments, a mingling of mean stationery stores and haughty beauty parlors.

Towering above this strange commingling is the the immense steel gray lacery of the Queensborough Bridge. Strong and graceful, it lifts its span above all the pomp and poverty.

Beneath the gallant and mighty structure of this bridge was the settlement to which we had hastened—Sangster Terrace—which is so much like its companion settlement of Sutton Place, that it would be hard to tell them apart.

THE WATCHMAN

Colt pointed across the street toward the dark line of houses.

"It is behind those dwellings," he informed me, "that we shall find the community lawn."

My heart beat faster. What might not be waiting for our discovery behind that dark facade of forsaken houses?

"Find the watchman, Neil," considered the Commissioner.

In a few minutes Colt's chauffeur returned, bringing with him a tall, gawky man with crew cut and an embarrassed crooked-tooth smile.

"This is Herman Kraus, the night watchman, Mr. Commissioner," announced Neil Mc-Mahon, slapping back as if he were guarding a prisoner. Kraus put his hands in his pockets and looked at Thatcher Colt defensively.

"Good evening, Kraus."

"Good evening, Mr. Colt. Any trouble?"

"Everything quiet round here tonight?"

"Sure. Just like it always is. Nearly everybody away until October."

"Do you have anything to do with keeping up the grounds?"

"Oh, sure I do. McPherson and I double up—every two weeks we change off—we both get a chance at day duty, so we both have to be gardeners."

"Oh, you are a gardner! Is there a Chinese sumach on your grounds."

Slowly and methodically, Thatcher Colt filled his pipe.

"Kraus, what time did you come on duty tonight?" he asked.

WAITING FOR NEWS

"About six o'clock. Why? Do you mind telling me?"

Colt lit his pipe.

"Suppose we prowl around your lawn for a while," he proposed. "I would like to take a look at your Chinese sumach. And Neil! There is a cigar store back at the corner — telephone downtown and ask if they have any news. Then join us, back of those houses."

A brief walk brought us to the open, park-like expanse at the rear of the block. Here, it seemed, was an abode of peace, with cedars smelling sweet as a grove in Lebanon.

We saw a wide stretch of beautifully kept grass, and many towering old trees whispering in the summer darkness.

"Where is the Chinese sumach?" Colt asked.

Without a word, Kraus led us noiselessly across the grass. He stopped at a clear place that was like a glade. It was near what would be the middle of the row of houses. Silently the watchman indicated with one hairy hand a low tree, with wide branches and thick foliage.

I heard Colt catch his breath. Even to my untutored eye there was plain that these leaves were like the one that he had found in the boat.

HE SPIES A CLUE

Colt knelt to the ground and relighted his pocket electric lamp. The yellow rays shuffled suddenly on the dewy lawn, then moved about erratically. Above that prowling light I noticed Colt's eager face, his eyes searching the ground. As I reached his side, he pointed to a long ridge in the grass.

"The boat was rested here," he said.

"Nobody had any boat around here," avowed Kraus, with skeptical emphasis.

Without replying Colt stood up and started off toward the edge of the slope. Hastening after him I was by his side as we clambered down the hill to a cement wall, before which grew a tall, well-tended hedge. He gave a whistle of disappointment.

"No chance to launch a boat here," he worried aloud.

The lap of the tidal strait waters, only a few feet below us, came distinctly to our ears. Colt's eyes were roaming in harried glances back and forth, up and down the face of the hedge. Then he gave a gasp of relief.

"Look, Tony!" he cried, leading the way. Hidden by the darkness, a gateway in the hedge had almost escaped his notice. He tried it, but it would not yield.

"I always keep that locked," proclaimed Kraus, who had overtaken us.

NUMBER THIRTEEN

Kraus sullenly obeyed. He seemed to regard all Colt's inquiries now as an indictment of his supervisory care. The gate being opened, we walked through it and found ourselves on a narrow footway skirting the shore in both directions. Beyond it were rocks and the river.

"So much I can understand," said Colt, turning quickly and retracing his steps through the gate and up the hill. "I am guessing, Tony—but I believe the murders were committed in one of these apparently empty houses. I believe the boat was built and kept hidden in the house. I believe boat and corpses were carried down to this shore and launched on the current."

"But how to find which house?"

"Remembering the charm on Evelyn's wrist, I have a feeling it might be Number Thirteen!"

By this time Kraus was again at our heels.

"Kraus," said Colt, "does any one of these householders own a cat?"

"Is one of them a Manx cat without a tail?"

"Oh, yes, sir—Issabel. Belongs to a couple that rents the seventh house from the south end."

"That," said Thatcher Colt, "is the house I wish to enter."

"That," flared Kraus, "is Number Thirteen. There's nobody home now, so you can't go in!"

The smell of an approaching thunder storm was in the air.

"But I must go in." protested Thatcher Colt mildly.

"Show me a warrant, signed by a judge, and I'll let you in, not before," declared Kraus, jingling his keys, his whole body slouched carelessly.

KRAUS OBDURATE

"Say, now listen——"

But Colt was at my elbow restrained me.

"Being listen carefully to what I am going to say, Kraus," he began quietly. "Your point of view is perfectly reasonable. It is loyal so these people you serve. And as a legal position it is unassailable."

"Well, then, what else——"

"On the other hand," pursued Colt serenely, "I am not sure that you have been so faithful to your trust as you make out."

"Look here, now——"

"Kraus, where were you when those murders were committed?"

As he asked this question Colt turned on his hand-light, flashed full into the night watchman's face.

"Murders?"

Kraus took two short steps backward, as if to stop himself from falling. His distended eyes, open mouth and visibly paling face were startling to witness.

"What murders are you talking about?" he faltered, after a long and painful silence.

"You came on duty at 6 o'clock," pressed Colt. "Some time later a man and a woman were murdered here. And do you mean to tell me you don't know anything about it?"

"I wasn't here! I wasn't here! I don't know anything about it! chattered Kraus. His long body was slightly shaken by this revelation. He seemed terrified.

"Why weren't you here?" Where were you?"

"I got a telegram—it said my wife was dying—she came quick to a hospital in Brooklyn. It was somebody's dirty, practical joke, but anybody would go when they get a telegram like——"

"Let me see the telegram."

GIRL WRITES STORY FOR POLA NEGRI'S COMEBACK

RKO-Pathe Buys Work of Hollywood Vacationer for Old Favorite

By HARRIET PARSONS

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, June 24—The story which will bring glamorous Pola Negri back to American movie fans has been chosen at last and there is a touch of romance connected with its selection. Its author is a little German girl named Thilde Forster, born in Poland like Negri, and, strangely enough, looking a little like Pola.

Harriet Parsons

Thilde Forster came to Hollywood about three weeks ago with nothing more important than a vacation in mind. She read that RKO-Pathe was having difficulty finding a story for Pola Negri. Having done a bit of writing before, she decided to try her hand. And while Hollywood's highest priced authors were scrambling to sell the studio ideas for Negri, little Miss Forster, practically unknown, sat herself down and penned a story so strikingly suited to the colorful Pola that the studio grabbed it immediately.

The title—for the moment at least—is "A Woman Commands." Story is laid in the Balkans and concerns a woman who becomes a queen. They tell me it has all the drama and passion that made Pola's early pictures such a box office smash. I have a hunch Hollywood won't let Thilde Forster go back to Germany for some time.

Radio Buys Story for Ricardo Cortez

In spite of the deadly lull that hangs over Hollywood at present plans are going ahead for fall production schedules. Radio has purchased "Home-Town Laughter," by John Reid Byers, with their black-haired boy, Ricardo Cortez, in mind. Carey Wilson is adapting "Home-Town Laughter," and it will probably replace "Dance, Gigolo, Dance," previously slated for Cortez. Keene Thompson's "The Net," also recently purchased by Radio, will have Mary Astor as its star.

If ever there was a perfect title for a gangster story it's "X Marks the Spot." Tiffany already owns a yarn with this title, by Edward Dean Sullivan, crack writer on gangsters, their habitat and habits. Now that the death knell of the gunmen sagas has been sounded, however, studio has had to change "X Marks the Spot" to a newspaper tale. Deadlines have rapidly succeeded dead men as the favorite means of creating suspense in the talkies. Florence Ryerson will have a new treatment and dialogue for "X Marks the Spot," retaining only the original title.

Heard and overheard about town: Dick and Jessica Barthelmess back in town with Dick's small daughter, Mary Hay Barthelmess. They will vacation at Malibu until fall when Dick starts his next picture for First National. Nearly broke Dick's heart when he had to send the little girl East to her mother, Mary Hay, for five months. He will have her with him for 18 months now. All Hollywood preparing to welcome Anna Q. Nilsson. Anna arrives July 7 from Sweden after a long rest which restored her to health. She will go straight to her house at Malibu. Alice Joyce hitting town next week for a vacation. Paramount taking up Clive Brook's option. Probably thanking their stars they didn't lose him along with Powell, Chatterton and Kay Francis in the Warner raid.

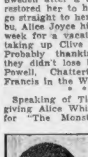
Speaking of Tiffany—they are giving Alice White a great cast for "The Monster Kills," the Scott Darling yarn which brings her back to the screen. Leslie Fenton, Aileen Pringle, Robert Elliott and Clara Blandick will support Alice. Fenton, the lad who chucked a promising talkie career to sail to southern seas, seems working himself back to it. You can't keep a good actor down.



Alice White

If the news gets any scarcer around these parts I'll have to turn this into a contributors' column and let you fans write it. Of course, I might help out by telling you how to cure housemaid's knee, make marshmallow delight of mattress cockroaches—if I knew myself. What with Warner Brothers First National ready to start on a six weeks' layoff, and General Manager Darryl Zanuck planning not to do any buying of stories or casting for another couple of weeks.

SNAPPY VAUDEVILLE IS THEIR MENU AT THE SCOLLAY

Seven big acts of vaudeville is the stage fare offered Scollay patrons this week. It is a bill of wide variety, with plenty of music and comedy. In addition, there is "The Vice Squad" on the screen.

Vera Kingston Tops Met Bill

Billed as "The Sweet Senorita," Miss Vera Kingston appears as one of the headliners in "Rio Rosa," Boris Petroff's stage revue which appears at the Metropolitan tomorrow, in conjunction with the feature talking picture, "I Take This Woman." Miss Kingston, still in her early twenties, has appeared in "Rio Rita," in Monterey," "A Night in Spain" and other stage productions. "Rio Rosa" presents also Bert Gordon, Theodore Kosloff and Novelle, Wilfred Du Bois and the Bobby Sanford Girls. Miss Kingston is proclaimed one of the most beautiful young women now playing the Paramount Publix theatres. She offers several Spanish melodies.

THINGS I LIKE TO LOOK BACK UPON IF THERE IS nothing to look forward to—of course, there is Peggy Read's wedding to Sam Batcheldor tomorrow, but after attending 57 varieties of marriage this month—and committing it twice for our own education—if we get a thrill out of Peggy's, it will be SOME wedding:

MARY EMERY

Elizabeth Sawyer, in a Parisian creation of lobster red in redingote style with white and red printed underdress, topped with a jaunty beret. Miss Sawyer has just returned from Europe, where she has been since March, returning only long enough to be in Kitty Burrage's brida' procession next Saturday, and will dash off again on the Berengaria, sailing on July 4, for a few months in England. She attended the races at Raceland and her friends were apparently very glad to see her. My, isn't she tall!

We also saw Mary Emery at Framingham, and we are glad she is out even if she will have to use the crutches for a while yet. You remember she was the unfortunate debutante who broke her leg at the Holy Roller skating party. There was also another unfortunate who went home that night with a broken nose—he fell down gracefully enough, but somebody came along at that moment and sat down on his face, busting the Grecian feature. Who he was or where he went we never have learned.

Anne Dick in Green Gown and Yellow Hat

ANNE DICK, LOOKING LIKE A LEMON-AND-LIME, cool and refreshing, at the Elkins-Weld wedding—long green dress with yellow hat. We hear that it is ill-luck to have two weddings in the same family during the same year—perhaps Sylvia had better wait until January 1.

ANOTHER MERRY LITTLE figure springs into our line of vision, Miss Dorothy Preston, daughter of Mrs. Harold G. Cutler, who, 'tis said, inherited seven million real dollars from her dear mother last winter. Dorothy always has the appearance of just hearing the latest joke and getting a good laugh out of it. She looked very attractive in a printed silk and was with her friend, Barbara Frost, at the steeplechases. Eating an apple every day and taking your orange juice in the morning (United Fruit stock) has certainly placed Dorothy among the eligibles, if she wasn't such a dear in her own right.

THE ARTHUR ROTCHES are at their country place, Lakeville, outside of Middleboro, where they have a large estate, several houses, as they have four daughters now, and many horses. And speaking of girls and horses reminds us of Foxcroft, that most fashionable girls' boarding school. When it was first started, the head mistress remarked, "Yes, we are complete, 40 girls in the school and 40 horses in the stable; you know it costs as much to keep a horse as it does a debutante daughter."

ON A RAINY EVENING around the dinner hour the Egyptian Room isn't a dismal place to devour cold salads and iced tea. Last night we dropped in by surprise, more or less, and under the twinkling stars, to the strains of a melodious orchestra, we danced. Waltzes, too. Quiet, dimmed lights, waiters slipping silently by, ice tinkling, figures swaying, awfully nice. And plenty of fresh air. Night clubs, as a rule, are so stuffy.

Yacht Club Dance

AFTER THE WEDDINGS ON Saturday, things will die down for a while. On July Fourth the Hamilton Horse Show on the American Legion Field at Hamilton will be held as usual. This is largely a family affair, the larger number of exhibitors being from around that vicinity and a great number of children ride in the various classes. Mr. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., heads the race committee and he will be assisted by Mr. George R. Small and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr.

THE YACHT CLUBS ARE commencing to run weekly dances and many boats are already in the water. Saturday night will be the first dance at the Corinthian Yacht Club at Marblehead Neck, and the Eastern have decided to run dances on Saturday nights instead of Thursday as has been their custom. The first dance will be the last of this month.

* * *

MISS POLLY PARKINSON of Charles River Village has been making a nice record in golfing. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Parkingson, came out in 1928-29 and is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club.

* * *

MISS FRANCES WILLIAMS will travel abroad this summer with her mother, Mrs. Ralph B. Williams, whose son recently married Peggy Creighton. The youngest son, Thomas Williams, will spend the summer in the West. Mrs. Williams has leased her Cohasset house.

IN SPITE OF A DELUGE OF weddings, there seems to be a drouth of social activities at the moment.

MISS SUSAN ANDERSON MOLLER BRIDE OF PAUL BROOKS TODAY

IN FRONT RANK OF HORSE SHOW ENTHUSIASTS

W. P. WOLCOTT MRS. ROGER WOLCOTT JOHN R. MACOMBER AUGUSTUS GOODWIN

Mr. William Prescott Wolcott and Mrs. Roger Wolcott were interested spectators at the steeplechases at Raceland Monday. The Wolcotts reside in Readville.

Mr. John R. Macomber, host for the day, and Mr. Augustus F. Goodwin, president of the Eastern Horse Club, Inc., confer on the favorites at Framingham.

Junior Leaguer Weds in Home at Milton

At noon today, Miss Susan Anderson Moller, daughter of Mr. Kenneth Moller of Adams st., Milton, became the bride of Mr. Paul Brooks of Cedarhurst, L. I. The ceremony at the Moller house was being followed by a reception to which many friends were invited.

Miss Moller had seven attendants including her two sisters, Mrs. Robert Sanderson (Elizabeth Sweetser Moller) as matron of honor, Miss Nancy Moller and their step-sister, Miss Peggy Bradley, daughter of the present Mrs. Moller; the other four were the Misses Josephine Lowell Sturgis, whose engagement has been announced recently to Mr. Albert Hall Harris, 2d, Rosamond Gardiner, Mary Thatcher and Mrs. Edward Sturgis, Jr. (Mary Eustis), sister-in-law of Miss Sturgis.

Mr. Brooks had his brother, Ernest Brooks, Jr., as best man, and as only the family and intimate friends were invited to the ceremony, there were no ushers. The bridegroom has just finished his senior year at Harvard and will take his bride to live in Cambridge when they return from their wedding trip.

Another wedding of interest today was that of Miss Barbara Spring and Mr. Albert E. Lowne at the Church of the Redeemer in Chestnut Hill. Miss Spring, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wheelock Spring of Newton Center, came out in the season of 1926-27 at a tea at The Country Club in Brookline, and is a member of the Junior League.

Mr. Lownes is the son of Mrs. Eugene A. Noble of Providence and was graduated with the class of '20 from Brown University.

It would seem that today is the day for a wedding as there was still another, that of Miss Lucy F. Dodge and Mr. Frederick B. Rice at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Graves of Lincoln.

Garden Frocks in Season's Picture

WITH THE growth of the garden instinct among American women, frocks to be worn in that connection come dancing into the limelight. Also occasions for wearing them crop up daily, since in summer daytime festivities are usually held outdoors. Chiffon is always a favorite of well-dressed women, and the charm of such frocks is enhanced by simplicity. Their sheerness and the lovely pastel colors of the season are sufficiently decorative qualities themselves.

A CAPE effect over the shoulders ends in fichu tie center front, and dips gracefully toward the back, its edge is marked by pleating. A belt of the chiffon has small buckle of brilliants. The yellow silk slip has a scalloped hemline.

THE HAT, a large capeline, is of lacy crin in pale beige, its crown bound in crushable yellow satin ribbon, knotted at back, and ending in wide loops and ends flat on brim. The necklace is of loops of chalk white beads, set in metal discs; the shoes, strap models of white kid; the gloves washable doeskin in a smart length; and the bag of fine yellow beads, posed on metal frame and chain.

THE PENALTY OF GRAY HAIR

Gray hair—age—slipping. All these unpleasant ideas seem to go together. Yet, it is not at all necessary. Gray Hair often comes to a young head and people who have it are neither old nor interested. But how often you hear people say, "Why, she has gray hair!" and—she is on the shelf.

This penalty need no longer handicap the woman who uses Canute Water. This is a clear, spring-like water, of wonderful properties which actually restore hair to its original girlhood color. No complicated "color plan"; no danger of getting brunette shade when your hair is blonde. Not only the one kind but the one bottle is enough. It really is surprising what successful, youthifying results it gives.

Simply Canute Water yourself, in the privacy of your own home. Many women in town are doing the same thing; they simply do not mention it. You need not mention it either. Just buy a bottle from any good druggist—and get rid of the "age penalty" in gray hair. Canute Water is so safe, so scientific and sure that your dealer knows it will satisfy you; if not, he will refund your money. Sold and recommended by Filkins Co., Houghton & Dutton Co., Eastern Drug Co., or your own druggist.—The Canute Co., Milwaukee, Wis.

Women everywhere say:

"I Used To Be Like That, Too"

"—an hour's shopping, a few holes at golf, a little housework, and I would be all tired out. My feet would feel like weights. I didn't know what could be the trouble. Finally, a friend told me to try a pair of Arch Preserver Shoes."

Arch Preserver Shoes do actually prevent and correct most ordinary foot troubles. They relieve the pulling and straining of muscles that are inevitable when you wear ordinary shoes.

Special features in Arch Preserver Shoes distribute the weight of the body evenly, scientifically—exactly as Nature does for the barefoot savage.

You get full freedom for bones, nerves and muscles in the Arch Preserver Shoe—and, in addition, a special metatarsal support that relaxes the tendons on the top of the foot and makes the toes fall into their natural position.

This season's styles are exceptionally smart. Try one pair, fitted by the exclusive "heel-to-ball" system.

A FINE FUNNY BOOK AT LAST ISSUED FOR $1

By Gilbert Seldes

DURING THE LAST FIVE YEARS I have been annoyed by a lot of little books which sell for a dollar. I do not mean the dollar books which were put out a year ago in a flurry by several publishers who thought they could compete with the five and ten cent store. I mean the book with about forty pages in which somebody was more or less funny. Even Joe Cook failed to keep up the pace, and that ought to have been a warning to everyone else.

It is therefore a great pleasure to record the fact that for one dollar you can now get a book of 116 pages which is thoroughly and consistently funny. It is called Ho-Hum, and except for a bright and entertaining foreword by E. B. White, consists entirely of clippings from newspapers with comments by The New Yorker staff.

Errors and Omissions

Some of them are typographical errors, but more are vagaries of the mind. There is an Uh-Huh Department which quotes Dr. Phelps as saying that "much of Tunney's success in the ring . . . was due to his sensitiveness to beauty." And there is an American manufacturer in Paris who reports "much being done by modistes with felt bodies," in which The New Yorker is "not interested." Or perhaps you will like best of all the quotations from some of the intellectuals when they get a little above themselves. I forebear to quote any further. These newsbreaks, with their comment, cost about one-quarter of a cent apiece and you oughtn't to expect any more free. They are really priceless.

An Elegant Humorist

However, there is an absolute obligation to pay tribute to Mr. White, who remains in comparative obscurity on the staff of The New Yorker, but who is responsible not only for the tone of its civilized opening pages each week, but for a great deal of the actual text. There is no identification in Ho-Hum of the authorship of the comments, but I am told by those who know that if you find a particularly neat turn you may be sure that Mr. White is responsible. A few months ago I had to write a summary of American humor so condensed that Mark Twain and Ring Lardner had to be reduced to a few lines, and Mr. Robert Benchley, who knew the conditions, assured me that I ought to have at least a paragraph on the humor of E. B. White. After reading Ho-Hum, I began to think Mr. Benchley was right.

Mystery Writer Eats

It is a pleasure to learn that writers of detective stories known how to eat. Conan Doyle knew about spirits and S. S. Van Dine is an expert art critic, and Dorothy Sayers knows the classics, but Frances Noyes Hart, who wrote The Bellamy Trial, can let the others have their little specialties, because she knows how to have a good time. With the aid of her husband, she ordered meals all through France; unaided, she describes them in Figs in Clover and proves among other things that the subject of food is not only an inspiration; it is a positive deterrent to bad writing. (Even cook books are well written and the Physiology of Taste, by Brillat Savarin, is a masterpiece.)

Mrs. Hart is pretty good, but finally, when she is describing Norman scenery or the game of pelota in the Pyrenees or telling about chateaux and monuments. But give her a steak, or a pressed duck, or a croustade de barbue to tell about, and she is perfect. One of the things I praise her for is her detail. She gives the menus, tells what the beautiful French names represent, and how the dishes were made, and then gives you the price. The last item, plus the wine list, causes an unreasonable fury, but there is a kind of magic in the book.

Fragrant Foods

Reading it at 11 o'clock one night I had the disquieting illusion of smelling exquisite food all around me. Like most Americans, Mrs. Hart does not pay enough attention to the fragrance of food and of wine. Of a very fine Bordeaux she says that "its very memory is a perfume." So she must know that foods are not only to be tasted, but to be inhaled. Considering that the nose is one of the features which distinguishes us from the ape, something more ought to be made of it in general conversation.

(Doubleday-Doran)

Disorder After War

A few days ago I mentioned The Road Back in connection with the general subject of war books. This is not entirely fair to the book, which begins at the time of the Armistice and carries a group of men back into Germany, showing them making an unhappy and unsatisfactory effort to readjust themselves to the lives of the civilians. Remarque was never dainty, and if he wants to find a symbol of the difficulties of readjustment he is perfectly willing to have one of his characters pick up a chop and gnaw it at the table because he has forgotten the use of knives and forks.

Waning Love

The true things in the book are not always the brutal ones. After the first rush of desire for women we are made to feel a kind of unreality about the emotions. The narrator of the story is vaguely interested for a moment in one girl or another, but they do not bring him to life and he feels that any effort to win them would be wasted. Now and again, when he has become a school teacher, his nightmares of the front have the appalling and immediate reality which Remarque gave us in All Quiet. These nightmares are really the focal points of the book; around them are the deaths and disasters of the returning soldiers, which are not half so real.

The whole book is a study of disorder. "Perhaps I shall never be really happy again; perhaps the war has destroyed that . . . but I shall probably never be wholly unhappy either—for something will always be there to sustain me, be it merely my own hands or a tree, or the breathing earth." Or, I suspect, the memory of the war.

(Little, Brown)

Careers

—By Agnes Smith—

Twenty years of propaganda for the career-for-women has fostered the curious delusion among men and women alike that it requires more brains, more resourcefulness and more tact to hold down even the most humble office job than to preside over a well-conducted household.

In an industrial city like New York the majority of women are divided into two classes. There are the smart, purposeful girls who spend their days taking dictation of letters that they only half comprehend, answering telephone calls (most of them useless) and filing unimportant letters in important cabinets.

The other class of women are the economic dependents who have nothing to do but order the meals, clean the house, mind the children and cook the food.

Influenced by this prevailing notion, most of the clever and efficient young women today are more concerned with finding a good job than they are with catching themselves a good husband. They feel that an office position means financial independence, agreeable surroundings, a certain dignity and companionship. A good husband too often implies the drudgery of dishwashing and baby-tending.

Moreover, a business girl knows that in six months at the very outside, she can manage the trick of stenography and typewriting and the elemental principles of business routine.

The art of housekeeping is more formless. It isn't something you learn! it's something you guess at.

A bright young secretary I know recently married and retired to a spic and compact new apartment with all modern conveniences and drawbacks. She was sure that her life would be one soft soap because she would bring business efficiency to the home. She would lick the old dragon of housekeeping single-handed.

"For instance," she assured me, "all you have to do for dinner is fry up a couple of chops and—"

I interrupted her with the bad news that you do not fry chops; you broil them. Men fed persistently on fried chops eventually end up in the gutter.

When she tried to make her first pie the nimble magic of her fingers deserted her. Hands that make pastry must have not only dexterity but intuition. You can tear up a badly written letter, toss it into the waste-paper basket and try again. But a bad pie so destroys your spirit and self-confidence that you cannot simply chuck it out and begin all over again.

The business wife could keep a neat, orderly and coherent filing cabinet. But her refrigerator beat her. A cabinet is indexed and every compartment is accounted for.

A refrigerator is an invitation to chaos. The young housekeeper found that she couldn't remove a bottle of cream without starting a landslide of oranges. Yesterday's gravy always perched on top of today's meals—a sadly inefficient state of affairs

Speaking generally, singers, musicians and writers are the best cooks and serve the most satisfactory dinners. They are not to be highly recommended as cleansers and dusters.

Artistic ladies are not always neat, but their homes have beauty and grace and distinction; these ladies are also good at flower gardens. But their dinners look much better than they taste.

Business women have comfortable homes, although they have no great originality in decoration. But they always provide plenty of solid, easy chairs and an abundance of ash-trays. Also they know how to mix a better-than-average feminine cocktail. When you dine with a business woman, make the most of the cocktails and hors d'oeuvres. Beyond that point in the meal you are gambling with fate.

Peace Flag

—By Deems Taylor—

SPAIN HAS BEEN CELEBRATING her change from monarchy to democracy by wrecking some of her beautiful old monasteries. It is sad that this should be so. It is sadder yet that it has always been so. It seems to be one of the conventions of revolutionary technique that, once the people have driven out the oppressor and taken the fatherland for themselves, they must sally forth to destroy or deface as much as possible of what their native land offers of age or beauty.

The Roerich Museum takes these recent Spanish troubles as the text for a bulletin urging international adoption of the Roerich Banner of Peace. The peace banner is the insignia of an artistic peace pact conceived by Nicholas Roerich, the famous Russian painter, and already endorsed by the International Museums Office of the League of Nations.

As drawn up by Doctor George Chklaver of the University of Paris and Professor Albert Geouffre de la Pradelle of the Hague Peace Court, the pact provides that "educational, artistic, and scientific institutions, artistic and scientific missions, the personnel, property, and collections of such institutions and missions, shall be deemed neutral."

It is proposed that the banner, as designed by Professor Roerich, shall be flown over universities, cathedrals, museums, and other cultural monuments, and in time of war be respected by belligerents just as the red cross, as flown over hospitals, is respected.

No Chivalry in War

But just how much is the Red Cross, in the next war, going to be respected? I wonder whether, after all, it is either safe or wise to assume that warfare, as now conducted, has anything to do with chivalry, fair play, sportsmanship, or respect for anything.

The last one was bad enough. The Germans may have been ringleaders in breaking the pre-existing rules of so-called civilized warfare, but none of us emerged with our escutcheons particularly refulgent. We denounced air raids of defenseless cities as a base and cowardly practice, of no military value—merely an expression of an essential bestiality of soul. When the Germans first used gas, at Ypres, we rent the air with screams of horror over such devilishness.

Yet I seem to remember that as soon as we had won sufficient control of the air we did some very pretty bombing of German cities on our own account. As for gas, we denounced it only so long as we had none of our own.

Since the war, we have spent much time in solemn conclave, framing rules for the limitation of armaments and defining our proposed behavior in the next war—as if the experience of the last one had not proved that war is no longer any respecter of rules.

The Rules of War

You could have rules of warfare if you could find a belligerent who was willing to lose rather than break them. But so far there has been no such belligerent. If, as well as denouncing air raids and gas, we had refused to use them, we would have had a powerful moral case against Germany; but we would probably have lost the war. So we did use them. I think civilization might have been further advanced, and Christianity a little more of a reality today, if we had refused. But it is unthinkable that we should have done so. And if the next war comes, we shall play the same game. Sooner or later, one side or the other will break the rules. The other side will call Heaven to witness such infamy; then, with a cry of "You would, would you?" will proceed to go to the original offender one better—in order, you understand, to teach him a lesson.

Nor will any peace banner protect historical monuments from the mob at home. For the mob in Spain was destroying, not a monastery, but a symbol. The church in Spain, like all churches in all lands, was on the side of the Ins! and when the Outs got in, the church's property was a natural and inevitable target. It was so in the French revolution; it was so in the Russian revolution; it will be so in the next revolution, wherever it takes place.

Futile Peace Banners

If you can make the peace banner a more powerful symbol than the thing over which it flies, you can make the mob respect it, of course. But to do that, you would have to give the mob some response to beauty, some feeling of kinship with antiquity, some sense of being rooted in ancient and precious soil. And that would mean educating the mob, and keeping it housed, and fed, and free (for a homeless man, or a hungry man, or a frightened man, has no stomach for learning).

By that time, of course, there would be no mob. Its members would all be Ins, and there would be no Outs to fear. Perhaps then there would be no need of a banner to symbolize what was worthy of respect and protection; for a museum, a library, a church, even a palace, might be a symbol of something that any man could understand and share.

As for the peace banner in war time, let it be flown, by all means; but let it be flown without hope. For war, like baseball, is too potent a drug for temperance. It must be taken or left.

Let us not place too much reliance upon rules of etiquette drawn up for a dope fiend. It is no use. Either we swear off, and mean it, or we swallow it for what it is; and so vanish, because like the dinosaur, we were too brainless to try a change of diet.

MILLIKEN QUITS CHURCH BOARD

New York, June 24 (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune says today that Carl E. Milliken, executive secretary of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., has resigned from the administrative committee of the federal council of Churches of Christ in America.

The newspaper says a report will soon be issued by the Federal Council of Churches criticizing the motion picture organization.

The story says Milliken, former Governor of Maine, resigned last week while attending the Northern Baptist convention.

The report to be issued accord ing to the Herald Tribune, criticizes the motion picture distributors for paying members of religious and social service groups to lecture on behalf of motion pictures.

BYRD'S PILOT IS ON HONEYMOON

Capt. Sverre Strom, ire pilot with the Byrd Antarctic expedition, and his bride, who was Miss Edel Solberg of Roslindale, were honeymooning in New York today after their wedding yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's sister in Roslindale ave., Roslindale.

Admiral Byrd, who was to attend the ceremony, was absent from the city, but sent the couple a congratulatory wire.

The Rev H. Arthur Kernan, pastor of the West Roxbury Congregational Church, officiated at the wedding which was attended only by relatives and close friends.

The romance had its beginning a year ago when Capt. Strom and Miss Solberg, both Norwegians met on shipboard en route for Norway.

Capt and Mrs Strom will live in New York where he former pilot is now employed as captain of a private yacht.

NAUTILUS TO BE REPAIRED IN ENGLAND

Cork, June 24—"We hope to reach Plymouth not later than Saturday," was the announcement made by Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins, whose Polar submarine, Nautilus, hobbled into port here for repairs.

Sir Hubert sent a wire to the British admiralty expressing his appreciation of the offer of the Devonport submarine base for the more important repairs to the Nautilus which cannot be accomplished here. Minor repairs and the recharging of the batteries will be done here.

GUEST AT LUNCHEON

A luncheon in honor of Sir Hubert and his crew was given yesterday by the Lord Mayor of Cork at which the commander of the Nautilus made an address in which he said:—

"We know that in the Arctic regions, more than any other place in the world, time is an element of which we must be most careful if we hope to justify the faith of those who have made our expedition possible. We realize that speed must be made if we are going to succeed.

HAS HIGHEST HOPES

"With no meaning derogatory to others who have gone on expeditions to the North Pole, I think our expedition is unique inasmuch as we have been the first outfit able to carry adequate scientific equipment for thorough investigation.

"We have the highest hope of winning through to the pole and being able to supply the world with scientific data regarding the pole which has hitherto been unattainable."

EXILED INFANTA TO WED PRINCE

Paris, June 24 (INS)—Wedding-bells will ring for a Spanish princess in Paris within a few months, according to well-founded rumors regarding the Infanta Beatrice, oldest daughter of the King and Queen of Spain, now living in exile in the Hotel Savoy, near Fontainebleau.

'24 Black-Handers Get Prison Terms

Palmero, Sicily, June 24 (AP)—One hundred and twenty-four members of a Mafia band of terrorists convicted of murder, extortion and other crimes, today started serving sentences of from one year to life at hard labor.

Thirteen were given life and 16 from 15 to 25 years. Fifty-seven were acquitted.

Harvard Collector Ousted From China

Peking, June 24 (INS)—Collectors for American museums and dealers are finding it increasingly difficult to export their finds from China as the result of the activities of the powerful commission for the preservation of antiquities.

A renowned victim of the commission's attitude is Sir Aurel Stein, whose deportation from Turkestan affects Harvard University and its affiliated Fogg Museum of Cambridge.

Hoover Won't Take Up Silver Question

Washington, June 24 (AP)—President Hoover does not intend to decide what to do about silver until the moratorium proposal has been settled.

A new plan to deal with the depressed silver industry was presented to the President yesterday by Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee and a group of Utah silver men. They declined to discuss their suggestion, and the President temporarily set it aside.

Warmer Weather Ahead for Boston

Brisk, northerly winds played through the sun over Boston today but will shift to warmer westerly winds tomorrow.

Friends that are friends no more were waiting to appear in court in Chelsea today—Miss Doris Phillips, 25, of Cains st., Gloucester, charged with larceny of $2 from Harold Bazin, of Bryant st., Malden, and Bazin charged with assault and battery on the girl.

They were arrested last night in Bazin's car in Bellingham sq., Chelsea.

Effects of Former Film Star Auctioned

The many who thronged her former home yesterday found its furnishings in somber disagreement with the lightsome personality expressed in her frolickings on the screen. The house and land brought a high bid of $20,000.

Schools Graduate 15,000 on Friday

Tomorrow will see the end of the season for pupils of the Boston public schools. Graduations for practically all the high schools and intermediate and elementary schools will come on Friday, when most of the 15,000 boys and girls will receive diplomas.

STALENESS ruins flavor—

DRYNESS burns the throat—

Smoke a FRESH cigarette!

In blending Camels we use only the choicest Turkish and mellowest Domestic tobaccos—tobaccos so good that harsh treatments and parching processes could only injure them.

The Humidor Pack of moisture-proof Cellophane keeps them dust-free, germ-free and absolutely fresh to the last cigarette.

Just compare a Camel, puff by puff, with any other cigarette. Revel in that rare flavor that comes only with choice tobaccos properly conditioned. Note how soft and cool the smoke is to the throat as contrasted to the bite and burn of the hot smoke that comes from dried-out or stale cigarettes.

After you have smoked Camels for one day, leave them—if you can.

THIS IS LIFE

THE CREDIT MAN AND HIS PROBLEMS; WHO PAYS BILLS PROMPTLY?

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

THE MEETING THIS WEEK in Boston of the National Association of Credit Men ought to be of interest to all of us. Its auxiliary, the Credit Congress of Industry, does not touch many of us directly, but everybody who possesses a charge account will find the proceedings of the larger body full of information and food for thought.

Our grandfathers and grandmothers looked upon debt with horror. They did not believe in credit. Little was extended to them and they asked for little. They had a habit of wanting to be sure that the money was all ready before they bought anything. They bought slowly, carefully, thriftily, and not very often. They were enormously interested in quality, and they made what they bought last them a long, long time.

The stores went in more for quality production, perhaps, than they do now. They had to. There was less chance for rapid production, quick changes of styles, quick turnovers, bargain sales, emphasis on "specials" and the like than there is today. Grandmother and grandfather could not be jockeyed into buying so easily. Manufacture and retail selling expanded less rapidly than it does today, but it was probably more solid and permanent. We are beginning to have a good many establishments that have been going steadily for 75 or 100 years. For businesses started nowadays the chances for permanence are not so good.

As to Installment Buying

The habit of asking and expecting and receiving credit has grown enormously, especially the habit of installment buying, or time buying, or budget buying (what the Britishers call quaintly the Hire-purchase System). A few years ago there were great fears expressed about the stability of installment buying. At the beginning of the stock market crash there was considerable doubt as to whether the practice could survive. These past two years have been a severe test, from which, apparently, buying-on-time has emerged triumphantly as an eminently sound method for both purchaser and seller.

It is not too much to say that the rapid expansion of modern business depends largely on credit buying, the facilities of which are great and widespread beyond the wildest imaginings of our grandfathers. Credit has kept business going these past two years.

That being so, it is obvious that retail store credit, particularly in the larger establishments, is no longer "a convenience, a courtesy extended to the customer," which is the usual formula of the modern credit man. It is largely a deliberate and highly successful device to swell the volume of purchases. Since that is so, the attitude of the purchaser is different from that of a generation or two ago. He no longer regards it as a favor and he no longer feels it a matter of personal honor to pay on the first of the next month. He feels that the 30-60-90-day formula is quite as applicable to him as to the wholesaler.

The credit man tells us that the small wage-earner pays more promptly and regularly than the wealthy man, and, more particularly, than the fairly well-to-do professional man. It is easy to see why this is true. The small wage-earner values his credit. Getting it is still surrounded with difficulties, a somewhat humiliating process. Furthermore, his credit is more apt to be expended for necessities, or what today pass for necessities.

Professional Man's Problem

But the well-to-do professional and business man knows perfectly well that if he bought on a cash basis he would probably buy not a third of what he buys on credit. It is the business of the advertising manager and the credit manager to tempt him—to put it bluntly—to buy more than he actually can pay for at the time. His income, particularly if he is a professional man, is very irregular. For some professional men the summer is a total loss so far as income is concerned. He pays his bills, as he has the money, in lump sums irregularly.

You can pretty well tell the standing and quality of a store by the considerate treatment its credit manager gives to the fairly successful professional man who buys in advance of his income. There is no question of dishonesty or of unwillingness to pay. There is simply an economic situation which the store has helped to create, has been glad to create, as a matter of fact, and for which it must share the responsibility.

I imagine that there are large numbers of professional and business men, who wish to live at a reasonably high standard of living, whose incomes are always mortgaged from six months to a year ahead. Obviously if the stores did not wish that condition to exist they would not extend credit so freely. They know perfectly well that if all those men went on a cash basis, or even on a rigid 30-day basis, the stores' volume of business would suffer seriously.

The average man will make an effort to pay bills owed to small dealers, who are entirely self-dependent, when he will let the big stores slide for another month or two. That is partly because he knows that the resources of the large store will take care of them, partly because there is a personal relation between the purchaser and the small dealer, whereas the other is entirely impersonal.

The customer is under no illusion. He knows that the huge cost of the credit-and-return system will find its way, somehow, on his bill. These are some of the reasons why the credit manager of today knows that if he does not extend careful, yet liberal credit, his business is going to suffer badly. Particularly in this year of grace. The old order changes—and it is not going to come back in a hurry.

DOG HIKES OVER 2000 MILES

A Dorchester dog is home today with all the marks of such a hike to return to his master, Joseph Moore of 2[illegible] Savin Hill ave., Dorchester.

He was advertised and sought by radio without success. Moore had given up hope of seeing him again.

His claws were worn out of sight. His paws were swollen and he showed every sign of having hiked the distance.

The last seen of him here was when a neighbor of Moore's saw the dog with a Montana Legionnaire, who told the neighbor he had just bought him. Moore believes he was stolen by someone and later sold to the Legionnaire.

350 DRIVERS IN BIG ROUNDUP

Hearings on a record-breaking list of complaints for violations of automobile laws and traffic ordinances in Cambridge is scheduled for the East Cambridge court on July 2 when more than 350 motorists, including lawyers and business men, are due to appear.

The complaints include driving without licenses and registrations, speeding, passing intersecting streets without slowing down, "hogging" the road and not allowing pedestrians right of way.

The roundup is the result of a drive by Capt. Timothy F. Leahy of the East Cambridge police, who headed a squad that kept watch on drivers on the northern artery near Lechmere sq.

"It is about time the pedestrian got some of his rights," he said. "Sometimes they have to wait from five to ten minutes at intersecting streets on the northern artery before they get to the other side."

MAN CAUGHT IN ROOF CHASE

Two Harvard sq. policeman early today engaged in a wild rooftop chase after a man accused of attempting to enter a Harvard office building through the skylight.

The pursuit in the dark ended when Officers Arthur J. Fitzmaurice and Harry Davis cornered William F. Hoar of Mt. Auburn st., Cambridge, crouching behind a chimney.

The janitor, Harry Marshall heard a crash of glass from the roof. Investigating, he saw the form of a man silhouetted on the roof and called the police.

PANIC-STRICKEN FLIGHT

FRANK SHUDDERED. KELLY KNEW!

FRANK WHEELER'S painstaking, methodical pen signed the last letter. He laid it on the neat pile in the mailing basket and presently his stenographer came and took the basket away.

The day's work was finished in the big general office of Carter & Son, but Frank sat on at the desk, where he had spent every working day for seven years, oblivious of the late afternoon bustle of clerks and stenographers hurrying with eager feet to their few hours of freedom.

Frank was mentally reviewing the 12 years he had been with the firm, asking himself wherein he had failed. For three months now he had been asking himself this question, had been trying desperately to find some way to help tide over the depression, to make himself more valuable, to show some initiative. Initiative! That was what he needed. A plodder! That was his trouble.

He wouldn't mind if it were not for Clara, sweet, loyal Clara, who had encouraged him when other men, younger men, had been promoted over his head, even when John Kelly's salary kept advancing, while his stood still.

"Retrenching"
Graber Is Discharged

Now the one word "retrench" pervaded the whole business. The shipping department had felt it first, then one by one stenographers, filing clerks, bookkeepers, had been called to the private office of Carter, Sr., and had been seen no more. Now the knife reached the higher salaried men, the heads of departments.

And yesterday it had been Graber, Wheeler had seen him coming out of Carter's office with his head down, had seen him slink into his own office for his hat and coat, and go. What chance had he, Wheeler, when a man like Graber was fired.

How would it feel to have to hunt a job?

An office boy came across the room to his desk. Frank looked up quickly.

"Mr. Carter wished to see you, Sir, but he was called away. He asked you to report to him first thing in the morning."

The knife had fallen!

Frank sat staring at nothing long after the boy was gone, facing the blank wall of a jobless future.

And Clara! How could he tell Clara, how could he? He couldn't! Couldn't admit to her that he had failed to make himself necessary in all these years. He couldn't face it!

His head was throbbing, cold chills were creeping up his spine, his hands were shaking.

"Are you sick, sir?"

The old janitor was coming toward him, and in this hour Frank envied him. Tobin would not lose his job—To a man necessary.

He got up shaking.

"Yes, Tobin, I seem to—to be having a chill," he stammered.

"I'll get your coat, sir. Shall I call Joe?"

"No, Tobin, thank you, no. I think—the air—I better walk."

Went to Bed
Wheeler's Head Bursting

Wheeler went straight to bed. He must have taken cold—he was chilling—his head was bursting—no, he didn't need a doctor—be all right in the morning.

But in the morning he drew the covers more closely about him, burrowed more deeply into the pillows. He couldn't face it—he was ill—couldn't stand this infernal shaking— Why go through with that scene in Carter's office anyway? Why let the older employes see him slinking out as he had seen Graber? If he were ill—

No, he didn't need a doctor—he would be all right—nothing but a chill, a little touch of flu, perhaps—it would soon pass—all he needed was to keep warm.

Lying there day after day, shaking at the very thought of getting up, Frank wondered how he would ever have the courage to face things again—where would he look for a job? He wouldn't let Clara know. She would think they put someone in his place because he was ill. She would be angry, of course, but she wouldn't have to know he would have been fired. Fired! After 12 years!

Then John Kelly came in one evening. No one from the office had been in before though many had called Clara to inquire about him.

Frank shivered as Kelly came into the room. He wondered if Kelly knew. If Clara had only stayed out! She mustn't know now! Suddenly Frank saw himself a weakling as well as a failure. A coward! Good God! A coward! That was what he was! He hadn't thought of it before—not in this way. He ought to have faced it like a man—but he couldn't—he just couldn't—he was too ill!

"I say, old chap," Kelly broke in upon his thoughts. "It's a darn shame you had to get knocked out just now. If you had to have a cold, Frank, in Heaven's name couldn't you have had it some other time?"

Missed Chance
Slated for Promotion

"But I say, man! Didn't you know? Surely you knew, Frank, the nice little package the Old Man was about to hand you?"

Frank began shaking. Kelly knew! He was going to twit him about it right before Clara! If he could only think of something to get her out of the room! He tried to catch Kelly's eye, but Kelly had turned to Clara. Frank shrank back under the covers.

"Do you know, Mrs. Wheeler, if it hadn't been for this darn cold, your husband would have been now general sales manager for Carter and Sons"

Frank sat up in bed.

"You don't mean it, Kelly! You're joking!"

His voice was hoarse almost sobbing.

"Joking? I supposed you knew, Frank. Graber was let out the day before you got sick. Too much of a plunger, I understand. Carter wanted a more conservative man and he had you picked for the job; but with Graber and you both out things were getting too badly balled up. He put young Corliss in Graber's place yesterday."

All names of characters in this story are fictitious.

Batchelder Dashes to Boston for Party

Ben Tichnor and Sam Batchelder Harvard athletic stars, hurried back to Boston ahead of the rest following yesterday's Harvard-Yale baseball game. Batchelder will marry Miss Peggy Reed of Boston tomorrow and his college mates gave him an usher's dinner at the Essex Golf Club last night.

As soon as they had finished dressing a taxi whisked them away to the railroad station, where they caught an early train to Boston.

BLACKTHORN FROM MAYOR

PUSHES CHILD IN CARRIAGE OUT OF WAY

Knocked Down Herself by Oncoming Car, but Keeps Infant From Harm

Thomas Cleaves, Jr., 3, of First st., Medford, is alive today through the heroism of Marjorie Smith, 13, also of First st., Medford, who was struck by an automobile in her effort to save the baby.

According to the police, the Smith girl had started on an errand for Mrs. Thomas Cleaves and had taken the child along in its carriage.

While crossing Middlesex ave., Medford, the girl pushed the carriage from in front of a parked automobile directly into his path of a machine operated by John J. Gillican of Main st., Medford.

Realizing a step backward meant death for the child, the Smith girl took a step forward and pushed the carriage ahead of her just as the automobile knocked her down.

The Cleaves child was flatted from its carriage when it struck a curbing on the opposite side of the street and suffered scratches on the face.

Gillican took the baby and the Smith girl to their homes and then reported the accident to the police.

FATHER OF NINE ELECTROCUTED

$200,000 BALM ASKED BY GIRL

A suit for $200,000, charging breach of promise, was filed in federal court today against Mortimer C. Gryzmich, Boston and Brookline cigar manufacturer, by Miss Florence Taylor of New York.

Miss Taylor charged that Gryzmich promised to marry her Jan 26, 1927, when he was "possessed of considerable wealth and able to provide for me as his wife."

She charged he has since refused to keep the promise.

Big Police Shakeup Impending as Result of 'Dry Snoopers'

A big shakeup in the personnel of Back Bay police may result from official "snooping" by federal dry agents in that district, it was indicated when Captain Jeremiah N. Mosher, commander of the Back Bay police station, and five unnamed subordinates who have been doing undercover work, were questioned at headquarters by Leo Schwartz, legal adviser to Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman.

Captain Mosher declared he knew of no successful liquor raids which had been made in his district recently.

PHONE GIRL SAVES WOMAN

Alertness on the part of a night telephone operator at the Malden telephone exchange, early today, was responsible for saving the life of Mrs. P. S. Alden of 2 Winthrop park, Malden.

The telephone operator, who refused to divulge her name to Malden police, on answering a light on the switchboard discovered that a woman was trying to call a Malden doctor. Suddenly the talk ceased and moans came over the wire. The operator called Malden police headquarters, from where Patrolmen J. E. Riley, Daniel Riley and Sylvester Jordan were rushed to the Winthrop park address. They were forced to break down a door to gain entrance.

They found Mrs. Alden in an unconscious condition. Dr. J. W. Golden of Malden was summoned and revived her. It was learned that she had suffered a heart stroke and was trying to call a physician when she collapsed.

PRACTICING HOG RODEO

Josephine Driscoll is giving a demonstration of hog riding, scheduled for the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona in September. Miss Driscoll is the daughter of an official of the fair and suggested a hog rodeo. Naturally she had to give a demonstration, but suggested that cowboys, not cowgirls, be engaged to do the riding. (International Newsreel photo.)

DRISCOLL CASE IS CONTINUED

John J. Driscoll, 40, of Call st., Jamaica Plain, and Raymond Ruggiero, 19, of Glen st., Somerville, today were granted a continuance until July 2 of their trial for manslaughter in connection with the death of Miss Mabel A. Temple, 51.

The government charges Miss Temple was fatally injured when the two men's cars crashed in Berkeley st., South End. Miss Temple was crushed under a car that overturned.

The continuance was granted after one witness, John R. Johnson, had testified to seeing Miss Temple struck by Ruggiero's capsizing car.

John Newman, attorney for Driscoll, asked the continuance to permit him to interview witnesses.

Driscoll, a war veteran, has been involved in four fatal automobile accidents in the past 16 years, records show.

ART CLASSES ON TOMORROW

tunity they are offering to Boston Evening American readers.

LESSONS IN AMERICAN

All you need to start with the first drawing lesson tomorrow is paper, a pen, a penknife, a bottle of ink, and a ruler. The kind of paper you use is important. It should be coated, double-ply drawing paper. The surface on your paper makes a lot of difference in the way your drawings will look when they are finished. If the paper is inferior your lines will look tremby and smeary. However, if you can't get regular drawing paper use some kind of heavy white paper that will take ink.

USE INDIA INK

Get a slender penholder—slender enough to fit into the mouth of an India ink bottle. You will need some good pen points, preferably "Gillott's 290 and 170," and a soft eraser.

Get the best materials you can afford. They are the cheapest in the long run.

BLACK AND WHITE

Always bear in mind that your work should be fit to be reproduced in a newspaper in pure black and white. Get a drawing board if you can—any smooth board with squared corners will do. If you can't get a board any smooth, flat surface is a good substitute.

Now that you have your materials, you are ready for the first lesson, which will appear in tomorrow's Evening American.

Autoist Held as Drunk After Chase

A three-mile chase in Saugus sent James L. Bettger of Laurel st., Lynn, into Lynn court today charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Bettger was arrested early today by Patrolman Frank Garofano of Saugus after he failed to stop on signal. He will be given a hearing Friday.

NEGLECTED; TRIES SUICIDE

Eleanor Hession of Adams st., Dorchester, is recuperating in City Hospital after she swallowed poison in a suicide attempt because, she said, her boy friends neglected her. "I was just a crazy little fool," she said. (Staff photo.)

NEW ENGLAND ARSON LAWS DENOUNCED AS INADEQUATE

Southern Fire Battler Guest of New England Chiefs in Convention

CHIEF EVANS CHIEF FOX

Fire Chief J. M. Evans, of New Orleans, came to town yesterday. He's a guest of honor at the annual convention of New England Fire Chiefs. The Southern fire fighter was welcomed by Fire Chief Henry A. Fox, of the Boston fire department. (Staff photo.)

AN INCENTIVE TO FRAUD, FIRE CHIEFS HEAR

New Hampshire and Vermont Statutes Are Praised by Prevention Authority

The arson laws of all but two New England States are pitifully inadequate, and their laxity furnishes a powerful incentive to fraud by arson, according to Percy Bugbee of the National Fire Prevention Association.

Mr Bugbee today made this statement at the convention of the New England Association of Fire Chiefs in the second day of its session at Paul Revere Hall.

"New Hampshire and Vermont have adopted rigid, up-to-date codes. The laws in the remaining states of New England are farcical, and the effect is shown in a contrast of arson statistics," Mr. Bugbee declared.

John F. Caldwell, assistant secretary of the New England Insurance Exchange, advocated the establishment of a six-day college training course for firemen to familiarize them with the newest developments in fire-fighting methods and equipment.

"It is essential," Mr. Caldwell declared, "that every member of every fire department be thoroughly acquainted with modern methods of fire prevention and control.

"Since no college has facilities for such a curriculum, I suggest that this association establish a college under its own direction."

Attorney General Joseph E. Warner opened the session today with an address of welcome to the fire chiefs.

VAHEY ESTATE SUED FOR CLAIM

Claiming he is still owed for part of an accident claim of 24 years ago Michael Cavanaugh of Brookline today filed suit in Suffolk court against the estate of James H. Vahey, late Boston and Watertown attorney.

The claim settlement was the result of an accident in August, 1907, in which Mary Cavanaugh, Michael's wife, was a passenger on the Old Colony Street Railway.

Cavanaugh charged today that a total judgment of $20,000 was returned by decree of the court on February 9, 1911.

Attorney Vahey gave him $5000 in cash and a check for $800 that he was forbidden to cash, he said. Two checks, one for $400 and the other for $101.50 were later returned by the bank, protested he said.

While no inventory is filed on the Vahey estate it is considered to be valued at $150,000 in real property and $25,000 in personal.

JOBS BOARD IS NAMED BY ELY

Seven representative citizens of Massachusetts today were appointed by Governor Joseph B. Ely as members of a special commission on the stabilization of employment.

The commission was made up of Stanley King, of Boston, chairman; Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology; James T. Moriarity, of the Boston Central Labor Union; Henry T. Kendall, a Boston milliman; Edwin S. Smith personal assistant to A. Lincoln Filene a Boston merchant; Henry S. Dennison a Framingham manufacturer and John M. Fontaine, of Boston.

TONS OF TINFOIL FOR CRIPPLES

A truck containing more than four tons of tinfoil led a procession of nearly a score of automobiles that made up the party of Shriners and children of the Daddy Sunshine Club, of Medford, when it set out today from Medford to visit the Shriners Crippled Children's Hospital in Springfield.

The children of the Daddy Sunshine Club were to give an entertainment this evening for the crippled children. Later the tinfoil will be sold, the proceeds going to the hospital funds.

Past Potentate Samuel G. L. Hasof Aleppo Temple of the Shrine was in charge of the party.

Others were Edward A. Cronin, president of the Daddy Sunshine Club, Gilbert Hood of Hood's Creamery, who donated 150 Hood ices for the children; J. Eugene Pearce, who gave 200 pounds of popcorn; Frank M. Ercoline, assistant to Mr. Haskell; Frank M. Archer, who contributed a truckload of Moxie and Pureoxia, and Frank O'Brien of the Blue Arrow Truck Company, who supplied the trucks.

POLICE PRAISED FOR 2-BIT LOAN

From a woman visitor who last week borrowed 25 cents from a traffic officer, Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley today received a letter praising the courtesy and kindness of his force.

Traffic Officer Lawrence Laughlin who lent the money to Mrs. Ida Hinds of the Johns-Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, also received a laudatory communication and the money.

Mrs. Hinds, with the friend whom she was visiting in Cambridge, attended a Symphony concert last week. Before entering the hall they discovered neither had carfare home.

The officer was approached, the situation was explained and the money was advanced.

The "super" was told by Mrs. Hinds that his police department must be "a wonderful one." The letter went on to extol the courtesy and civility and understanding of Traffic Officer Laughlin.

Girl Learning to Drive, Hits Man

Ruth Selligman 17, of Linden av, Newton Upper Falls started today to learn to drive—and Thomas Greathead, 48, of River ave, Newton Upper Falls, was suddenly converted from a pedestrian into a hospital patient.

The girl, under the tutelage of her brother Arnold, lost control of the car at Linden and Elliot sts, and it ran up on the sidewalk striking Greathead. In Newton Hospital he was found to have suffered a compound fracture of the left leg.

Commercial bankers of Massachusetts will meet with the Massachusetts Bankers' Association at their annual meeting tomorrow, at the University Club, to discuss plans for a stronger bankers' association.

TRUCKLOAD OF HELP FOR LAME CHILDREN

BOY, 11, TO SEE WORLD ON $1

With assets of $1, a dozen bananas and six oranges, Douglas Simmons, 11, of Quincy is en route to see the world today.

He left home at 90 Ruggles st, Roxbury, after he had been disciplined by his father, Timothy F. Simmons.

Dressed in a discarded navy uniform, including the unmarked flat hat, the boy set out while others in the family thought him in bed.

A checkup of his clothing revealed that he also took a green sweater, a red bathing suit and several blouses with him on the trip.

PASSING OF THE PICTURESQUE—DAVID BELASCO

By HELEN ROWLAND

WITH THE death of David Belasco, almost the last of the picturesque personalities of an era of picturesque figures passed on

We have more beautiful women, today, than ever before in history; and men are handsomer and better set-up than they ever were. But there are almost NO outstanding personalities. It's all just "the crowd!"

There was Belasco, with his beautiful head and his strange clerical garb—looking like a priest and like no one else in the world!

And Lillian Russell, the glittering, the glamorous, the gorgeous! Is there any beauty on the stage, today, who stands out among all the many beauties, as did Lillian, the American Beauty Rose?

And, there was Buffalo Bill Cody, in his swanky cowboy costume, with his broad sombrero and flowing white hair—a picture always! A dynamic personality.

There was Elbert Hubbard, with his cameo profile, his twinkling dark brown eyes, his wit and philosophy and thrilling oratorical flights.

And the flaming, red-haired Leslie Carter (now retired), whose very presence was so electric and vivid, that there seemed to be nobody else in the room when she was there.

And there was Leo Dietrichstein, the great stage lover; and Valentino the screen idol. And Eugene Field, poet, wit and the first columnist. And DeWolfe Hopper (also retired) probably the most delightful stage comedian that ever lived. And Nat Goodwin, fine actor and eternal lover. And Mrs. Astor, Queen of the Four Hundred. And—but I could go on for another column!

* * *

Of course, we still have Eve LaGallienne. And Garbo and Jimmy Walker and Theodore Dreiser and Mrs. Fiske and Fanny Hurst and Sinclair Lewis and Edna Millay and Walter Winchell—just a few whose personalities stand out from the crowd.

But, for the most part, we seem to have become just a lot of robots, who dress alike, act alike and talk for publication in the same old platitudes.

Picturesqueness went out (in America) with the coming of the machine-age. And the outstanding figures, if any, are mostly prizefighters, gangsters, wisecrackers and radio-crooners. And, when one of them makes a startling impression, pronto, all the others imitate him!

* * *

BEAUTY EXPERT TELLS OF ERASING FATIGUE LINES

Salt Facial Restores Charm

By MISS HUDDLESTON

THE EPSOM salts facial is one of my old favorites and comes to mind during the hot summer months particularly because it is the one quick way of erasing those little lines of fatigue that etch themselves over the face after a hectic, shopping tour or a busy day at the office.

Josephine Huddleston

While the daily use of Epsom salts is advisable for dry skin, it will prove extremely beneficial if used once or twice each week. This same preparation, however, used on an oily skin erases the fine lines and refines the texture of the skin.

Two basins are necessary for the facial liquids. One is used for the chilled liquid. Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Epsom salts crystals in one pint of hot water and in the other basin dissolve the same amount of Epsom salts in one pint of ice water which contains a few pieces of ice to keep it cold.

After thoroughly cleansing the skin and removing every trace of cleansing preparation, saturate a wash cloth in the hot solution and apply to the face. Hold for a few seconds, then saturate a cloth in the chilled solution and repeat. Alternate in this manner for 15 minutes or until the little lines have disappeared.

If the skin is dry, a bit of nourishing cream, or cream rich with nourishing properties should be massaged into the face after using the Epsom salts solution. If, however, the skin is oily, simply pat the face dry and apply the necessary make-up.

A few drops of one's favorite perfume may be added to the Epsom salts liquid if desired. It should be remembered that whenever astringents or skin preparations with astringent properties are used, the skin should be well cleansed, if really beneficial results are to be gained.

ENSEMBLE FOR EVENING

Braided Ropes Give New Treatment

SKETCHED IN PARIS

At the left is shown an evening ensemble from Maggy Rouff. Ivory satin makes the dress. The little coat is of dark brown velvet. A braided rope of velvet runs vertically down the shirred sleeve and the frog fastening the coat is braided in the same fashion.

At the right is seen the same dress drawn from the back. The bodice, cowl-draped in front, is flat in back with a braided rope bordering the decolletage. Triple godets start from the base of the decolletage and flare at either side of the back. The charm and chic of this ensemble can scarcely be expressed in words or drawing.

Etiquette of Taking Girl to Dance

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. At a banquet and dance where each man brings a young lady, is it correct to ask another young lady for a dance on the dance floor?

2. If the lady accepts, does that obligate the lady's escort to dance with the young lady, the guest of the other man, to whom he has not been introduced?

3. Will you please explain the correct form for this introduction?

READER.

1. This isn't the best of form but it certainly often happens in this casual give-and-take of a dance nowadays. It very much depends on how this is done; usually it is done with such casual friendliness and understanding that it is not objectionable.

2. It doesn't exactly "obligate" the escort to ask the other young lady to dance with him, but very often this is the natural thing for him to do.

3. When the dance stops, or between the main dance and the encore, the introduction is made; the young lady who is asked to dance is introduced to the other young lady, and then the girl who knows both men introduces them to each other.

'The Man of Wrath' Returns Home---Not So Terrible!

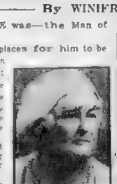
By WINIFRED BLACK

THERE HE was—the Man of Wrath.

And of all places for him to be standing in the moonlight, in front of the house where he used to live with his wife and two little daughters.

I heard a bit about him long before I ever saw him.

I was spending the summer in a log cabin in a little mountain village high in the Rockies.



Winifred Black

The two little girls and their mother lived next door, and we used to talk about dogs, and magpies, and ground squirrels, and prairie dogs, and the well known fairies and goblins and witches who lived all around us in the crevices of the great garden.

There was a little water sprite who lived in the clear mountain stream that ran past the very door of the log cabin. We never saw her—of course she never would let us do that, but we used to hear her laughing in the moonlight, and sometimes when a storm was coming from the highest peaks of the mountains the little water sprite would shudder and moan, and try to warn us.

We had a tame magpie in a cage. And one day we decided we would let Maggie out, and see what she would do.

Maggie knew exactly what to do.

Away, away, and far away!

We did not see her for a week. Then one night we heard a rapping on the window when we were sitting by the fire telling tales—and in walked Maggie, to take shelter from a wild storm.

And after that whenever we looked up across the canyon and saw Maggie wheeling through the air—toward home—we knew a storm was coming.

We grew to be great friends, the two little girls next door, Maggie and I, and the little girls' mother told me about her husband.

He was a terrible man she said, a furious man, a man of wrath.

And when I heard he was coming home, I wanted to leave.

I only saw him once—he didn't look very wrathful, but then perhaps he wore his "company manners."

The woman next door divorced him anyhow and married again and went to a different city to live. She took her two girls with her, for her second husband had money and had promised to educate them.

And last night—there he was in the moonlight, the Man of Wrath, looking up at the little house, where he used to live with his wife and his two little daughters.

He started when he saw me, as if he had met a ghost on the narrow mountain trail.

Finally he said, "Kathie and Mollie, do you know what has become of them?"

"Why yes," I said. "Millie was married the other day, nice fellow too, and Kathie, you know of course that she has a good position, as a teacher in a fine school?"

"No," said the Man of Wrath. "I have never heard from them. Millie married, why she's nothing but a baby—little Millie married!"

And I could see on the moonlight that the tears were streaming down his face.

TODAY'S WINNER

Visitor to small child whose house she is visiting: "My, dear, won't you come and sit on my knee?"

Little Nell: "No, ma'am, I doesn't."

Visitor: "What do you mean, you doesn't?"

Little Nell: "Well, ma told me to keep on this chair so the hole in the upholstery wouldn't show."

HONORABLE MENTION

Little Helen came in crying one day.

Mother: "Helen dear, what is the matter dear?"

Helen: "A girl hit me."

Mother: "Where did she hit you dear."

Helen: "On the sidewalk."

Simplicity in Paris Gowns

By PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, June 24—Charm and chic are the two most important attributes of an evening frock or, at least, they should be. Material, trimming, rich ornamentation mean nothing, unless the model has that certain something that we can all so readily recognize, and are yet unable to translate into words.

And very often it is the apparently simple model that has each of these folds, something that sets it apart from any other, and makes it an object of much admiration and envy.

Some of the season's most successful evening models are of white or off-white satin. The very smart ensemble shown here, which is by Maggy Rouff, is for the frock ivory satin in a lustrous way. The novel little coat is of dark brown velvet. A braided rope of velvet runs vertically down the shirred sleeve and the frog fastening the coat is braided in the same fashion.

At the right is seen the same dress from the back. The bodice cowl-shaped in front, is flat in back. The braided rope bordering it is the linking factor of the ensemble for it is present on the yoke in back where it borders the decolletage. Triple godets start from the base of the decolletage and flare at either side of the back. This is quite obviously one of those models whose charm and delicate chic cannot be conveyed in description or drawing. It will be noted that the combination of brown with white is far extending into the realm of evening fashions.

Miss Fairfax Says to Give Him Chance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have known my boy friend's folks a long time before I knew him. A few months ago, on my way walking home from the theater, I met him unexpectedly. He asked me if he might see me home. I consented and in the meantime I invited him to supper. A few weeks elapsed when he asked me for a date. I accepted it. Later I sent him an Easter greeting but I haven't heard from him since. What do you think of him? I am wondering would it be proper if I invited him some Sunday for dinner, or what would be best? Thanking you for the advice you'll give me.

ROSE MARIE

Dear Rose Marie: Greeting cards often get lost in the mail. All things considered, I believe I'd give him another chance and invite him to dinner.

He Is Too Young

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Here is my problem. I am engaged to marry a young man of 19. I am 22. Do you think that is too much of a difference in our ages? Right now, I am much younger looking than he is, but he is of the Latin race and I am English.

ANXIOUS

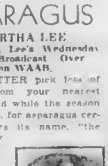
Dear Anxious: I do not think the difference in your ages is of as much importance as the fact that the young man is too young to marry. Nineteen seems to me entirely too young for a boy to take on the responsibilities of married life. It would seem to me he should be studying, or working towards a better future.

NEW WAYS OF SERVING ASPARAGUS

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB.

YOU'D BETTER pick lots of asparagus from your nearest vegetable stand while the season is still with us, for asparagus certainly deserves its name, "the aristocrat of vegetables." And when you've tasted it cooked in the ways I'm going to tell you about, you'll agree with me that it's also one of the most delicious.



Martha Lee

Cream of asparagus soup is a delicious way to begin a meal. Take the tips off a bunch of asparagus and put them in a little white sauce to which has been added a finely chopped onion. Cook the stalks in a little water and when they are tender, put them through a sieve. Add the pulp to the white sauce and season with salt and pepper. Add a little cream and serve with a spoonful of whipped cream and paprika, or serve with croutons. Tomatoes may be cut out and stuffed with asparagus tips cut in inch pieces. They are especially attractive when placed in individual molds or custard cups and then a seasoned tomato jelly is poured around. Salad with Thousand Island dressing and garnished with more asparagus tips and thick mayonnaise.

Chop hearts of celery cut in inch pieces, cooked peas and mayonnaise dressing, piled up crisp lettuce ring surrounded by asparagus stalks is an attractive combination, too! An easier one is the following: cold asparagus tips served with a French dressing to which has been added one chopped sour pickle and one tsp. of chopped parsley.

And for luncheon, poached eggs, served on top of five or six asparagus tips and over all a thick cream sauce well seasoned. More asparagus recipes right on my desk. Want them? Yours on receipt of one 2c stamp.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

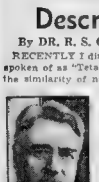
Treatment of 'Tetany' Is Described

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

RECENTLY I discussed a disease spoken of as "Tetany." Because of the similarity of names, it is often confused by the lay public with tetanus or lockjaw.



Dr. Copeland

Tetany differs from tetanus, in that it is not a disease resulting from an infection. It is due to a failure in the proper absorption of lime by the body. This chemical breakdown is due, undoubtedly, to a disturbance in the operation of one of those mysterious ductless glands. In this case it is the "parathyroid gland."

The parathyroid glands are tiny masses of tissue found in close contact with the thyroid gland. The latter is associated with the "Adam's apple," in the front of the neck.

The chief signs of the disease are spasms in the muscles, tremblings and convulsive-like symptoms affecting mainly the hands and feet. It may follow typhoid fever, severe diarrhoea, exposure to cold or rickets.

If the parathyroid glands are removed from a living body this condition will result. It can be produced by any poison that interferes with the human chemistry.

The disease is most frequently seen in children, chiefly those who have rickets. It is most to be expected in severe digestive disorders in bottle-fed infants.

Sometimes there is a spasm of the muscles, especially of the arms. This spasm causes the arm to become bent across the chest. The legs become extended, with bending upward of the toes. The muscles of the face are rarely affected. If they are, there is trembling and tremors of the face and a change in the facial expression.

The disease is not a fatal one and recovery takes place within a short period. It is essential to remove the cause, in children the whole problem is usually a question of diet. When that is corrected recovery is prompt.

Baths and cold sponging often relieve the muscular spasms. But it is better that no treatment should be attempted until it is directed by a physician. At times these cases are stubborn and require careful prescribing.

STEEL MARKET TO FACE TEST IN ADVANCE

By FRANK H. MELOON

America's steel markets are due to face their next most important test in the proposed advancing of prices, skirmishes for which have already been started by the two largest producers in the country. There are signs that the steel companies are about to pass from the stage of price talk and into that of earning 2 or 3 cents a common share as in the first and second quarters of this year, the leading companies will make a fairly creditable showing in the second half of the year.

* * *

Of course that is a hope as well as an expectation, but there are more supporting signs today than there were a month ago, and even when production was much larger than it is today.

Statement of President John J. Pelley of the New Haven is significant, as he declares the railroad has had considerable success in regaining traffic lost to steamships lines and trucks by its operation of fast freights making possible overnight delivery between New England and other points. This is the first impression gained of the success of the new experiment.

John J. Pelley

Signs of the progress of small arms by the Chamber of Commerce Dr. Julius Klein in this column this week was interesting and all the small towns have also progressed. One little town which looks upon Mount Monadnock and another which looks upon Mount Washington, produced a general of the Civil War and boasts a cave in which Yankee Doodle during the days of the American Revolution. The next time we raw his voting list there were only eight names there.

The town's diminishing in size of population can be attributed to lack of motor highways. State and Federal aid granted during the past few recall that the "good roads" movement was originally led by the late Sir Nathaniel Batchelder, Master of the National Grange and Governor of New Hampshire.

American Banker takes a fling at federal farm relief in a current conversation. It says:

"During the period of 1925 1929 these were a definitely planned by the Federal Reserve Board or the Federal Reserve banks which did not. The fact that the country's credit base was steadily piled. Throughout that time the world's commodity price level was recorded as an essentially sound factor in our economic situation. In fact, when the farm area was concerted their theory which took such complete mastery of the public's imagination, one of their premises was that commodities prices were at the and abound no indications of being inflated.

"Today, with ability to view events and factors with hindsight, it is easy for us to perceive the utter fallacy of this viewpoint. We can see quite clearly the process by which events were shaping. We can see the declining even though most of us were thoroughly blind to what was going on at the time and accepted the fallacious doctrine almost as if it were an axiom upon which to base logical reasoning."

Pennsylvania's dividend cut today of 33 from $1 a share was not unexpected. Pennsylvania, first "outside" railroad to start the ball rolling on Stock Exchange has paid a cash dime to its stockholders every quarter since 1917. In the meantime its returns to stockholders has been increased and decreased intermittently, ranging from 6 to 8 per cent. "Penney" paid 7 per cent in 1927 and 1923, 7½ per cent in 1928 and 8 per cent in 1930.

Weeks ago we pointed out that New England was making the best betting showing industrially of any section of the country, and more particularly in proof thereof the electric power output index. For the outstanding data come right today. Output of electric energy in the sections of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont served by the New England Public Service Co. bears out the assumption that New England is continuing to show a trend with this company reporting a gain of 9 per cent for the first five months.

F. C. Dunning, Boston, was elected a director to fill the "Penney" vacancy caused by the recent death of Levi L. Rue of Philadelphia. Dunning is treasurer and treasurer of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Co., president and treasurer of the Worthington Pump and Machinery as director in the Old Colony Trust Company, the First National Bank of Boston and the New Haven, and is identified with numerous other New England shipping, financial and insurance corporations. It is said to be the first time that the Pennsylvania Railroad has come into New England and for a member of the board.

Rubber Is Steady

New York, June 24—Rubber futures today were steady. July 6.80; September, 6.90; December, 6.80; new contract, July, 6.85; September, 6.98; December, 6.64.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Tobacco stocks led the market today in its renewal of the "Big Parade" of rising prices, with leaders up 4 to 15 points.

If the price increase by manufacturers has the desired result of increasing the retail price generally to 15 cents a package, from the present level of two for 25 cents, it will have a radical effect on earnings of the large cigarette chains.

Gross Profits for Stores to Gain

At the old price of $6.40 a thousand cigarette list cost net to the chains was about $5.65 a thousand. At 2 for 25 cents, receipts from sale of cigarettes were $6.2? a thousand, or 60 cents a thousand gross profit. At the new price, net cost would be $6.04; and at 15 cents a package, receipts would be $7.50, a profit of $1.46 a thousand. This means an increase in gross profit margin on two thirds of the sales of United Cigar Stores and Schulte Retail Stores from less than 10 per cent to over 40 per cent.

Of course, there has yet been no assurance that a 15-cent price will be met; but establishment of such a price is interpreted to be the motive for the price advance.

Industrials Set High on Recovery

Led by oils and tobacco shares, stocks used in the Dow-Jones industrial average advanced to a new high on the recovery today. Based on the late prices, the index stood at 148.37, up 6.86 points from Tuesday's close, and a rebound of 27.17 points, or 22.3 per cent, from the bear market low of 121.70 reached in June.

Leaders Join in Upward Movement

Near the noon period United States Steel, American Can, American Telephone & Telegraph joined more vigorously in the upward procession, showing new gains of 1 to 2½ points above Tuesday's closing level. Electric Power led the rise in the popular utilities and soon moved ahead 2 points.

Westinghouse Has Sharp Recovery

Westinghouse, one of the shorts a merry chase while awaiting the results of the directors' action on the common stock dividend, since dropping off to 54 this stock has made a sharp comeback, gaining strength as rumors of a possible continuation of the 54 rate circulated in Wall Street. Today a new burst of strength had the effect that the report of the directors' meeting was due, forced Westinghouse to a gain of 3 points to 61¾. The directors declared the regular dividend and the stock again soon spurted about 6 points.

Specialties Are Center of Move

Vanadium Steel, Worthington Pump, J. I. Case and other specialties were the center of an active buying move at noon which lifted prices 1 to 3½ points.

Coppers Higher on Price Jumps

Coppers responded today with higher prices to the jacking up of copper metal ¼ cent and the new advance in prices of copper wire. American Smelting showed a 1¾ point recovery from the low of the month.

Canadian Buying Is In Noranda Mines

Consistent buying in Noranda Mines has been coming through important Canadian firms, which have frequently represented mining interests in the Dominion in the past. Demand is due, not only to the prospective improvement in the copper metal situation with a settlement of European affairs, but also to the good prospects of Noranda itself as a result of developments in the past. It has been indicated right along that Canadian interests in this property have significance on the company's gold outlook than traders and others here.

Harvester Meeting Improved Buying

While conditions in the agricultural districts have been discussed as affecting the business of International Harvester, there are some interests who think that the company has prospects of getting important orders in the future. This belief is based on the strong financial condition, has been responsible for good scale buying during recent recessions in the market. It is said these purchasers have taken a long-term position in the stock and will not be attracted to take profits on early bulges.

Kelly-Springfield Sales Improving

Sales of Kelly-Springfield have been showing a favorable uptrend recently. Shipments to dealers in May were 13 per cent higher than in the same month last year and for the first of June have also been larger than a year ago. Business so far in June has been at a higher rate than in both the preceding month and in June, 1930. A further constructive factor in the company's affairs is the extensive reduction in costs effected by the executive changes since it assumed control last March.

AUSTRIA JOINS SOVIET IN 'GAS' AGREEMENT

Washington, June 24—Sharp competition between Soviet Russia and Austria for the Central European oil market, which has sent prices downward for some time past, has been stopped temporarily through an understanding between the Austria gasoline cartel and the Soviet sporting monopoly. This is revealed in Austrian trade advices forwarded to the Commerce Department by Assistant Commercial Attache D. F. Spencer at Vienna.

Described as being "in the interest of mutual exploitation," the negotiations have been carried on for many months and have resulted in an Austrian agreement to purchase approximately 200,000 barrels of Russian gasoline from the Baku district at current world prices. Earlier efforts to reach an understanding were unsuccessful, the Austrian cartel charging that the Russian demanded a quota higher than the Anglo-American firms in the cartel would grant.

Austrian trade reports indicate that increased Soviet competition, particularly during the last six months, adversely affected price developments and that the Austrian cartel was forced to buy small outsiders from bringing increasing quantities of Russian gasoline into the Austrian market. The southern provinces regular cartel prices were underbid by as much as 30 to 40 per cent, the Austrian advices indicate.

The quota of 200,000 barrels granted the Soviets represents about 15 per cent of Austria's total domestic sales. As no increase in consumption is anticipated, Austrian trade observers believe that Russia will profit at the expense of Rumania.

Russian gasoline will be shipped to Austria by way of Fiume and will then be carried by rail to Austria. Russian gasoline will be destined almost exclusively for use in the southern provinces, the advices say, as transportation costs to Vienna would raise the price beyond a profitable limit.

GOLD MINING ISSUE ACTIVE

New York, June 24—By far the most prominent feature in the Curb Produce Exchange was Admiralty Alaska Gold Mining Co., with many thousand shares changing hands at rising prices.

Gold mining issues have generally been favored of late, and while Admiralty Alaska property covers four square miles, and is situated about 30 miles from Juneau Alaska Juneau has been one of the star performers of 1931 on the big board. Admiralty Alaska has over 22,000 feet of underground workings, and its engineers today reported that 5,000,000 tons of ore blocked out.

Closing Is Mixed in Chicago Grains

Chicago, June 24—Grains finished mixed today. Wheat closed irregular, ¼ cent lower to ¼ gain, corn ¼-¼ up, oats at ½-½ advance, and provisions varying from 10 cents setback to a rise of seven cents.

Firm Tone Is Shown in the Bond Market

New York, June 24—A firm tone was shown in the bond market today as the session advanced. Foreign obligations continued to rise and industrial liens firmed after a mixed start. Advance in the rail group was fairly uniform although the trading in many carrier issues was limited.

VIOLENT RISE IS REGISTERED IN WALL STREET

Pennsylvania Railroad cut its quarterly dividend from $1 to 75 cents. Northern Pacific declared the regular payment of $1.25 and stiffening commodity prices more than counter balanced the expected further seasonal shrinkage of steel output.

CLOSING HIGH R

Final prices reflected some late profit taking and in rares were 1 to 3 points under the peak here but there were numerous gains of 2 to 11 points. Trading in the stock exchange was in large volume today's turnover approximating 5,100,000 shares.

An advance in cigarette prices was reflected in gains of more than 10 points in the American Tobacco issues.

Coppers came up strongly toward the finish Anaconda Kennecott and American Smelting showing gains of 2 to 3 points.

Miscellaneous issues gaining 3 to 6 included U. S. Steel Bethlehem North American Westinghouse, Baltimore & Ohio Northen Pacific Atchison du Pont Radio and Loew. Gimbel & Myers Pennsylvania finished a point higher.

The weakness of the markets yesterday appeared merely to have provided a breathing spell. Bonds improved and a new offering of $85,000,000 the Commonwealth Edison issue was the largest since April

SENTIMENT CHANGES

Financial temper has so changed that bankers are becoming optimistic over a revival of foreign lending in this market. A bond issue of about $20,000,000 for the island of Formosa, to be guaranteed by the Japanese government is expected shortly. Excepting Canadian issues, this will be the first sizable foreign issue in a long time.

The way the stock market was able to pass over the reduction of Pennsylvania railroads dividend contrasted with the abrupt decline caused by New York Central cuts a few months earlier.

Brokers now were insisting a week ago that the market had already discounted the expected adverse developments of summer had a chance to say "I told you so."

The weekly trade reports on figures were such as might have caused considerable gloom a week ago. The drop of 28,451 cars from the previous week was unreasonably large for the second week of June.

Steel ingot output was estimated in the weekly reviews to have receded from about 38 to around 36 or 35 per cent of capacity.

MARKET HAS CHEER

The market had much to give it cheer, however. Unlike Pennsylvania Railroad, Westinghouse Electric provided a pleasant surprise by ordering its regular quarterly payment of $1

Both lead and copper prices came again advanced markedly, the rise of ½ cent a pound so far this week.

Optimism continues to gain in the petroleum industry, an increase in mid continent crude prices is expected shortly, and weekly statistics showed a reduction of more than 1,000,000 barrels in gasoline stocks despite a gain in crude production.

Fresh evidence of the advance in stocks again caused some misgivings among more conservatively inclined brokers, who pointed out that the market had been overbought with an extremely quiet summer in industry.

Bears, however, who had sold stocks yesterday in expectation of a sharp secondary reaction, were driven to cover at costly prices.

Higher Prices for Tires Are Forecast

Dayton, O., June 24—Dayton Rubber Co will increase prices on all types of tires on July 1, it is future, President John A. MacMillan stated.

"For some time tires have been sold at ridiculously low prices, bordering in some instances on the cost of production, and an increase may be expected any day," he said.

$2,000,000 Issue of Me. Bonds Awarded

State of Maine treasurer, W. Owen has sold to Estabrook & Co., and Eastern Trust & Banking Co. Bangor jointly at 99.350 $2,000,000 3½ per cent highway and bridge bonds dated July 1, and payable 1932 to 1951.

Rousmaniere to Aid Amoskeag Selling

John F. Rousmaniere, July 1 will become associated with David W. Jarvis in selling product of Amoskeag Manufacturing Co. Rousmaniere will remain as president of Frankiere Williams Corp., cotton goods commission house. During 1930 he was a partner of Minot Hoop & Co

Cotton Higher in New York Market

New York, June 24—Cotton futures today closed steady 9 to 14 points higher; July, 9.64-67; Oct., 10.06; Dec., 10.03; Jan., 10.12-13; March 10.59-63; May, 10.80-83. Spot steady, nothing, 960.

Rights Are Offered

Stockholders of Kildun Mining Corp of record July 1 have been offered rights to subscribe to additional stock up to 3 per cent of their holdings at $5 a share.

GEORGE LOTT ELIMINATED ON WIMBLEDON COURT

FANNING

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

To the Memory of Nick Flatley, Regular Fellow.

Mother to Unveil a Bronze Tablet. Mayor Will Speak.

WHEN NICK GAVE SCRIBES SMALLPOX

The ready wit, the feeling heart, that had no room for guile.
E'en that was mortal of you, Nick, long since was laid away,
Fond memories we will cherish, Nick, forever and a day.
This tablet, Nick, is not for us; it is for those to come
When we have gone to join you, Nick, and Race of Life is run
Twill show them how we loved you, Nick, and fittingly will tell
The whole world see and understand sometimes we don't forget.

Tribute was paid one regular fellow, Fred Roey, the popular radio announcer, and in this writer's humble opinion the best sports announcer on this terrestrial globe, at Braves Field, last Saturday. Another heartfelt tribute to the memory of another regular fellow, the late Nick Flatley—may the grass grow green on your grave, Nick, and the birds sing as gaily in the trees as they always were singing in your heart—at Braves Field, next Saturday. In appreciation of the life and services of their gone but not forgotten confrere the sporting writers of the Hub and the Boston Braves will unveil a tablet to the memory of our late pal, whose vacant chair we were called to sit in as sporting editor of the Boston Evening American. Nick's dear old mother has been asked to personally unveil the tablet. The great mayor of the great City of Boston, James Michael Curley, will give his official presence and say a few words in honor of the man he too knew and loved so well.

To know Nick Flatley was to love him. Everybody knew Nick and Nick knew everybody. We never knew a man who had more lovable qualities. We sports writers are a temperamental lot. Competition breeds bitter rivalry and some of us are prone to give way to petty jealousies. Some sports writers are terrors at picking a brother apart. But no one could pick Nick Flatley apart. He was tried too often in the fire and found to assay pure gold. Nick reflected the sunshine that always was in his heart. No one who came in contact with him but got some of it.

We first met Nick Flatley down in Augusta, Georgia, when on a Spring training trip with a ball club. Nick came floating into town with the Braves. That was the year of the big smallpox scare. Ty Cobb and Nap Rucker—the greatest southpaw that ever graced the mound—both had exposed themselves to it and both were quarantined in the pest house for a time. The boys were in Bill Dahlen's room playing poker and Nick joined us.

We had been telling the bunch about Old Grimes, an odd character from the hill country. Old Grimes used to rob the rich to help the poor. He taught his horse to stop when he said "Get Up," to gallop when he said "Whoa," and then induced the minister to ride it. The horse ran away with the parson.

The sheriff got after Old Grimes one day. There was a smallpox epidemic on at the time. When the Sheriff pounded on the door he heard a weak voice quaver "Come in." The Sheriff came in and found Old Grimes in bed. The face that showed above the quilts was covered with little red blotches.

"Glad to see yer, Sheriff," quavered Old Grimes. "I ain't feelin' so peart, or I'd get up to shake hands with yer. C'm over here and shake hands with me, anyway, Sheriff."

After listening to the Old Grimes anecdotes and talking about Rucker, Cobb and the smallpox Nick left the room. He came back shortly and took a chair in the game. Seemed downhearted. He was far from his usual joyous self. Had a headache. Right in the middle of a big jackpot Nick got a chill. He started to pull down one of the sleeves he had rolled up and someone noticed some ugly red blotches.

The late Bill Hanna of the New York Sun—Bill is keeping box scores along with dear old Nick in celestial ball yards now—suddenly announced that he had forgotten his story and would have to hustle to the telegraph office. Bill Slocum, then of the New York Times, gaped loudly and said he was so sleepy he couldn't keep awake. He beat it. Your correspondent suddenly remembered that he had forgotten to telephone to his beloved spouse away up in the cold and chilly North. As we went sidling through the door we overheard Abe Yagcr, then sporting editor of the Brooklyn Eagle, declare:

"Well I can't think of any alibis, but I'm goin' to get right out of here! Nick Flatley, whynell did you come in here and expose us to the smallpox? Call the doctor quick as you can!"

Nick didn't go to the doctor. But we did—every man jack of us. Scared stiff. We all started to feel bad. Marched in a body to the doctor to get first aid for the smallpox in time.

The door opened. In walked Nick. "Say fellers," he chirped. "I'd been here sooner only I had a deuce of a time washing the red ink stains from my arms and getting over the smallpox."

George Lott Loses to British Star

Wimbledon Stadium, Eng., June 24 (AP)—Sidney B. Wood, Jr., cotton-haired young American hopeful, advanced to the fourth round of the Wimbledon tennis championships today with a straight set victory over E. Maier, Spain's leading player. The scores were 8-6, 6-3, 6-2.

The American player waged a tough battle against the agile, hard-hitting Spaniard, particularly in the first set. Wood had less trouble in the later stages of the match, finding himself invariably able to produce the necessary shots. The match was featured by many fine sideline and wide-angle winning shots by the American.

Frank X. Shields, America's No 1 in the tournament, scored a surprisingly easy victory over he German younguter, E. Nourney, 6–1, 6–1, 6–2, to enter the last 16.

George Lott, Jr., American Davis Cup player, was eliminated from the singles play in the third round by N. G. N. Lee, second ranking English star, 5—7, 5—7, 5—7.

The defeat of Lott, whose play is reported here, roused the galleries to considerable enthusiasm.

Lott played erratically, and although the damp court might have been partly to blame, he was uncertain and erred frequently.

He led 5—1 in the first set, but then let the Briton capture six straight games.

Miss Betty Nuthall, England's chief hope to regain the women's title, eliminated Miss B. Feltham, also of England, in straight sets, 8—6 8—6.

Miss D. E. Round, unseeded and only seventh on the British list, defeated Elia De Alvarez, Spanish champion and fifth seeded star in the Wimbledon tournament, in a second round match, 6—3, 6—3.

Christian Boussus of France disposed of M. Kawachi of Japan, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4, in a third round match.

Jean Borotra found the strokes of R. Miki of Japan to his liking and won as he pleased, 6—4, 6—1, 6—2. His victory sent him into the fourth round with Boussus.

Mrs. John Van Ryn, the former Midge Gladman, defeated Mrs. R. E. Haylock, of Great Britain, 6—2, 3—6, 6—3, to advance to the third round.

Fred Perry, muscular young British star, advanced to the fourth round with a straight set victory over another of the young French players, A. Gentien. The scores were 6—2, 6—3, 8—6.

W. H. (Bunny) Austin, England's chief hope to regain the women's title, eliminated Miss B. Feltham, also of England, in straight sets, 8—6 8—6.

BUSHELL AND HOLTON WIN ON 20TH HOLE

By BILL GRIMES

Many of the supposedly strong combinations failed to weather the first round of the fourth annual Salem four-ball invitation today at the Salem Country Club.

Win Trowbridge and Benny Nestle went out of the championship flight after a 20 hole match against H. H. Holton, Tedesco, and J. P. Bushnell, Winchester.

A slip on the 18th green by Trowbridge, who took three puts 15 feet away, was responsible for this match going to extra holes and Bushnell's stroke at the 20 put the Cohasset team out of the running.

Herman Goldberger, Woodland and Don Ritchie, Charles River, a strong team, were eliminated by Louis Grimbull and John Hobbs, Belmont Springs, 2 and 1. The Belmont pair had a net best ball of 70, counting 36 each way.

Although Grimbull was shooting exceptionally fine golf, Hobbs' ability to use his stroke was an important factor in his victory.

Brown and Rand Beat Strong Team

A. S. Brown, Jr., and R. Rand, Jr., entered up the championship flight by defeating Howard Paul and A. C. Roche, Bear Hill, one of the most formidable teams in the field.

There were three extra hole matches, Jimmy Gannon, a former caddy champion and P. W. Rogers running a 18-hole affair from Bruce Coffin and E. L. Howie, when Rogers put his second shot two feet from the cup at the 19 hole.

Bill Faversham ran down a putt across the 18 green which sent him and his partner, Mike Cody, Jr., into an extra hole match with Frank Hale and J. Patterson. Cody was out at the 19th hole and Faversham came through with a win.

Sidney Hooper (11) and Dr. J. King (11) defeated J. M. Stoddock (9) and R. Reed (10), 5 and 4.

W. Connolly (8) and R. W. Wilson (12) defeated Woodward Allen (9) and Jack McCarthy (4), 2 and 1.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Golfers have more trouble, I think, with the short pitch to the green than with any other single golf shot. It costs them more extra strokes, surely, than any other department. This short should be made with the ball near the right foot, and with the feet rather closely placed. You hit down on the ball, as if the blade were to go right on into the ground. By this I mean you take the ball first and the divot afterward. However, swing the blade clear through the ball, but while doing so avoid letting your body move forward, meaning toward the pin, and also avoid letting your head and shoulders fall toward the ground. Stroke with the blade, not with your body.

SWING SMOOTHLY THROUGH BALL
AVOID MOVING HEAD IN SHORT PITCH
PLAY THE BALL OFF RIGHT FOOT—STAND EVENLY BALANCED—FEET CLOSE TOGETHER

LITHE LONGWOOD LASSIES

Early Training Made DeGlane Champion

By HENRI DeGLANE
(As told to Jack Conway)

When I got back to my hotel after having won the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world from Strangler Lewis, I sent my father, who still lives in Paris, a cablegram. It read as follows:

"The fine training which mother and you gave me as a boy enabled me to defeat Strangler Lewis in a bout for the heavyweight championship of the world."

My only regret upon winning the title was that my mother was not alive to share in my happiness. As I have already told, mother died of a broken heart and war privations following the death of my two older brothers at the front.

Paul Bowser, Boston wrestling promoter, was at the ringside the night I defeated Lewis. After the bout Bowser visited me at my hotel. I was greatly pleased when Bowser told me I was one of the most finished wrestlers he has ever seen in action.

Signs With Bowser

I expected Bowser to ask me to sign with him. He surprised me when he didn't. Other wrestling promoters were in Montreal, and they were all trying to get my signature to contracts.

The next day I met Bowser again.

"There are several boys who think they can defeat you," he said in that easy way of his. "Stanik says he is too rough for you, while Joe Malcewicz, Ed George and Sonnenberg are of the opinion you are made to order for them."

Still Bowser didn't ask me to sign a contract. I have always considered Paul the leading wrestling promoter in the world, and was trying to dope out his strategy.

"George and Sonnenberg have decisions to their credit over you," went on Bowser. "And I have both of these boys signed up. Maybe some day you would like to wrestle them."

I could not hold back my French pride any longer.

"I'm not afraid to give George and Sonnenberg return bouts," I fairly shouted. "In fact, I can lick any wrestler you can get to meet me."

"You're not joking with me, are you?" pressed Bowser.

"I'll prove my sincerity by signing a contract to do what I claim I can," I went on.

I have already beaten Stanak and Malcewicz in bouts in the Hub.

I also wrestled Ed Don George at Buffalo, each of us scoring a fall up to the time the 11 o'clock rule of the New York Athletic Commission halted the contest.

Now I have signed to meet George in a return bout at Braves Field on July 14. Bowser has turned the match over to the Cross-cup-Pishon Post of the American Legion.

Card Complete for Brockton Ring Show

The Highland A. A. of Brockton has completed its card for tomorrow night. Besides the feature 10-round bout between Nap Proulx of Taunton and Eddie (Kid) Sullivan of Walpole and the special six-round event between Johnny Dixon, Boston College heavyweight, and Frank Firpe of Providence there will be three other six-round contests.

GRID STARS OF H-Y TO PLAY AT OLYMPICS

Los Angeles, June 24 (AP)—For the edification of America's guests to the Olympic games, football stars of three Eastern institutions will match their prowess against grid grenadiers of three California universities here the night of August 8, 1932.

Players chosen from the graduating ranks of Harvard, Princeton and Yale will line up against selected seniors from the 1931 teams of Southern California, California and Stanford. The clash will take place on the Olympic stadium greensward.

In making the announcement today, the Los Angeles organizing committee for the Olympic games said the contest would be strictly under the sanction and supervision of these universities.

The game brings the Jones brothers against each other again, for Howard Jones of the University of Southern California will be head coach of the Western squad, while Tad Jones, retired coach of Yale, will take command of the Eastern contingent. Head football coaches of the participating schools will work as assistants.

The grid classic will be played under the lights the night following completion of the track and field events.

The two coaches and their committees will select their players from graduating ranks next spring. The teams will be organized several months in advance, and will be brought here to prepare for the contest.

Assisting Howard Jones will be Glenn ("Pop") Warner of Stanford and Navy Bill Ingram of California. Tad's staff will consist of Mal Stevens of Yale, Eddie Casey of Harvard and Al Wittmer of Princeton.

ROCKINGHAM IS SET FOR RACES

Several hundred horses are now quartered at the Rockingham Park race track at Salem, N. H., going through their training gallops for the race meeting which opens there a week from today, July 1.

Before the end of the week it is estimated that more than a thousand horses will be on the grounds.

The track, which represents an outlay of $200,000 is about completed. The old grandstand accommodating 10,000 has been remodelled with 300 roomy boxes along the entire front. Brand new stables line the back stretch and the infield is dotted with stewards' and timers' stands and the approximating board where all the fluctuating prices of the horses are posted during race time.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

Having used six pitchers in a vain attempt to halt the Indians in Tuesday's double-header, Manager John Collins of the Red Sox is forced to call upon Wiley Moore, who has done nothing but relief pitching since April 22, to go to the hill against Mel Harder in the third game of the series in Cleveland this afternoon.

The two shutout defeats suffered by the Sox in the twin-bill were the most crushing they have experienced this season. They lost the opener, 13 to 0, and the second game, 10 to 0. They made but five hits off Clint Brown in the first tilt while Webb's single robbed Willis Hudlin of a no-hit game in the nightcap.

Strange to relate, though, the double setback didn't knock the Sox down in the standing as the Tigers and White Sox both lost a pair, the former to the Senators and the latter to the Yanks. And the fact that they are still in fifth place after yesterday's pastings may inspire the Collinsmen to grab off the last two games and gain an even break in Cleveland just as they did in Detroit.

The best the champion Athletics could do with the last-place Browns was split even in a doubleheader and they are now only 3½ games ahead of Washington.

There were some excellent pitching performances yesterday. In addition to Hudlin's one-hit effort against the Red Sox, "Lefty" Grove, Mackian ace, blanked the Browns with two hits and Red Lucas of the R d whitewashed the Browns with three hits.

Justin "Lefty" McLaughlin, Brighton high boy, broke into the Red Sox lineup for the first time in the opening game against the Indians, going to the mound in the eighth inning. He allowed five hits in the frame. He undoubtedly was nervous and should show to much better advantage in his next start.

The opening battle between the Braves and Reds was the fastest played in Boston this season, being completed in 77 minutes.

When the Braves scored in the first inning of the second game, it was their first run in 21 innings.

Walter Berger's home run in the second game was his ninth of the season. The ball travelled in a line over the left field bleachers, and cleared the outside wall of the park. It was the mightiest smash he ever made at the Wigwam.

Crosscup Post Holds Golf Tourney Today

The annual early season golf tournament of the Crosscup-Pishon Post will be held today, rain or shine, at the Marlboro Country Club, Marlboro.

One of the features of the tournament will be a match between Dean, the professional at Myopia Hunt Club, Barnard, professional at the Charles River Country Club, Rapp of the Charles River Country Club and Frank Craven.

STATE BOARD NOT TO BAN CARNERA

Primo Carnera will not be suspended for failure to go through with his four exhibition bouts at an Argonne A. A. show at Braves Field on Monday night, according to an announcement made at the office of the boxing commission.

The commission decided that in view of the two fake telegrams sent to Leon See, Carnera's manager, saying the bouts were off, that it would be unfair to set the Italian heavyweight down.

Captain Thomas Bligh of the State police is conducting an investigation. Bligh hopes to discover the author of the two wires which were sent to See.

One telegram purported to come from Eugene Buckley of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, and the other from Eddie Mack of the Argonne Club. Each telegram stated the show was off.

See has furnished the police with the numbers of the telegrams. The telegrams are being traced, and it is hoped that the sender will be located.

Captain Bligh stated that the actual investigation is being conducted by two of the most skilful members of his force. They are working under his personal direction.

Semifinal Sunday for Soccer Trophy

The oft-postponed semifinal contest in the Mayor James M. Curley cup competition between the Bacon A. C. and Clan Stewart soccer elevens, will positively be played next Sunday, according to Manager James Timoney of the Kilties, and the venue will be Sullivan sq.

The contest has been scheduled for the past three Sundays, but difficulty in obtaining grounds made postponements necessary.

This is the second game of the series and the Beacons will have a two-goal lead on starting, for they defeated the Kilties, 4 to 3, in the initial start.

TILDEN-RICHARDS REUNITED

HUNTER AND KOZELUH OPPONENTS

William Tilden and Vincent Richards, who eliminated all "love" from their tennis back in 1922 when they became embittered, have decided to play doubles together again.

Tilden and Richards will team again tomorrow night at the professional net tourney which has a three-day stay at the Longwood Cricket Club, Chestnut Hill. They will oppose Frank Hunter and Karel Kozeluh.

Big Bill arrived in Boston yesterday, and after a conference with Dick Bishop, president of the Longwood Cricket Club, agreed to partner Vinnie and to bury the hatchet.

Tilden took Richards on as a partner in 1918—Richards was 18 years old at the time—and won the national doubles title. They repeated in 1921 and 1922. Then the Tilden-Richards team took to Pat O'Hara Wood and Gerald Patterson of Australia in the 1922 Davis Cup challenge and the combine split.

Never since that time have Tilden and Richards been friendly—in fact they have been unusually hostile.

The pro net carnival starts tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock with Tilden meeting Hunter at 2 o'clock, in the first match since they've turned pro, and Richards meeting Kozeluh at 4:15.

BOOTH REAL SPORTSMAN

New Haven, Ct., June 24 (INS)—Albie Booth, native son, passed up his chance of being the first Yale man to hold three team captaincies in his senior year, and as a result Eddie W. Warren of Westwood, Mass., will head the varsity baseball team next year.

It was Warren's bat that beat Harvard 4 to 3 and gave Yale the series.

Warren made four hits in four times up, drove in the tying run in the 9th inning and put himself in position to score the winning counter.

The election of baseball captain followed. Albie Booth, looked upon as captain to lead the baseball team that as he was football and basketball teams, rose at the squad dinner and named Warren for captain.

Preliminary Card for Title Bout Given Out

Cleveland, O., June 24 (AP)—Johnny Risko, Cleveland heavyweight, will meet Tony Galento, Orange, N. J., in the semifinal of the Schmeling-Stribling fight at the Cleveland Stadium July 3, fight officials announced today. The semifinal is scheduled to go eight rounds.

All the other preliminaries will be at four rounds, and will be heavyweight events.

Rockne's Successor Is in Hospital

Chicago, June 24 (INS)—Heartly "Hunk" Anderson, who succeeded Knute Rockne as football coach at Notre Dame, today was en route to the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., suffering from a severe attack of sinus trouble and a nervous breakdown.

He was taken from train to train in Chicago on a wheel chair and showed the signs of his illness in sharply drawn lines on his face and a 14-pound weight reduction in the last five days.

Arcelli and Baker Signed by Argonne

Sammy Fuller is training hard for his 10-round meeting with Steve Bialaiko of Buffalo which will top the card. It be Fuller's first Boston start since he won from Tony Canzoneri.

First National and A. P. Play Friday

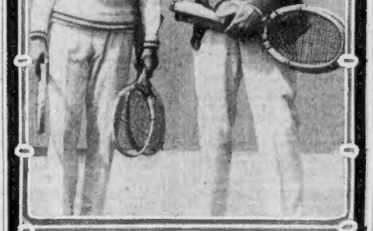
First National Stores and A. & P. baseball teams in the Somerville Twilight League, will do battle in their second game this season Friday night, June 26, at Richard Trump playground, Magoun sq., Somerville.

The chain store rivals were tied, 2—2, in their first game. The batteries will be—Finast: Hall and McSweeney or Buckley; A. & P.: Hanlon and Sisk.

SPORTS REEL

DAILY SHOTS FROM EVERYWHERE

Pals again. BILL TILDEN, right, and VINCENT RICHARDS will play together for the first time since 1922 at Longwood in a series of professional matches. Richards was once a pupil of Tilden's, but the team dissolved nine years ago.



One step from fame. WILLIS HUDLIN, Cleveland hurler, who held the Red Sox to one hit in the second game of a double-header at Cleveland yesterday. The Indian box ace had his chance for fame spoiled by Webb, who banged out a single.

DEGLANE WILL WRESTLE FOR LEGION

By JACK CONWAY

Henri DeGlane, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, has signed to defend his title in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, under the direction of the Crosscup-Pishon Post of the American Legion at Braves Field on July 14, according to an announcement made by Matchmaker Alex McLean.

Paul Bowser, Boston wrestling promoter, has DeGlane and George signed to contracts to meet in a contest under his direction. He turned over his contracts to the Crosscup-Pishon Post so as to insure the success of the mat carnival to be staged by the veterans.

MacLean made his announcement at the Hotel Bradford. He predicted that the tussle between DeGlane and George would prove the biggest sporting event ever held in Boston.

Six years ago the Legion drew $56,000 at a heavyweight boxing show featured by a meeting between Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney. This is still the high for gate receipts for a boxing show in Boston.

Gus Sonnenberg and Strangler Lewis drew $72,000 in their world's heavyweight championship wrestling match at the Boston Garden two years ago last winter. McLean feels the Legion will beat this mark with the DeGlane-George card.

DeGlane and George will be supported by a preliminary mat card to be offered in Boston. It is expected that the colorful Sonnenberg, greatest card in the wrestling game, will appear in a special feature bout.

Rawson and Mitchell on Garden Card

Big Boy Rawson and Terry Mitchell have been signed to meet in the eight-round semi-final to the ten-round bout between Young Jack Thompson, world's welterweight champion, and Lou Brouillard of Worcester at the Boston Garden. At the Boston Garden next Tuesday night, Rawson and Mitchell furnished a torrid five-round tussle on the Maloney-Schsaf card, winning the $200 prize for the best bout of the night.

As the Thompson-Brouillard tussle will be staged the night before the opening of the Rockingham race meeting, it is expected that many race track men will attend the Garden show.

Morelli Is Winner in Lynn Mat Bout

Al Morelli, former Boston College football star, defeated Rey Soulyman of Turkey in straight falls in the main bout of the wrestling show last night at Laster's hall, Lynn. Morelli won the first fall in 22 minutes with a flying tackle and pinned the Turk for the second fall in 9 minutes with an airplane whirl. Wade stalled over George Vasiliff with Glenn Wade of Nebraska, and slam.

In the semi-final Jean LeDoux of France went to a 20 minute draw sell. Floyd Stewart of Lynn teased Jim Griffin of Florida in 16 minutes with a flying mare. Tom DeLeon and Ed LeMare, both of Lynn, grappled to a 20-minute draw.

6-1 Shot Winner in Aqueduct Feature

Aqueduct, N. Y., June 24 (US)—Bathorse, carrying the silks of E. R. Bradley, flew down the heavy stretch at the track here yesterday and got up in time to win the Union claiming stakes by a whisker. He was a 6 to 1 shot.

Follow On was second and Marshal Ball third.

What the Stars Did

By the Associated Press

Bob Grove, Athletics—Held Browns to two hits, struck out six, and batted in first game of double-header.

John Schulte, Browns—Singled in 11th to drive in run that beat A's in second game.

Willis Hudlin and Clint Brown, Indians—Former stopped Red Sox with one hit, latter with five, as Indians won double-header, 13-0 and 10-0.

ATTACHMENT ON MAXIE'S PURSE

New York, June 24—Arthur Buelow, the manager, who developed Max Schmeling and brought him to this country only to have Schmeling toss him aside and go under the Joe Jacobs banner, has started action to attach $99,000 of the receipts Schmeling is to receive for his coming encounter with Young Stribling.

In addition Buelow has filed a protest with the Department of Labor against an extension of the six months' permit for Schmeling to remain in this country.

Fred Kirsch and James Rahl are parties with Buelow in the attachment proceedings. Kirsch and Rahl, through Cleveland and New York attorneys, are suing for $45,000, $35,000 of which represents Rahl's suit for Schmeling's alleged throwing him down the stairs at the Hotel Commodore. Buelow's personal attachment is for $54,000. He alleges Schmeling owes him that sum for the motion picture "Love in the Ring," a tour of Germany and Schmeling's first exhibition tour of the United States.

Kirsch is planning another suit for $2640 based on an alleged fraudulent expense bill of $44,000 Schmeling tendered for his training work in preparation for Jack Sharkey.

Cawley Proves Awkward Foe for Stribling

Geauga Lake, O., June 24 (AP)—Bill Stribling has a new heavyweight playmate, a pudgy fellow named Frank Cawley of Wilkesbarre, Pa., and if their first training setto is any indication of the kind of workouts to come, will southern challenger for Max Schmeling's heavyweight title is in for a few busy afternoons.

Cawley, a stablemate of Tommy Loughran and a boxer with a style faintly reminiscent of the Phantom of Philly, hove into camp here for the first time last night and immediately engaged Stribling in a two round workout.

Occasionally Stribling nailed Cawley with left hooks but he had hardly any luck at all with a straight right to the head, a punch that he has been neglecting in favor of development of his left. And Cawley, who has beaten such performers as Tom Heeney, Jack Gagnon, and Frankie Simms, slugged back quite merrily.

Turk Mat Star on Revere Program

Bey Sulayman, Turkish mat star, and Eddie Collins of Revere, will meet in the feature match of two out of three falls in the first 50-cent wrestling show to be conducted at the Revere Athletic Club on the Revere Beach Boulevard, next Friday evening.

The wrestling tournament will be conducted under the direction of Leo Tucker, Johnny Maxwell and Doc Brown.

The preliminary card has been arranged as follows: Semifinal, Al Thomas, Balkan Lion, vs. Lloyd Stewarts, former light heavyweight champion of New England, 30-minutes limit; Jackie Nichols, N. E. welterweight champ, vs. Johnny Nolan, Somerville, 15-minute time limit; Ralph Fay, Swampscott, vs. Harmon Carroni, Lynn strong man, 15-minute time limit.

Someone Should Put a Stop to This

—By MYLES T. McSWEENEY—

Connie Mack, manager, Philadelphia Athletics: Stop winning ball games. Stop. You are spoiling American League race. Stop. Trade Cochrane, Foxx and Simmons to Red Sox. Stop. Stop. Stop. K. M. Landis. High Commissioner of Baseball.

Max Schmeling, world heavyweight champion: Don't knock out Stribling. Stop. Win bout on foul. Stop. Forget to wear your corsets. Stop. You will be beaten later. Stop. Americas Boxing Fans.

To all Duffers: Stop using new ball. Stop. Stop digging up grass. Stop. Stop playing golf. Stop. United States Golf Association.

Babe Ruth, New York Yankees: Stop hitting home runs. Stop. You may make a record. Stop. Stop at first base. Stop. Joe McCarthy, manager.

American Ryder Cup Golf Team: Stop making good scores. Stop. Remember hands going to the sea. Stop. Don't win. Stop. American Golfers.

To whomever it was: Stop sending fake telegrams. Stop. Fight promoters are so credulous. Stop. Wait until April 1. Stop. Eddie Mack.

To Bill Maguire, paymaster: Stop my pay. Stop. Give it to Charity. Stop. Stop what I said. Stop. Don't stop my pay. Stop. I need it. Stop. Myles T. McSweeney.

Stop this nonsense. Stop.

SCOTCH GAG

You'll have to blame Billy Payne, who opened at the Westminster Roof, Monday night, with Mickey Alpert, for this one.

MacPherson appeared before the judge and petitioned to have his name changed to O'Brien.

"I'm surprised at you, MacPherson," said the judge, "for even thinking of having your name changed. Don't you know that you are the bearer of a fine old Scotch name? Don't you know that you are descended from Scottish kings? Why do you want to change your name to O'Brien?"

"Well," drawled MacPherson, "I have a chance to pick up a rude second-hand tombstone cheap."

It was Billy, too, who told me about Lester Southwell going into Berger's for dinner and, when the waitress brought him a side dish with an ice cream scoopful of mashed potatoes, carefully placing it to one side until he had finished the rest of his meal and then starting to eat it—thinking that it was vanilla ice cream.

"BREAKS"

We have just finished chuckling over a book called "Breaks" which is a compilation by W. W. Scott of some of the more hilarious mistakes and misprints that have crept into news stories and magazine articles in recent years. It is quite possible that many of you will never see this delightful little book so we are going to reprint a few of the better ones here and, stealing a page from the estimable "New Yorker," we have appended comments that occurred to us as we read the different items.

SIGHTS AND SOUNDS

Mickey (Westminster Roof) Alpert is using a pencil for a baton these days, what with the depression, etc...Ask Morton Bowe to tell you what he thinks of Adrian O'Brien's voice . . . Lester (Boston-post) Allen, back from N. Y. where he has been working on the Starr Faithfull story, can tell you some swell stories about the N. Y. boys and girls who are working on the yarn and who have turned it into a three-ring circus . . . Just to give you an idea, the World-Telegram has "bought up" the family and even given them so far as to plant a reporter on the Faithfull's front door to act as butler and slam the door in the face of any newspaper who might try to "crash the gate" . . .They have even gone so far as to install dictaphones in every room of the Faithfull house . . . Mary (RKO) Healy, who has been planning these many months to take her first trip to Europe this summer, had all of her dreams dissipated when she went to bed yesterday with a case of good, old-fashioned scarlet fever . . . And Helen Twelvetrees, movie critic of the Traveler, is home again after a nice trip to Bermuda . . . What we want to know is whether the burning of the "Bermuda" can in any way be traced to the fact that that was the ship that bore Helen to Bermuda?

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

First service from the Port of Boston to Baton Rouge, La., which is one of the key ports serving important centers of the south and southwest, will be inaugurated by the Moormack Gulf Coast Line.

This was announced by George H. White, New England representative of the line, in a statement issued yesterday.

Since starting its service from the Port of Boston to New Orleans, Mobile and Tampa in November of 1929, the line had had a steadily mounting increase in cargo volume so that it has been necessary to run special ships in hers besides the scheduled service.

Baton Rouge, 89 miles up the Mississippi River from New Orleans, will be visited by ships out of Boston every two weeks until the business is established when a weekly run will be started.

FAR EAST CARGO

Oriental and Mediterranean cargo came in here with the arrival after an eventful world girdling voyage of the Prince Line motorship Chinese Prince with 1000 tons for Boston importers. She had Manilan, Dutch East Indies and Straits Settlement cargo. Passengers for Boston were Thomas Dudley Goord and Mrs. Fannie Beatrice Harding.

CABLE LAID

Work of laying a cable between Boston Light and the Graves Light was finished today by the United States cable steamer Pequot in charge of Capt. Nelson King. The old cable down for 14 years exposed to every storm was so seriously affected by the half-fathomless that when efforts were made to repair it the cable broke in several places.

CURLEY TO PLAY GOLF

Mayor Curley has decided that he needs more exercise, so plans to play golf twice a week. His first appearance on the links since he played in Florida last winter will be next Thursday, when he plays at Sandy Burr at the outing of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange.

PRINCE ADDRESS GIFT

Former Rep. Herbert Burr of Dorchester presented Mayor Curley with a bound copy of the inaugural address the late Mayor Frederick O. Prince delivered on Jan. 6, 1879.

A BREATH OF ERIN

During the visit of a delegation of Dorchester residents to the mayor's office to advocate a municipal building at Fields Corner, Mrs. C. F. Merrigan of 15 Paisley pk. asked the mayor if she might touch one of the Shillelagh sticks he brought back from Ireland. She explained that her mother was born near the Killarney lakes from which the sticks were obtained.

STICK FOR ANCIENTS

Speaking of blackthorn sticks reminds me of those that the mayor brought back from Ireland will be presented to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co. Next to the last is now in the possession of Capt. Michael Sullivan of 1582 Dorchester ave., who waved it over Mayor Curley's head in a playful manner after its presentation.

BOSES AND POTATOES

Potatoes and roses seem far apart as specialties for a half-south Boston and half-fisherman to raise, but those are what John J. Donovan, one of City Hall scribes, is centering his attention on now, when he is not fishing. He has taken a few fine specimens of his roses to City Hall but not any potatoes as yet.

BAILEY FOR COUNCILLOR

Reports that Eugene F. Fraser of Lynn, who has been a member of the Governor's Council for 10 years, would not be a candidate to succeed himself in 1932, are leading friends of Charles C. Bailey of Newbury to start a boom for him for the place. Bailey has been associated with the State service for more than a generation, his present position being secretary to the commissioner of conservation.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COMMISSION

LEASE OF PRIVILEGE

Sealed bids will be received at the office of the Metropolitan District Commission, 10 Somerset Street, Boston, on or before 12 o'clock noon, Wednesday, July 1, 1931, for the privilege of selling light refreshments at the pumping station on Nahant Beach Parkway, Nahant.

Bids may be submitted, one for the remainder of the season of 1931, and the other for three seasons, remainder of 1931, and the years of 1932 and 1933.

The refreshment room in which the privilege is to be granted is about 15' x 25' in dimension, having an approximate area of 375 square feet.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for $50, payable to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to be forfeited to the Commonwealth as liquidated damages if any successful bidder shall fail to furnish a satisfactory bond in the sum of $1000 therefor, and the $50 must not be enclosed with the bid, but must be delivered separately. Security may be required for the faithful performance of the lease in such sum or sums as in the discretion of the commission after the bids are opened.

The commission reserves the right to reject any and all bids or to accept the bid which may seem to be most advantageous to the Commonwealth.

EDWARD K. WHITTAKER, Secretary

Curley Drank the Toasts

Thinks Los Angeles Mayor Too Fussy

Mayor Curley, upon his return from Europe, said he was at a loss to explain why the Mayor of Los Angeles should raise such a fuss against drinking the common toasts in Europe.

The Mayor ducked none of these toasts, any more than did Calvin Coolidge when he raised the champagne glass to his lips and sipped of its contents in compliment to the President of Cuba at Havana.

If it were some concoction conceived by a Cleopatra or a Borgia for their unsuspecting swains, there could be an excuse for turning the glass mouth down upon the table.

But when it is an ambrosial nectar of rare vintage—alas, the language refuses to supply any words of extenuation for that social and gastronomical error.

The police figures have just come out of Los Angeles. They tell that in 1930 there were 17,823 arrests for intoxication and 1022 for drunken driving.

They exceed the drunkenness arrrests the last year prior to prohibition by 2008, for drunken driving by 831.

Los Angeles, in common with the other American cities, paid more money for bad liquor, received neither taxes nor license fees for its public treasury and saw its court and enforcement expenses soar.

No wonder Europe, or any people with a sense of humor, refused to take the Mayors seriously.

Navy Yard Discharges

New England Should Protest to Adams

The Administration is busily engaged in its efforts to relieve the burdens of Europe.

Therefore, it might be too much to expect that it extend a hand to the employes of the Charlestown Navy Yard, who happen to be only American citizens.

Two more discharges among civilian workers there last week.

Northcliffe said Americans are a very docile people.

If the people of New England stand for this, they are what Northcliffe said and worse.

If he has any of the determination of his ancestors, he might be prevailed upon to bring the Administration to its senses.

Distinguished Graduate

Rear Admiral Halligan at E. H. S.

The graduates of Boston English High School on Thursday will receive their military diplomas from the hand of Rear Admiral John Halligan, United States Navy, who was himself graduated in the class of 1893.

A distinguished honor comes to these graduates, for John Halligan is a fine officer, a fine character and a fine citizen.

Naval history will record him as an excellent navigator. But in the affection of the American people he is engraved deeply as the head of the doughty little band of naval officers who resisted political pressure and threats of personal reprisals and protested the exploitation of the naval oil reserves by Fall, Sinclair and their cohorts.

In the arena of civil and political life John Halligan and his brother naval officers rendered their country a greater service than even their indomitable courage could achieve on the field of battle.

English High, 110 years old, will graduate 461 young men on Thursday adequately fitted to pursue higher education or to take on the rugged struggle of life. The volume of graduates and the quality of their education should be the final answer to the faddists and theorists who have made themselves ridiculous the past few months by their campaign to dilute or emasculate this splendid institute which is a monument to the history and cultural life of Boston.

Fresh Pack Aids Uncle Sam

Even if things are not what they might be, the great American public is not postponing its fun. It bought 746,410 packs of cards in May. The Government got $60,000 more from the playing-card stamp tax than it did the previous May.

Some say this argues there is more unemployment. Optimists say it is just that bridge is getting to be a more virulent craze. Anyway, two parties are doing pretty well from it—the Government and the wise ones who lead out trumps.

The only flea in the Federal ointment is a rising vogue for thin metal cards. It seems they are liked because wind—whether from the living-room fan, or on the beach—can't blow off the dummy. Another point is that they can be washed off like the old-time celluloid collars. But who wants to scrub fifty-two cards before the neighbors come in? And we have seen pretty good bridge played with cards so soiled that you could hardly tell an ace from a ten-spot.

Kindly Refusal

That was a good story from San Jose about the seventy-seven-year-old man who left $50,000 to a twenty-five-year-old woman who had refused his proposal of marriage. The woman felt that, while she had rejected his suit, she had been kindly and friendly in her attitude.

It is strange how different women are in their ways of rejecting suitors. Some women are savage about it. They are probably scared, poor things. Others are so urbane and smiling that they make refusal seem a gracious ceremony.

Among the aborigines of California it was the custom for the young woman to scratch vigorously the face of even an accepted suitor. Then the young man boastfully showed the scratches, to prove that his sweetheart knew just how to receive attentions. Nor has this custom wholly died out, as police courts know.

F. OPPER

At last we know WHO and WHAT was in the airplane flying for the last few days above our little heroine. The airmen were, as you see, none other than the Republican elephant and the Democratic donkey.

And, joy, they are coming rapidly to the rescue.

But LOOK, the base cowards are now in full retreat.

One glance at old Prohibition was all they wanted. It took all the fight out of them. And, as you well know, having voted for them, man and boy, for many years, there is little fight in either of them.

This base villain, Prohibition, keeps relentlessly after her, while her hero, Mr. Business Revival, is never on the job.

But "into each life some rain must fall," and this little girl, we suppose, must have her share.

Luckily the news is not all bad. The President tells you that he POSITIVELY sees fine times ahead for the 20,000,000 extra population that we haven't got yet, and Roger W. Babson, sitting in front of his crystal ball, sees business going uphill.

* * *

The worm turns, the pendulum swings both ways, it is always darkest before dawn, every cloud has a silver lining, and some day old Prohibition and his friend "General Stagnation" may crash, and be no more.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

"Easy Going People"

"EASY GOING PEOPLE—"

Leisurely, amiable people who take things as they come" . . . "let well enough alone" . . . "never make a fuss—"

The world is always praising them, but are they so admirable? Aren't they actually responsible for a lot of trouble? Don't they, by their cheerful laziness, pass on gobs of grief for the other fellow to settle?

Elsie Robinson

There's Easy Going Mrs. Brown, who lets her children run over her . . . who fails to teach them the traffic rules of life . . . who lets them grow up as they please.

"Aw, let them enjoy themselves while they can," beams Mama Brown. "They're only young once. Yes, I know they're always into something. And some mothers would be nagging at them all the time. But I don't believe in doing things that way. Maybe their manners aren't very good . . . 'n' perhaps they do get into a few, little, harmless scrapes . . . but what of it? They're just kids. They'll have to to learn the hard things soon enough. I just want them to be happy now—that's all."

But are the young Browns happy?

No, they aren't. And neither is any unlucky citizen who is forced to associate with them. For Dear Mama's amiability has allowed them to become a bunch of Human Hangnails. At maturity they are still filled with notions, prejudices and habits which should have been eliminated in their infancy.

Mama had never taught them to obey . . . to be prompt, tidy, systematic . . . to do things they didn't like to do.

Mama had never taught them to consider other people's feelings.

She chuckled when they resented discipline . . . said they "took after their father's side of the family" . . . shrugged her shoulders and waited for them to "grow out of it"—

But the World didn't chuckle when the young Browns got into circulation. The World gave them a dirty look and a swift kick in the shin. It had time to bother with them and it wouldn't stand their nonsense. Whereupon the unfortunate Browns cried out against the cruelty and injustice of Fate. For they were honestly puzzled. What was it all about? What had they done? Why was this happening to them?

IT WAS HAPPENING BECAUSE MAMA HAD BEEN TOO LAZY AND SELF-INDULGENT TO TRAIN AND DISCIPINE THEM. That was her job but she preferred to be "easy going." And she will go to her grave thinking that she was a Perfectly Wonderful Ma.

Then there's the Easy Going Boss. Great chap! But just try to work for him. At first you'll think it's lovely. You can snitch an extra half hour at noon. You can answer your letters tomorrow if you don't want to answer them today. And, if a file is misplaced, he only smiles and says—"Don't worry!"

But pretty soon, you're bound to worry, if you have a spark of gumption. For the work piles up. There's no routine—you never know where you're at. And, since the boss "won't bother" to raise Cain, everybody is imposing on everybody else. At the end of the day, you're dizzy and disgusted. What's the use of trying to work in a place like that?

Easy going people . . . too lazy to get mad . . . too selfish to fight for the other fellow's good . . . too self satisfied to harbor qualms about their own performance—they're responsible for most of the misery and meanness in the world. Public benefactors? Not a bit of it! THEY'RE PUBLIC ENEMIES!

New York Day by Day

Flowers in the City

NEW YORK, June 24—There is a wistful affection among New Yorkers transplanted from out yonder for touches of greenery. A growing plant in the cranny of a man made cliff is the object of adoration. Films picturizing flower development have strong appeals in the movies.

The surprising spread of floral shops over the city is another of the many manifestations. They seem to offer a pleasant relief from the fury of city life—a julep of freedom. This morning in the Plaza fountain section a crowd collected around a window of cacti.

Manhattanites, moored to asphalt, giddy spires and sharp architectural angles, are the most frequent users of a bright lapel flower. Gamblers are usually horticultural enthusiasts. And it is surprising how New York dinner parties turn to discussions of crocuses, oaks, elms, birches and maples.

Nor is any gardener so talkative as your city man with his tiny patch on a roof top. I know a hard-headed business manager of a newspaper to whom some minor employe had, out of frugal savings, bought and had delivered a tiny Christmas tree.

It was an inconsequential gift but to this city dweller it was the sole link with the open country from which he came. He watered it nightly, went to the suburbs for fresh earth and before going to sleep placed it outside a window for healthy currents of air.

One night a sudden breeze toppled it from a 16th story perch. Hearing the commotion the owner dressed, aroused a night watch, got a flashlight and climbed over ramparts to retrieve it. He put it in a milk bottle until he could buy a new pot in the morning.

Along the circuitous path of the elevated through the lower East Side almost every tenement window has its geranium in a tin can—scrubby little stalks making forlorn pretenses to bloom. The love for flowers is a big reason for the popularity of the pent house.

What are known as "hideous Jersey marshes" are to me rich with a glowering beauty. Especially when strange birds flit about in the sun. One of the species seems to skim like a gull over the bleak mud flats and now and then peeping from the grass clumps is a short eared owl and again a suddenly rising flock of snow buntings.

From Little Rock: "Either I am an optimist or goofy for I am down here in Arkansas peddling perfume."

Vignette at 47th street and 7th avenue: The crowds pivot to gaze at an actor current on the Palace bill. Helen Keller drives slowly by in an open car and Theodore Dreiser stops at an out-of-town newsstand. Both unnoticed.

Broadway is curiously pitched in footlight worship. The devotion is as frenzied as that of Hollywood for the movie star. But it is ephemeral. The reigning players when I came to town were Marjorie Rambeau, Julia Sanderson, Montgomery and Stone, Raymond Hitchcock and Otis Skinner. Each was being starred along the Rialto.

Abraham Erlanger was at the top of the theatrical heap—the little Napoleon. Flo Ziegfeld introduced me to him in a New Amsterdam Theater elevator one late afternoon. I had expected somehow a tall gentleman with a beard. Instead he was a chubby knot of a man with a cherubic face who sort of bounced along, wearing a rather grotesque cap. To me he was the theatrical genius of his time.

This column was squeezed between hand-wringings during a four hour agony of the belief two dogs had wandered out of the house and were lost. All the time they were asleep in a clothes closet. And they now frisk around as though it might be a huge joke—rolling, sliding, running in circles and showing off.

Just Folks

The Banquet Speaker's Lot

The banquet speaker held 'em fast
From introduction to the last.
Big business men, severe and grim,
Admiringly looked up to him
And whispered: "Listen well we should;
This orator is very good."

He told them what they ought to do
And plainly made them like it, too.
When thirty minutes' time had gone
They rose and begged him to go on.
Grave men, by oratory stirred,
Called him the best they'd ever heard.

At last he closed in wild acclaim.
To him great financiers came
And shook his hand and slapped his back,
Then went upstairs their grips to pack.
He'd made them laugh, he'd made them sob.
But no one offered him a job.

Next day in every bank and store
Business proceeded as before.
Nothing was changed; the men he'd stirred
Remembered him as one they'd heard,
Which merely proves that busy men
Enjoy a speaker now and then.

Doctors and Their Fees; N. E. and Depression

By John T. Lambert

DR. GEORGE H. BIGELOW, State Health Commissioner, lectures the medical profession.

He says there are "medical robbers" just as there are "legal robbers" practicing law.

He would have us believe they demand their pound of flesh from the senemic bodies of their patients.

"The cost of medical service to the man on the street is prohibitive," he says.

The solution may be the creation of great medical centers where the rank and file of people could receive expert diagnosis and treatment at a nominal cost.

Unless reputable physicians right the conditions voluntarily, "the American people will rise up in arms and wrest from the doctors the control of the costs of illness."

Possibly so. If the anti-trust laws apply to corporations, they could be made to apply to medical societies which fix prices, so much per visit, so much per arm or leg amputation.

However, we liked that section of Dr. Bigelow's speech in which he said not all the doctors are mulcting the public of every penny possible.

The services which the generous members of this profession have given so freely to the people, especially to those in moderate and poor circumstances, would consitute a monument reaching to the sky.

In New England

A RECENT SPEECH by President Edward S. French of the Boston & Maine Railroad was an optimistic discussion of the present and future of New England.

In her contracts for new buildings, her department stores sales, her bank clearances, her freight-car loadings and her savings banks deposits, New England maintained in the year of depression a higher and more satisfactory record than any other section of the country.

Those are actual barometers, more nearly approximating existing conditions than the sporadic, sensitive stock market, yielding to every caprice of wind and rumor, ever could hope to do.

With that inherent strength, President French said there is bound to be an enormous industrial expansion. Throughout New England, as is already taking place in Maine, a wealth of new industries will be created in the smaller cities and the towns whose waterpower sites are now running to waste.

French took for his text this passage from St. Luke:

"For unto whomsoever much is given, of him shall be much required; and to whom men have committed much, of him they will ask the more."

It is a passage which should be read once a day by the bankers, financial magnates and public officeholders. It should arouse in them a comprehension of their duty and an active faith in New England.

Humphrey O'Sullivan

IT SEEMS TO US that the passing of Humphrey O'Sullivan has not commanded the notice which was his due.

He came to this country an immigrant boy with only an immigrant's common resources, namely, a sturdy physique, a simple faith and a determination to make his way.

He accumulated wealth and political influence; he became a figure for good in the public affairs of his adopted country.

He was as plain as an old shoe. His wealth did not turn his head. His friends of yesterday were still his cronies in his day of influence and prestige. His benefactions were numerous, generous and private. Many a man and woman who were lifted out of destitution or poverty by his unceremonious charity will grieve his departure.

He conceived and patented the rubber shoe. But his greatest talent was his ability to tell it to the public. His training as a printer and writer in the little shop in Skibbereen, Ireland, endowed him with that rare ability to tell it briefly and interestingly. He became one of the most successful advertisers this country has ever known.

Humphrey O'Sullivan is deserving of the admiration of his fellow citizens of Massachusetts. He was a striking example of the fact that industry and intelligence will find their way to success in a country which recognizes no superiority of birth or class.

In Time of Need

Representative Thomas F. Carroll of Revere writes an interesting letter on William Randolph Hearst's proposal for a $5,000,000,000 prosperity bond issue to supply work, stimulate business, restore confidence and usher in the golden day of prosperity without delay. He writes, in part:

"Internal happiness during peace time is of parallel importance to external defence in time of war. The latter appears unwarranted unless the former can reasonably be guaranteed."

It is another way of saying that a country which expects its people to fight for it in time of its need can be expected by those same people to do everything possible for their comfort and happiness in the season of their need.

The government that called upon its people to buy Liberty bonds, go without sugar, raise crops and, if necessary, give up their very lives, should be the last to shirk or ignore its own responsibilities in a domestic crisis.

IT IS understood that the Rapidan economists are also seriously thinking of cutting down the coal consumption of the fleet when cruising by reducing the number of seas from seven to four and a half.

SPEAKING about that Supreme Court decision, that a man can't become a naturalized American who won't bear arms for its defense, it is encouraging to note that the imported article is not to be permitted to glut the domestic pacifist market.
